A CHICAGO LETTER.

A NEWTON LADY TELLS "HOW WE DID THE WORLD'S FAIR."

We left Boston on the Chicago special at 10.30 a. m. which landed us safe and happy in Chicago at 3 p. m. next day. Compare that with the 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. of the Raymond Excursion trains. I think the five or six hours worth saving.

We had read the Fair number of the Youth's Companion, and planned just how we would approach the famous White City Peristyle, from the water, up the long pier on the moving sidewalk, etc. When we found that the moving sidewalks shared the general incompleteness, and that Lake Michigan was on a strike, like most of the rest of the city adjuncts, we decided to do the easiest way, and drove over Garfield Boulevard, three miles from one hospitable cousin's to the Fair Gateway at 61st street. It altered all our plans, but it was so comfortable and so much more agreeable every way, that we have followed the plan ever since.

We entered very near the Woman's Building, and as we preferred to enter that first from principle, we tried to "do" it. It is more nearly ready than most of the buildings and daily gaining perfection in details. The paintings in the grand open court are all by women—the most noticeable being a most fascinating "Lady of Shalott"—and the floating barge of the flower decked "Lily Maid of Astolat," also fine marble life sized Maud Muller. We saw lace, embroidery, school displays, W. C. T. U. section full of its paraphernalia, registered at Russell Pavilion, directly after Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Butler and Miss Bourne of Auburndale, met a dear nurse and housekeeper in the model kitchen, heard the Peer Gynt Suite by Thomas' Orchestra, admired the case of dollies dressed in costumes of all stages of our civilization. The California room is very elegantly paneled and wainscotted with polished redwood. Next the massive wood mantel is a fresco of one of the cloisters of an old mission in California and the vista, through the columns, out into the blue sky and luxuriant foliage beyond is so lifelike that we almost uncovered our heads to the old monk in the foreground. Most of the state rooms were in embryo.

As we crossed to the Fisheries Building we met a group of orientals, the fat comfortable husband leading his white shrouded wife, in her "dress reform" trousers, and we were almost to hear a man exclaim "what a fellow will see when he hasn't got a gun." The varied costumes of the different nationalities add greatly to the interest of the scene.

The Fisheries Building, with its annexes, attracts a great crowd, especially of westerners, who have never seen salt water or its many tribes. The tanks wall the corridors so that we, who have often wished to see how the fish we hook over the boat side looks at the bottom of his element, are enabled to study his haunts and habits. The case of turtles attracts great numbers, also the sea-anemones and echinoids. The central basin has a large number of large swimming round to the intense admiration of the children. The great tree in the centre of the Government building was a dear delight to us all. We entered the doorway and walking up the circular staircase, resembling those in lighthouses, we gained a platform twenty feet from the top, where we, with forty or fifty people walked about admiring and reading the description which told us that "General Noble" was 101 feet in circumference and was brought to Chicago in forty-six pieces on eleven cars.

The great gun, exhibited by a U. S. Marine who loads and cleans it, is one of three cast at Watertown Arsenal (I read it in Waterbury). It is 52 tons, 12 inch bore. I have not mentioned the exhibit of old baggage wagons which came through our war with Sherman, the relics of Dr. Kane's expedition and the fine representation of Greeley's arrival at the most northern point where our flag was ever carried, a beautiful scenic slide, with life sized figures, men and dogs.

The Indian relics and lay figures are very fine, also the minerals near treasury department. Here also is a complete postoffice in full running order, near by is a mail car with all the most modern appliances, in companion with a ragged old mail coach, loaded with rusty leather mail bags. "Little Nell" has discovered a model of Minot's Ledge Light House and a fine collection of foreign and U. S. coins.

The Electric Elevated R. R. which skirts the grounds is a charming example of the utility of our latest motor, and is one of the favorite modes of covering the immense distances. For this beautiful White City is a large city and weary feet are glad to rest in such a pleasant way. The electric launches and steam yachts also are delightful, but the mongrel gondolas with their barber poled gondoliers are a perfect travesty on the quiet colors and costumes of the real Venetian articles. They are probably thus tricked out in flattery in deference to our well known aboriginal taste for fuss, paint and tinsel.

The fruit exhibits of Dakota, Washington and Idaho are eye-openers to us all, who had never realized that our far northwest was a fruit growing country. "Pound Pears" weigh three pounds in Idaho" is a true inscription. We saw three filling a two gallon jar, and one pear alone weighing forty-two ounces. Indeed I am lost in admiration of our new state of Washington.

Our Massachusetts building filled me with delight and pride in our long galaxy of prominent and gifted statesmen and literati. Pennsylvania has a most magnificent state "Club House" and I go today to the opening (formal) of the state of Maine building, on the invitation sent to my better half, mailed to me since I left home. After that and the couple of hours of French art I shall hear the Apollo Club and Lillian Nordica in "Eljabb." It will be the perfect day, which includes "a beautiful picture, a fine strain of music and a kind act," if I can fulfill the last named.

Letters from home all refer to the trifling accident at the art palace. Please understand that the hall of Washington and the hall of Columbus are temporary sheds put up back of the permanent palace, to accommodate the crowded congresses, and that it was a flooring in a corridor to this hall, which gave way, not a permanent floor, and in a building miles from the World's Fair grounds.

Must I leave out an account of the wonders of the Transportation Building, the Manufactures and Liberal Arts Building, where I found so many home names and fine displays. Perhaps later on I may give a little idea of much not included in this letter, to many urgent friends. LOUISE A. CHAPMAN.

WHAT IS TO BE OUR NEXT WAR?

REV. DR. SHINN'S INTERESTING ADDRESS BEFORE CHARLES WARD POST.

Charles Ward Post and the High school battalion attended the services in Grace church Sunday evening. The exercises were of a very impressive character. Patriotic hymns were finely rendered by the vested choir, including "America" and "To Thee, O Country."

The rector, Rev. George W. Shinn, D. D., gave an address on "What is to be Our Next War?" He commenced by summarizing the conditions and events which had brought the Grand Army of the Republic into existence and of its work in preserving the Union. Except for it, instead of the great nation of today, there would be only the separated fragments, the scorn of the world.

Continuing, the speaker said thirty years have passed since the momentous civil strife. To many of us it is like a tale that is told, to some it is even a wearisome tale. To the survivors, it is an awful reality. The veteran soldiers brought back so many reminders ever to think of it as anything unreal.

Will there ever be another war? What will be its causes, and what its results? What reason will there be for another call to arms? Will it be a revival of the old differences between the north and the south? I think not.

Those old issues are dead and there can be no war over them. Sectional jealousies, it is said, may incite contests with other sections. There is no war between the great Northwest and the Atlantic states. I cannot believe that there is any danger in that direction. Statesmanship will solve the questions of difference. Beside, the cohesive bonds are too strong for warfare.

Will there be a war between the races—the whites and the blacks? The colored race realize that their freedom has not been an unmixing blessing. But the colored man is not revengeful. He is of a race of patient people, and will await the future of a better condition of affairs, particularly in the south, where he has suffered the most.

Will there be a war between capital and labor, a contest of the poor against the rich? The laborer claims that he is not justly treated by his employer, that he does not receive a fair share of the profits of his toil. There is a constant irritation because of the animosity of the workmen who believe they are ground down by the power of capital. Many of these laborers believe that they are grievously wronged. The principles of pessimism have influenced some to believe that their condition is thoroughly bad. Hence they cry down with the church and the government, institutions, they say, that take sides with the rich against the poor. It is the belief of some shrewd students of the labor question that the way is being prepared in this country for a war against the rich.

The anarchist uprisings, the Homestead riots and numerous strikes of greater or less magnitude point to that conclusion. There is great danger to be feared, it is said, from the doctrines of foreign agitators who advocate the bomb and the torch. I cannot believe, however, that there will be a general breakdown between the poor and the rich, between capital and labor in this country. It seems to me very improbable. The laboring classes, and I refer especially to the mechanical occupations, are prosperous here. The disturber has less to appeal to. The American workman knows what labor is worth in other markets and the alarmist cannot do much mischief. The American laborer is too shrewd and intelligent to be influenced by reckless counsels.

Will there be a religious war? It is the judgment of some that there will be a struggle between people of different religious views in this country. I think not. Every religious body is equal in freedom loving America. The spirit of religious tolerance permits every man to enjoy his religious views without opposition. In these enlightened days it seems to me that there can be no danger in that direction. There will be no religious war in this generation. The sword has dropped out of the hand of the religious.

What, then, will be our next war? I do not know. It is the unexpected that always happens, and the tramp of armed men may be heard again. It is possible to have war while men are dominated by their passions and prejudices. There may be war yet, but the probability is that the last battle has been fought on American soil, that the men here tonight, survivors of the war of the rebellion, will fill the last graves of the citizen soldiers over which the American flag will wave.

The majestic figure coming up before me is Christ, the prince of peace. The circle of his subjects is constantly widening, and his victory will be complete, the victory of the prince of peace.

FAREWELL AND GODSPEED.

Reception to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes of Newton.

PASTOR OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH IS GOING TO FILL HIS OLD PULPIT IN THE FOURTH BAPTIST CHURCH OF PITTSBURG, PA.—WORK IN NEWTON—EDUCATION AND PREVIOUS PASTORATES.

A farewell reception was given to Rev. and Mrs. Lemuel C. Barnes in the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre, Monday evening, prior to their departure to Pittsburgh, Pa., where Rev. Mr. Barnes again assumes the pastorate of the Fourth Baptist Church, from which he was called to the Newton Centre church 5 1/2 years ago. His labors in Newton Centre have been crowned with more than an ordinary degree of success, there being 275 additions to the church membership alone. The severing of the pastoral relations in Newton is not only regretted by his former parishioners, but by the members of the various churches of the city. This fact was indicated by the large numbers who came to speak the words of farewell.

The chapel and parlors of the Newton Centre church were thronged with guests prominent in the religious and social circles of the Newtons, Boston, Brookline, Wellesley, Needham and vicinity. The president, Rev. Dr. Alvah Hovey, D. D., and other members of the faculty of the Newton Theological Institution attended and there was a large representation of clergymen, the pastors of the several Baptist churches of the city, Rev. Theodore J. Holmes, pastor of the First Congregational church, Newton Centre, Rev. Dr. Wood of Brookline, Rev. Dr. Burden of Needham, Rev. D. W. Farnce, D. D., of West Newton and others.

The chapel and parlors were very tastefully decorated with palms and flowers. Rev. and Mrs. Barnes received informally from 7 until 10 o'clock. During the evening refreshments were served by a large committee of the young ladies of the parish. Mrs. J. F. Stevens and Mrs. Loring Brooks poured chocolate. The tables for the ice were in charge of Miss Nickerson, Miss Chester, Miss Lecompte, Miss Colburn, Miss Armington and Miss Coffin.

A pleasant feature of the affair was the presentation to Rev. and Mrs. Barnes of a gilt and crystal French clock and etchings, including views of the interior and exterior of the Newton Centre Baptist church, the gifts of the parish.

Rev. Lemuel Call Barnes was born in Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio, Nov. 6, 1854. He graduated from Kalamazoo College in the class of '75, and from the Newton Theological Institution three years later, having taken the full courses in both schools. In 1870 he married the lady principal of Kalamazoo College, Miss Mary Amelia Clark, who has since been a strong helper in his pastoral career. His first pastorate, 1878-82, was at the First church, St. Paul, Minn. From 1882-87 he filled the pulpit of the Fourth Church, Pittsburg, Pa. In 1887 Rev. Mr. Barnes was called to the First Baptist Church, Newton Centre. In 1889 he gave a paper on "Motives Instead of Enticements in Giving," before the Massachusetts Baptist convention, which by vote of that body was put in pamphlet form. A second edition was published by the Baptist Missionary bureau in 1891.

In 1890 he delivered a paper before the Baptist ministers' conference entitled "Shall Islam Rule in Africa?" which the conference, taking an unprecedented step, ordered published at its own expense. In the same year Rev. Mr. Barnes was elected foreign secretary of the Baptist Missionary Union, but declined the position, preferring to remain in the pastorate of the Newton Centre Baptist church. He accepted the call to his present field the latter part of April of the present year.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCES.

DECORATION OF GRAVES IN THE CITY CEMETERIES—AFTERNOON PARADE.

With loving hands, the survivors of the war of the Rebellion paid the customary tribute to deceased soldiers and sailors on Memorial Day. In the morning, details of Charles Ward Post 62, G. A. R., decorated the graves in several cemeteries. The comrades of Wards One and Seven were assigned the old Centre street burying ground where lie the remains of Gen. Hull of Revolutionary fame and which contains the grave of an unknown woman, an army nurse. The West Newton comrades were assigned the Cherry street burying ground; the comrades of Newton Centre, Highlands and Upper Falls, the old cemeteries in those places, including Evergreen cemetery at the Highlands.

The several details of the post assembled in St. Mary's cemetery, Newton Lower Falls, at 10 a. m. where simple exercises were held. Fifteen graves were decorated.

At Mt. Auburn, J. Wiley Edmonds Camp 100, S. V., decorated the graves of Gen. J. C. Edmonds, Hon. J. Wiley Edmonds and George F. Hitchings, the latter a soldier who served in the 25th Mass.

All the comrades of the post reported at headquarters, Newtonville, at noon, and a lunch was partaken of in Grand Army Hall.

There was a parade in the afternoon. The procession formed in Newtonville square at 1.30 p. m., and the column moved shortly after 2 o'clock in the following order:

Police.
Chief Marshal, Comrade Geo. W. Morse.
Chief of Staff, Comrade Isaac F. Kingsbury.
Adjutant-General, Comrade A. M. Ferris.
Asst. Adjutant-General, Major Geo. H. Benyon.

Aids.
St. John's Cadets Band.
Clad Guard, M. V. M., Capt. D. C. Scott.
Chas. Ward Post, 62, G. A. R., Com. E. Gott.
J. Wiley Edmonds Camp, Capt. J. L. Sears, Jr.
St. John's Cadets, Capt. James H. McAllister.
High School Battalion, Major H. F. Page, Com.
Mayor and City Government.

The line of march was through Walnut street to the Newton cemetery where ninety-two graves were decorated. After the exercises there, the line reformed and marched through Walnut, Homer, Valentine, Highlands, Temple, Putnam, Margin, Washington and Watertown streets to the Magnolia grounds in Newtonville where a dress parade was held, at the close of which the several commands were dismissed.

The features of the dress parade were very interesting. Co. C, 5th Regt., M. V. M., made a creditable showing and the High school boys drilled in excellent form notwithstanding the strain of the march. The artillery band, and, perhaps, the most attention and performed its work with an intelligence which evidenced careful training. Maj. Benyon, the instructor, was warmly congratulated and many a word of praise was spoken for the boy soldiers.

The boom of the splendid piece of ordnance of the artillery squad made the parade more than usually realistic, and the smoothness and perfection of the drill in handling the piece left little to be desired, especially in the minds of those who believe in the utility of this added feature of the school military training.

What Saved Him.—"Time I was out in Colorado," said the man with the ginger beard, "I was chased by the bloody Indians into a cave, and had to stay there three months without anything to eat." Here the man with the ginger beard looked around defiantly, expecting some one to doubt his assertion, but, as no one spoke, he was compelled to explain. "I s'pose I would 'a' starved," he continued, "if it hadn't been for my wife and family back East. Whenever I would get to thinkin' of them, a big lump would rise right up in my throat. And, by swallerin' that, I kep' myself from starvin'."—Indianapolis Journal.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to do the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another girl of Hood's Sarasaparilla would cure her. Eugene Field's Tribute to Phocion Howard.

We very deeply regret the death of our old friend, Phocion Howard. For a good many years we have thought much more of the old gentleman than we cared to tell. If from time to time we have railed and joked at his expense, it was because we knew his worth and thought much of him personally—for, be it understood, we never fringed with those whom we do not like. Phocion understood it all. Whenever he came to Chicago he climbed the stairs to see us, and we were always glad to see his ruddy face and to hear his big, cheery voice. Phocion did not do much fooling himself, and perhaps that is why he did not dislike our badinage.

Phocion Howard was one of the old school—one of the few pioneers left here for a long time in the west. He was utterly imprudent, utterly irresponsible, utterly impossible. Once he was more or less temperate, but he stopped that folly some time ago. Up to the last he was generous and self-sacrificing to the degree of fault. His sympathies were easily enlisted and his enthusiasm and loyalty never faltered. Oftentimes betrayed and imposed upon and wronged, he never lost confidence in his fellow men. His head may have failed him in emergencies, but Phocion's heart was always ready with generous, gracious, noble impulses.

So we think of the old man very tenderly as we speak of him today, and the hard part of it all is that we have to hold our pen in check, lest it commit us to an utterance of those deeper feelings in our heart which perhaps would seem mere sentimentality to you, who may not have known this kindly old soul.

This world of ours is very beautiful, and life here is sweet, for in this beautiful world humanity, with its tender sympathies and tender offers, glorifies it all. Our old friend Phocion loved this world of ours, and he loved his fellow men, and it is this love, perchance, that qualifies humanity for what is to come in the hereafter.—Eugene Field in Chicago News-Record.

Information For Readers.

An announcement printed at the top of the editorial page of a magazine published near Boston is as follows:

This magazine is published 12 times a year; that is the reason we call it a monthly. Every postmaster on the face of the earth, or any other man, is invited to solicit subscribers and secure one of our unequalled premiums or take a cold cash commission if preferred.

It costs 100 cents to have this periodical pay you 12 visits.

When you invite these visits, be sure and send the "mighty dollar" in any shape preferable, and also write your names so it shall appear plain to us that a white cat on a coal heap, also your postoffice, county and state. If you live in a state of matrimony, it is not necessary for you to mention it.

If you send us any manuscript, don't try to write on both sides of the paper at once—to do so will make you bald-headed. We know this from experience. Also sign your best name, or into the wastebasket it goes. We don't require this so we can copy the name on a check, but merely as evidence that you are the fellow you think you are, in case we are sued for libel.

All articles intended for publication should be mailed to the editor. All business letters, donations, gifts and legacies should be addressed to the same person.

Blue Glass Spectacles For Cows.

A remarkable story comes all the way from Moravia to the effect that all the cows in that part of the country are "humped in the rail fence corners, chewing their ends with great blue spectacles fastened before their eyes." It seems that the ground in that country has been covered with snow since the latter part of October. Nearly every day has been clear and cold, the reflection of the sunlight from the snow being very disastrous to the eyes of both man and beast. Thousands of cattle went entirely blind before the attention of the government director of agriculture was called to the fact. That gentleman, Dr. Verincourt, recommended blue spectacle glasses set in wooden or wire frames, and the result is that thousands of cows are now roaming about over the Moravian pastures looking as dignified as Boston "school-marm." It is further said that the entire blue glass supply of Vienna has been exhausted and that the government has applied to Paris and London glass dealers for additional supplies.—St. Louis Republic.

Signaling by Flashing Lights.

The unfavorable impression caused in navy circles abroad by the failure of flashing incandescent lights to meet all the requirements of a clear and rapid system of signaling has been greatly modified by the introduction of a new device. It was formerly found that flashes could not be made with the necessary rapidity, owing to the fact that light lingers in the carbon. In the new flash lamps, a number of which are being supplied to several English battleships, a spring cover hides and reveals the light, being worked by a flexible spring by hand, and enabling signals of practically any degree of rapidity and of the utmost distinctness to be sent.

The lamps are of about 100-candle power and are worked at the masthead by electric wires from the deck. From experiments made with the new device it appears that the direct flashing of high power incandescent lamps for signaling purposes is likely to be eventually superseded by some dark cover arrangement.—Exchange.

Cremation.

Miss Mary B. Conyers of Boston has written a pamphlet in favor of cremation, which the Massachusetts Cremation society has published. She states that cremation does not mean the burning of the body by fire. The coffin is put into a small chamber heated to a temperature of 2,000 degrees. No flame devours the body—nothing but the heated air—and until the moment of its falling together in white ashes the body lies untouched and the process is one quick and pure, not the slow decay of the grave.

Civil Service Reform.

Civil service reform is moving on sure. It would be expedient if those who believe in it would live up to it. As we have said before, one trouble is that people are good natured, and when their friends want places under a new administration—that is, places not vacant and only to be made vacant by the demands of the office seekers—these good natured people allow themselves to become part of the pressure for the places by their recommendations and solicitations. It is sometimes look to the appointing powers as if the whole country rose up and demanded not civil service reform, but positions in the civil service.

There is such a thing as rushing a reform ahead of public opinion and thus injuring the reform, and there are many positions which are political in the true sense and should be taken possession of by the party of the majority after every election. But it is the duty of every citizen to do his share in eliminating not only the spoils system, but the spoils idea, from politics; to press upon the authorities the necessity of continually extending the merit system, and of acting according to its spirit outside of the classified service. For it is no exaggeration to say that the evils of the spoils system are illustrated in every sinister case in the history of modern American politics; every disgraceful "success" is to be laid at its doors; every corrupting influence here its origin. It is the menace and enemy of honest administration in every community in the country; it degrades our legislatures, state and national, and the cause of good government triumphs only when this pernicious system is thwarted or overcome.—Century.

To Blow Up Cyclones.

Dr. C. R. Carpenter has evolved a plan by which approaching cyclones can be bombarded and many lives and thousands of dollars' worth of property saved. Dr. Carpenter says that the great Mississippi and Missouri valleys compose the cyclone centers of the continent. His plan is to have stations where men can be trained to watch for a coming twister and then destroy it before it reaches the city by exploding it with torpedoes. He said: "I would have a station sufficiently high to permit the watchmen to see a cyclone when it is coming. The torpedoes would have to be sent into the cloud scientifically, of course, and therefore men should be trained to the service. I would have the station attached to the weather bureau, which would aid in getting advance information of cyclones. Strong marine glasses could be used at night by watchmen, and an alarm could be given in plenty of time. My method would of course be of no use in hurricanes, but I am fully convinced that my theory is a good one for cyclones and well worth a trial."—Cor. Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Changes In the Church.

The New Jersey state Epworth league convention, at its session in Newark, denounced the race track legislation, protested against the opening on Sunday of the World's fair and declared unanimously that it discouraged the use of tobacco.

The Rev. H. S. Springer of Arlington, in speaking for the Newark district, said:

"Bring back the amen corner and the mourners' benches, and let us not continue in the present formal way. Take down the advertisement of the undertaker that is on the front of our churches and put in its place the inscription, 'I am the resurrection and the life.' "Take away the little sign with 'M. E. Church' on it and place one 20 feet long across the front of the edifice having the words 'Central Methodist Episcopal Church' in big letters, every word spelled out. Let's have some sensationalism to cope with the devil's plans of work."

Became Crazy From Quitting Tobacco.

There was a lively time on a Pullman car on the Southern road last night while en route from New Orleans to this city. At Chattanooga William C. Blackburn of this city, a porter on one of the cars, began to act queerly. He ran through the train screaming and nearly scared the passengers out of their wits. At one time he took all the money out of his pockets and threw it out of the window. He finally became so violent that it was necessary to chain him in an apartment. Upon arriving at the Grand Central depot he was taken to police headquarters, from which he was sent to the city hospital. The only explanation of Blackburn's strange conduct was that he had been crazed by tobacco. Some time ago he was an inveterate user of the weed, but stopped suddenly. Yesterday he took a big chew of tobacco before he began to act crazy.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Checking Kentucky Pride.

The Home and School puts a check on impulsive state pride by a curt catalogue of "things the Kentuckian can learn at the World's fair." Among these are:

"That Kentucky is not the only country on earth.

"That a horse is not the noblest work of God.

"That if our legislature is the worst in the Union it has competition.

"That there is some beauty and a good deal of brains outside his own state.

"That there is much in a name, and ours might be improved.

"That the earth will not worship him because he is from Kentucky.

"That there are many other people as hospitable as he, and a few more polite.

"That a man is not necessarily a fool because he doesn't 'talk horse.'"

Two Society People.

Mrs. John Sherwood is a much bigger man in Chicago today than Mr. Ward McAllister can ever hope to be. So grateful are the Chicagoese to their lady champion it will surprise no one if they present her with a lake front lot and the freedom of the city, a la the Duke de Veragua's New York parchment souvenir. Ward isn't going to the fair.—Boston Herald.

Annual Report of Secretary of the N. W. S. A.

The Newton Woman Suffrage Association has been doing real missionary work the past winter. At an early meeting of the directors it was voted that we hold meetings in private houses in the different wards, hoping to interest neighborhoods heretofore unrepresented in the membership of our league. The first was held with Mrs. L. A. Chapman, Ward Two, Newtonville, Dec. 16, and as a result about a dozen new names were added to our list.

Miss Blackwell came out and gave us a pleasant and concise report of the work our societies are doing and the good they are accomplishing, citing the work in Kansas and Wyoming.

Several of our members followed with similar remarks.

Mrs. Richard Rowe, Pres. of West Newton Christian Temperance Union was welcomed as a new convert and responded gracefully to the greeting tendered her. Refreshments were served and the meeting pronounced a success.

The second was held Jan. 12 at Channing church, Newton. Mrs. Howe was to have been present but was prevented by ill health and bad weather, so Mrs. Stone addressed the meeting in her felicitous manner. Mr. Goodrich stated his objections which were not apparently very deep seated and were logically disposed of by Mr. Blackwell. Shortness of time prevented other speakers from participating in the discussion as our Newton friends had prepared light refreshments for a social hour.

April 18th. Arrangements had been made in December for a spring meeting at Lasell Seminary and although we twice deferred our date we were repaid by a pleasant evening and Mr. Bragdon's presence, he having returned from his winter "up the Nile."

About 250 were present in the large chapel, the majority being students.

Mrs. Stone pointed out to them the ways in which their mothers had made their paths easier than they, themselves, trod fifty years ago and presented the usual strong argument, her lovely self and winning voice, to their glowing and interested young eyes. We have great hope that her arguments made many converts among these ardent spirits just forming their plans for life. Mr. Edwin Kimball followed with a resume of the biographical account of Mrs. Stone in Woman's Journal for April 15 and it was evident that the girls had perused it in their reading room before seeing and hearing our heroine.

Mr. Kimball also attended to Woman's influence in matters educational and reformatory and political. He was followed by Senator Gilman, who stated how he happened to be a suffragist, by Mr. Bragdon who endorsed the cause heartily, if somewhat less eloquently. Representative Howard who criticized the methods or rather the lack of methods in our legislative campaign, and urged that our committee in future be selected from among our adherents, and by Mr. Blackwell, who gave very interesting statistics of gains in the past year.

The assembly sang Mrs. Howe's stirring little Hymn of the Republic and adjourned well pleased with the evening.

Next day a delegation of our ladies went on invitation of the Woman's Alliance to Newton Centre to a meeting addressed by Mrs. Howe.

Judge their satisfaction at the presence of about forty Seminary girls, evidently in search of the same papulum so eagerly taken in their previous evening's feast of reason.

We hope to continue our ward meetings next fall. Arrangements are maturing for neighborhood caucuses in Newton Highlands and Upper Falls. There have been executive meetings with varying attendance. Your secretary desires to call attention of this committee to the fact that eight ladies have attended these meetings at different times, some all of them.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

BOWDOIN THEATRE—Manager George A. Baker and Manager Atkinson of the Bowdoin Square Theatre are busily arranging for the summer season of light opera at that house, which is to begin next Monday evening. Manager Baker brings an organization to the pretty Bowdoin Square Theatre which has been heartily indorsed by audiences throughout the country. His company has a repertoire of over a score of the standard light operas from which two will be chosen each week of the Boston season. The first production, for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday afternoon of next week, will be "The Beggar Student," the balance of the first week being given to "The Black Hussar." The excellent cast of principals will be supported by a large chorus and orchestra and stage band in both these operas. The scenic and costume appointments will be of the best, and the productions will be complete in every way.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—The second week of "Rosedale" at the Grand Opera House, Boston, begins on Monday evening, and promises to hold the attention of theatre patrons for several weeks, for seldom is a stage production presented by better people than is seen in the east. Mr. Joseph Haworth and Miss Marie Jansen have been warmly welcomed back to the city where they won their early triumphs. Last Monday evening at the conclusion of every act the members of the company were presented with beautiful floral tributes and the audience on this occasion contained a large number of society people who occupied the boxes and the front rows in the orchestra. Besides Mr. Haworth and Miss Jansen the others who came in for a share of the approval of the audience were Miss Annie Clarke, Mr. Frank J. Keenan, Mr. Justin Adams, Mr. James Horne, Mr. Mark Price, Miss Lillian Masterson, Mr. Edward Wade, Miss Fanny Addison, Miss Kate Ryan, Miss Helen Dayne, Miss Helen Frost. Matinees will be given on Thursday and Saturday of each week during the run of "Rosedale." Little Miss Masterson will have a charming role in Sir Arthur May and all her little friends who admired her in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will enjoy her in the present role. It is advisable to secure seats early.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS.

The people are very much interested in the question of what the present City Council will do in the matter of sewer assessments. The legislature has granted power to amend the present ordinance, and some decided steps ought to be taken soon, so that the assessed real estate owners may know what to do. They do not wish to pay their assessments if a change is to be made, and the uncertainty is not advantageous for the city treasury.

There is only one question of the duty of the city council. The matter of sewer assessments was a direct issue in the last city election, and in fact it was the great issue.

The two candidates for Mayor represented the two sides, one the present ordinance, and the other those who favored a radical amendment. The people gave their verdict for a change by a vote of more than two to one. The same issue entered into the choice of members of the City Council, although it was perhaps not made so prominent. Nevertheless if any of the candidates had publicly announced himself as in favor of the present ordinance, he would have certainly been left at home. Under this condition of things there is only one course for the city council to adopt, and that is to carry out the changes for which they were elected.

As to the details of the amendments, there is a general disposition to leave these to the city council, and let them work them out as their best wisdom may direct. They know the sentiment of the people, and if they follow that, they can not go very far wrong on the matter. They were chosen to represent the people, and not their individual preferences.

CHEAPER GAS.

The Newton & Watertown Gas Company have acceded to the demand for cheaper gas, which is being made all over the state, and have voluntarily reduced the price to $1.50 per thousand feet, although those who do not settle promptly will have to pay $1.80. This is as low as any suburban company furnishes gas, and is the same figure at which the Brookline company is to furnish it after July first.

This action on the part of the company is very creditable, as it was made without any popular clamor being raised and the company say the reduction was made just as soon as they could afford to make it, but they expect that the increase in consumption will compensate them for the difference in price.

It is of great advantage to have gas and electricity and such things furnished by a home company, who have some public spirit, and not by a foreign corporation as in Boston, when the only object is to squeeze all the money possible out of the public. The home company has some regard always for its reputation, and in this case the Newton directors are evidently inspired by the idea to give Newton just as cheap lights as any other suburb enjoys.

It is only a short time since the Newton company reduced the price to $1.80 and now this further reduction will tend to make it popular with its patrons in Newton and the other towns it serves.

It is rumored that the fire department committee have voted by a bare majority to buy a different style of fire alarm boxes from those now in use, for the five additional boxes which are to be put in. The rumor seems incredible, especially as the city would not save a cent by the operation, and the experts say it is very unwise to mix up two systems, as while one box might work perfectly on its own system, there is apt to be more or less trouble when it is placed on another system. Our fire alarm system now is such a perfect one that we get very low insurance rates, but if the system is mixed up so that no dependence can be placed on the signals, the insurance men will raise their rates, and thus every property owner in Newton is liable to be pecuniarily affected by this proposed change. It is said that Chief Bixby is very much opposed to any mixing up of the boxes, and as he is an expert his opinion ought to have great weight with the City Council. He has had years of experience and has seen how unsatisfactory the plan of having several kinds of boxes works in other places. When our present system works so perfectly it seems a pity to introduce a disturbing element, when not a cent is to be saved by it.

If Sherlock Holmes, A. Conan Doyle's favorite hero, were only a real personage, what a fine field for his detective genius he would have in these Fall River murder mysteries. They puzzle all ordinary detectives, but Mr. Holmes could doubtless sit down and think out the solution in about half an hour at the most. But in real life such marvellous detective work is unknown. The regular authorities seem so puzzled by this last Fall River murder, that we shall probably soon hear that the father of the girl has been arrested for the crime, if they follow the same course that they did in the Borden case.

The great popularity of bicycle riding was never shown so forcibly as on Tuesday, when the streets were filled with cyclists going to the great race meeting at Waltham, and the number that passed through Newton mounted up to the thousands. It was noticeable too the way the pneumatic tire has superseded the old fashioned kind, as the inflated tires were on every wheel. Bicycling is a healthy sport, but it is a pity that the manufacturers can not invent some kind of a machine that will make the riders sit erect, instead of taking such an ungraceful attitude on their wheels, making them look like old and deformed men.

The Boulevard question will probably attract many interested spectators to the city council Monday evening, June 12, as both branches will be in session and it is expected that some action will be taken on the matter. If anything is to be done it is important that it should be done promptly. Certainly no question of such importance to the future growth and prosperity of the city has come up of recent years.

The conscience and good sense of the house was shown by the great majority for the Lyford bill, and it looks now as if the Addicks gas ring was doomed, although of course the Senate has to pass on the measure, and the position the Senate has taken of recent years does not inspire much confidence. Will the Senate be influenced by the gas ring is the question people are asking now?

UNSIGNED communications, especially poetry, always go into the waste basket. It is curious how often such a statement has to be made by newspapers, and now that waste paper can't be given away, such communications are of no value. Many times the articles sent would have been used had the authors of them signed their names.

Mrs. LOUISE A. CHAPMAN of Newtonville has a letter in another column on a subject which will be of interest to every one, at present, the World's fair at Chicago, and her experiences in getting there and seeing the sights. Another letter on the same subject is promised for a future issue of the GRAPHIC.

City of Newton.

ASSESSORS' NOTICE.

The inhabitants of the City of Newton, and all other persons liable to pay taxes therein, are hereby required to bring in to the Assessors of said Newton, on any day from

May First, to the Fifteenth Day of June Next, true lists of all their Polls, (males 20 years old and upward), and schedules and estimates of their personal estates, not exempted from taxation.

Assessment of Polls and Registration of Women.

SEC. 7, CHAP. 351, ACTS OF 1892.

The Assessors, by one or more of their number, or by one or more Assistant Assessors, shall in the months of May and June in each year visit every building in their respective cities and towns and make true lists containing, as near as they can ascertain from any owner or occupant of a building, the name, age, occupation, and residence on the first day of May in the current year and preceding years, of every male twenty years of age and upward residing therein and liable to be assessed for a poll tax; and shall receive the request of every woman twenty-one years of age and upward, residing therein on the first day of May in the current year who shall, in a writing signed by her, request that her name be transmitted to the registrars for the purpose of registration; and shall make diligent inquiries concerning all matters required of them in this section.

All women desiring to be registered should have their written request for registration ready for delivery to the Assessors when they shall visit the house where they dwell.

Each request should be upon a separate sheet signed by the applicant with her name in full giving street and number.

Persons holding estates in trust, whether for minors or otherwise, are particularly requested to furnish the Assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, have changed hands from other causes, the Executors, Administrators, Trustees, or other persons interested, are required and warned to give notice of such change; and in default of such notice will be held to pay the tax assessed, although such estate has been wholly distributed and paid over.

Returns of Property Held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable, or Scientific Purposes.

In accordance with the requirements of Chapter 217, Acts of 1882, all persons and corporations are hereby required to bring in to the Assessors of Newton on any day from May first to the first day of July next, true lists of all real and personal estates held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes, on the first day of May, 1893, together with statements of the amount of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporation for said purpose during the year next preceding said first day of May; such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the tax commission.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

CHAP. 175, ACTS OF 1882, SEC. 1.

Any mortgagor or mortgagee of Real Estate may bring in to the Assessors of the town or city where such Real Estate lies, at the time specified for bringing in the list as provided in Section thirty-eight of Chapter eleven of the Public Statutes, a statement under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such Real Estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as a mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement. The Assessors shall, from such statements or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate part of such estates that are the interests of mortgagees and mortgagors, respectively, and shall assess the same. Whenever, in any case of mortgaged Real Estate, a statement is not brought in as herein provided, no tax for the then current year on such Real Estate shall be levied for the reason that a mortgagee's interest therein has not been assessed to him.

Shipping.

Shipping and business income are not taxable to a firm, but each resident partner must include these items in his individual return. Owners and agents of ships and vessels engaged in the foreign carrying trade, are referred to Sections 8 and 9 of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes, for the form of return required to obtain exemption from taxation upon the valuation of such property. Said returns to be made to the Assessors on or before June first.

Any person bringing in a list of all his taxable personal property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any person neglecting to furnish the Assessors with such list within the time above specified, will be deemed at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors agreeably to the laws of this Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing and subscribed under oath before one of the Assessors, on or before the fifteenth day of June, and that the Personal Property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board, notwithstanding any verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the Assessors.—Pub. Stat. Chap. 11, Sec. 39 and 41. When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed on Personal Estate to such person can be granted, "unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per cent. the amount which would have been assessed to that person on Personal Estate if he had seasonably brought in said list; and if said tax exceeds by more than fifty per cent. the said amount, the abatement shall be only of the excess above the said fifty per cent."—Public Statutes, Chapter 11, Section 74.

The Assessors will be in session at their office, in the City Hall, in the City of Newton, on the 10th, 17th, 24th, and 31st days of May, and the 7th, 14th, and 15th days of June next, from 3 to 5 o'clock P. M.

Blank schedules will be furnished on application at the office, or to either of the assessors, SAMUEL M. JACKSON, Assessors of the City of Newton, CHARLES A. MINER, CHARLES F. ROGERS, Newton, April 25, 1893.

—A union picnic of the Universalist Sunday schools of Boston and the adjacent suburbs will be held Saturday, June 10, at Highland Lake Grove. Newton people will reach the grounds via New York & New England railroad. There will be athletic sports and other features.

—The date of the annual drill of the Newton High school battalion is set for June 10. The exercises will take place on the High school grounds, and a feature will be the drill of the artillery squad. The new ordinance will be exhibited and several rounds will be fired.

—The square was filled with people Tuesday afternoon for the formation and march of Charles Ward post and the escort military organizations to the cemetery. The High school battalion made a fine appearance and the firm tread of the veterans recalled the stirring scenes of real warfare.

—The last meeting for the season of the Karma Koterie was held with the Misses Kyle, May 25. It was an Emersonian evening and very appropriate being the anniversary of that Concord Sage's birthday. Interesting articles were read by the Misses McAdams, Hill and Newton. Refreshments were served during the evening and at a late hour the club adjourned subject to the call of the President.

—A delightful drive to historic Lexington during this month of wedding and roses, has been contemplated by the Newtonville Woman's Guild for some time and will occur on June 7th, the party leaving Newtonville square at nine o'clock promptly, will drive (before the heat of the noon) to that beautiful old town and taking basket lunch with them, will have a "spread" and then visit points of interest of romantic and historic importance. It is hoped a large number of the members will be able to go, on the principle of "the more, the merrier."

—The unfinished matches in the third round, and the semi-finals and finals in the Newton Club handicap bowling tournament were rolled off last Saturday evening. J. D. Kinsley won first prize, and the trophy for the runner up was secured by D. B. Harding. C. F. Shirley won the special prize for the highest three-string score. The contest in the concluding round between Kinsley and Harding was especially interesting on account of the closeness of —Mr. C. B. Jenison, who has been suffering with rheumatism for several months, is able to walk out with the aid of a crutch.

—Mr. F. P. Dart, who has proved so popular as clerk of the Newton club, will officiate at the Moosilauke, White Mountains, this summer, as usual.

—W. C. T. U. Supper and musical entertainment, in Knights of Honor hall, Tuesday, June 6th. Tickets including both 35 cents, supper, 25 cts.

—The date of the parish meeting of the Second Congregational Society is set for Wednesday evening next. Action will probably be followed by a proposition to retire Rev. H. J. Patrick.

—The Allen school nine defeated Waltham High here last Saturday by a score of 7 to 1. The home players put up a fine game, the work of the battery being especially good.

—The regular People's service will be held as usual at the Congregational church, Sunday evening. Topic "Pilgrim's Progress." From the Mount of Vision to Vanity Fair." All cordially invited.

—There were only six entries for the members tennis tournament of the Neighborhood Club, announced for Memorial day, and the scheduled competitions in singles and doubles were consequently postponed.

—Eight of the candidates who successfully passed the civil service and physical tests for police service were interrogated by the police committee last evening, and from the lot the selections will be made for appointment.

—Officer J. J. Davis is entitled to the credit of recovering the watch which Thomas Manning purloined from Patrick Fitzsimmons, an employee of W. H. Mague, for the larceny of which Manning is now serving a six month's sentence in the house of correction.

—A very interesting Memorial service was held in the Second Congregational church last Sunday evening. The music was an especially pleasing feature, the choir being augmented by a double quartet. The program was arranged by the musical director, Mr. J. Elliot Trowbridge. An appropriate address was given by Rev. Dr. Patrick.

—Officers J. J. Davis and Guy Shannon of the Newton police received Wednesday household articles valued at $50, stolen. It is thought, by the Elderkin gang, the property of Miss Edith D. Fuller, 13 Hilliard street, Cambridge. It consisted of an oil stove, a hair mattress, dishes and cooking utensils, taken from Miss Fuller's cottage on the Sudbury river.

—List of advertised letters are as follows: Edw. P. Adams, Albert Bowman, Miss K. M. Barrett, Kate Barry, John Barry, Miss Annie Gogans, T. L. Callahan, Mary Cane, Miss Ellen Dowen, Miss Ellen Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hasley, Miss Margaret Kelly, Thomas Manning, T. McKee, Mrs. M. Moyse, Lena McLoud, Mr. R. D. Noss, McNoy, Kate Quinn, Mr. J. C. Rockford, George Smith, Ethel M. Winward, Miss Annie Walsh.

—A correspondent wants to know why it is that communication by telephone can not always be had with police headquarters. It is claimed that the difficulty is due to the throwing of the switch to make connections with the private phone lines. It is essential, of course, to reach the central station promptly in the event of an emergency call, and an independent system for operating the private lines is talked of, and would, undoubtedly, remedy the trouble to which the writer refers.

—A number of the invitations to the Allen school re-union were stolen from a packet which had been prepared for delivery to the postoffice officials, and as a result the executive committee has been put to no end of trouble, the theft not having been discovered until after the letters had been mailed. Not being able to tell the exact number taken, or to whom the letters were addressed, has necessitated a great deal of labor in the way of correspondence. A detective has been employed to procure the letters, if possible, which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the thief.

—The four-act drama "Lynwood" was presented in the City Hall, Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the West Newton Young Men's association. The piece was well staged, and was given a very good cast, the parts being distributed as follows: Victor Blanchard, J. L. McGuire; Dudley Middleton, T. J. McCarthy; E. E. C. Carr, J. J. Mains; Judge Carlyle, T. J. Lyons; Col. Edwin Carlyle, H. P. Barry; Patrick O'Flarity, J. E. Ryan; Uncle Joe, J. A. Coleman; Capt. Kensome, Thomas B. Hart; Corporal (confederate), Joe Welch; Louise Carlyle, L. E. Gay; Gay Carlyle, Maud McCarthy; Kate Wilmarth, Minetta Dondolla. A large audience witnessed the production, and manifested its approval by frequent calls of the principals to the footlights. During the waits between the acts instrumental selections were rendered by Plummer's orchestra.

Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Foote, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whitney, Miss Nellie Plummer of Auburn and Mr. John Breck.

—Union meetings have recently been held in Auburndale quite frequently. Untried helpers and a Bible reader, that were found so pleasant and profitable, that since they ended, the three churches here have occasionally united in meetings of various kinds. The ladies have just tried this, and found it very pleasant. The Woman's Board of Missions Auxiliary of the Congregational church, invited the Ladies Missionary Societies of the other churches to meet with them in their chapel. The President, Mrs. Meane, widow of a former secretary of the A. B. C. F. M., called upon Mrs. Dr. Steele of the Methodist church to conduct the opening devotional exercises. Afterward she gave an interesting statement of ladies' work and the Methodist Board, Mrs. Dr. Latimer read a paper, she had been requested to prepare, on the Methods of Missionary work, to which all listened with pleasure. One told of the self-sacrificing work of a missionary among lepers, and another of a woman, deaf and sick and poor, who yet was, through her earnest and untiring efforts, supporting a native helper and a Bible reader, in both India and China, the salaries for the four amounting to about $700. As the members of the different societies thus reported of what was being accomplished by the workers at home and abroad, they felt that the work was one, and that the workers might well unite in praise for what was already done, through the help of the Lord, and in prayer for the hastening of the day, when the fold of the one Shepherd, who laid down His life for the sheep, all should be gathered.

GOOD NIGHT.

We hear it from a mother's knee, in echo down the stair, Ofttimes in notes of childlike glee, ofttimes at close of prayer.
 We hear it at the garden gate, half whispered, sweet and low,
 While lovers linger until late and loath to go.
 We hear it in glad hushed halls, where mirth and gladness reign,
 Where beauty glows and music falls in captivating strain.
 We hear it at the bedside, where dread pain and grief are known,
 And tender ministrations share with the stricken and the lone.
 We hear it when the sun of day withdraws from mortal sight,
 What comfort, then, to hear and say, "Good night, dear heart," "Good night."
 —Clark W. Bryan in Good Housekeeping.

TWO TENDERFEET.

The "old timer" in Colorado has a supreme contempt for tenderfeet, or newcomers. This feeling is gradually dying out, but it will never be wholly extinct until the last old timer has passed "over the range." There was a time, however, when the old timer looked upon the tenderfoot as an interloper and usurper.

Less than 10 years ago two bright young fellows from New York arrived in Colorado bearing letters of introduction to the most prominent and wealthy men in Denver. They were young men of ample fortunes and announced their intention of engaging in mining. They did not desire to purchase a mine. They wanted the excitement of prospecting. They were hale and hearty and were anxious for the experience of roughing it.

Among others to whom they brought letters of introduction was Uncle Billy Golden, an old timer, who had "struck it rich" in Leadville and was rated financially at $3,000,000.

Uncle Billy had all of the pioneer dislike for tenderfeet, but these young men were such manly, independent fellows that they soon found favor in the old man's eyes, so that one morning when they came to him and announced their intention of going to Leadville to prospect for "carbonates" the old man gave them some very valuable information. He told them of a locality where he was confident they would find mineral. He shook them warmly by the hand at parting, and they promised to take his advice and never to forget his great kindness.

"Those boys have the right kind of stuff in them," said Uncle Billy. A month later he received a letter from the boys. They had located a claim in the exact spot suggested by him and had named the claim the "Uncle Billy" in his honor. They were very sanguine of striking mineral, and as Uncle Billy had given them a "pointer" on this promising location they felt that they ought to show their appreciation in some substantial way, so they sent him a deed to a one-third interest in the "Uncle Billy" mine.

Two months passed by, and Uncle Billy received occasional letters from his young tenderfeet friends. They had not struck mineral, but they were expecting to do so any day.

A few weeks later Uncle Billy received the following telegram:

 To William Golden, Denver, Colo.:
 What will you take for the "Uncle Billy" mine? Spot cash. Answer quick.
 J. MADISON WRIGHT & CO.
 This telegram set Uncle Billy to thinking. He reasoned that the boys had struck it in this mine and had acquainted their New York friends with the fact. He had been purposely kept in ignorance, so that they could buy him out cheap. It was all clear to Uncle Billy. He had been through a number of mining transactions, but he had never yet been "done up by a tenderfoot," as he expressed it. He wired back:

DENVER, July 10, 1892.
 J. Madison Wright & Co., New York:
 I cannot make a figure without consulting my partners, who are now in Leadville. If you want my one-third interest, wire me, and I will name price.
 WILLIAM GOLDEN.
 That night came the answer:

J. MADISON WRIGHT & CO.
 The next night Uncle Billy arrived in Leadville, and early the next morning started for the mine. He had little trouble in finding it, for the fame of the "Uncle Billy" had quietly spread throughout the camp.

"Halt!" This challenge brought Uncle Billy to a sudden standstill. It came from a miner standing in front of the "Uncle Billy" shafthouse. As he gave the command he leveled a Winchester rifle to enforce it if necessary.

A parley ensued. Uncle Billy learned that the mine had been closed and left under an armed guard. No one was allowed on the premises.

"I am one of the owners of this mine!" exclaimed Uncle Billy.
 "I can't help that," was the reply, "you can't come any farther. I've got my orders, and now you've got yours. Keep off."

"Where are young Jackson and Miller?"
 "In Denver."
 Uncle Billy managed to get a handful of the dirt on the dump when the sentry was not looking and made a dignified retreat.

"I see how it is," he said; "these young tenderfeet are trying to do me up. I'll show 'em a trick with a hole in it." He hurried back to Denver and found young Jackson, one of the co-owners of the "Uncle Billy" mine.

"How much do you and Miller want for your interest?" asked Uncle Billy.
 "We are not anxious to sell," replied Jackson. "We think we have a pretty good thing, but if you want our interest you can have it for $100,000 cash."
 "Come in this evening," replied Uncle Billy.

He at once wired J. Madison Wright & Co.:
 "Will take $500,000 for 'Uncle Billy' mine."
 The answer came promptly:
 "Terms satisfactory. Will leave for Denver tonight." This telegram was signed "J. Madison Wright."

That evening William Golden gave James Jackson a check for $100,000 and received a quit claim deed to the property.

Then he waited for J. Madison Wright. Four days passed. J. Madison was due to arrive. A week elapsed, and no J. Madison came.

Then Uncle Billy telegraphed the firm of J. Madison Wright & Co. and inquired about the delay. He received an answer that they did not know to what delay he referred. Explanations followed, and Uncle Billy learned that no telegrams had been sent him by the firm of J. Madison Wright & Co. "If any such were sent to him, they were forgeries," the telegram concluded. "Bunkoed!" exclaimed Uncle Billy, "and by tenderfeet too."

James Jackson and John Miller were sitting on the veranda of a quaint little hotel in the south of France in the early summer of 1884. A bottle of wine and a box of cigarettes were on the table. Miller was laughing uproariously.

"You ought to have seen the look on the old man's face," said Jackson as he lighted a cigarette, "when I gave him the deed. He actually thought he was doing us up in great style. I would have liked to have seen him when he got into that sand bank which we called a mine."

"I suppose he has found out by this time that I sent those telegrams," said Miller as he raised a glass of wine to his lips. "Oh, well," he continued when he had drained the glass, "it was only $100,000, and he has more left, while we will soon have to go to work again, for we have only $15,000 left. Why, what is the matter, old man?" he suddenly asked as he observed his companion gazing at a London paper, his face pale and his hand trembling. "What is the matter, old man; are they after us?"

"Read it," replied Jackson. Miller picked up the paper and read: "The Denver Tribune records a wonderful mining sale. William Golden, the noted Colorado millionaire and mine owner, has just sold the 'Uncle Billy' mine on Fryer hill, Leadville, to an English syndicate for $1,000,000. During the past two years this mine has produced $300,000."

Miller's face was white. His lips trembled as he said, "We've been bunkoed!" —New York World.

A. M. and P. M.

I had often wondered what the letters "a. m." and "p. m." are taken to mean by those who are ignorant of Latin—the very great majority. Not long ago I had the opportunity of obtaining some slight evidence on this point. I had been lunching at the Savoy hotel with a friend. On leaving the hotel by the back entrance my friend's attention was attracted by a notice that that entrance was closed at 12:30 a. m. "A. m.," he cried; "why, it ought to be p. m. Here, porter!" The porter came and assured my friend that, as I had in vain been endeavoring to explain to him, a. m. was perfectly right. "Of course it is," I added; "a. m. stands for after midnight, doesn't it, porter?"

"Yes, sir," said he, "that's it." Afterward it occurred to me that if a. m. stands for after midnight, p. m. might just as well stand for past midday. At any rate, it is curious that both a. m. and p. m. can each of them be understood to stand for two words of which the general sense is the same in both Latin and English.

The Italians are much better entitled to use a. m. and p. m. than we are, for they have no need to invoke Latin, and say e. g., "le due antimeridiane" and "le due pomeridiane." But they do not seem to use these letters. I myself have the impression that I have seen ant. and pom. An Italian lady whom I have consulted is quite sure that they use ant. but is not so sure about pom., though she believes it to be used. In an Italian time table book I find simply a. and p.—Notes and Queries.

The Language of Animals.

There may be dumb animals—only their voices may be out of our ear. It must be supposed that small creatures, including quadrupeds, hear sounds much more acute than are audible to us, but none of the lower notes of our scale. This is perhaps the case with cats and dogs, who can obviously communicate with one another, coming so close as almost to touch noses, but making no sound audible to us. Thus there is not such a confusion of noises as there would be otherwise. The vast difference of pitch heard by different great tribes of creatures causes us and them to have, so to speak, the world to ourselves.—New York Home Journal.

How to Measure a River.

Anybody can measure approximately the breadth of a river without a surveyor's compass or any mechanical means whatever. The man who desires to make the experiment should place himself at the edge of the stream, then stand perfectly still, face the opposite bank and lower the brim of his hat until it just cuts the opposite bank. Then let him put both hands under his chin to steady his head and turn slowly round until the hat brim cuts some point on the level ground behind him. Mark the spot where the hat brim cuts the ground, then pace off the distance, and it will be found about the breadth of the river.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Too Liberal.

 "Huh! Some catch about that." —New York Weekly.

A Sartorial Discussion.

"Do you believe man is made of dust, Mr. Snip?"
 "Not all of them," said the tailor.
 "Dust always settles, and I know men who do not." —Harper's Bazar.

Phillips Brooks.

Great bishop, greater preacher, greatest man, Thy manhood far out-towered all church, all creed.

And made thee servant of all human need. Beyond one thought of blessing or of ban, Save of thy Master, whose great lesson ran, "The great are they who serve." So now, indeed, All churches are one church in loving heed Of thy great life wrought on thy Master's plan. As we stand in the shadow of thy death, How petty all the poor distinctions seem. That would fence off the human and divine! Large was the utterance of thy living breath—Large as God's love this human hope and dream, And now humanity's hushed love is thine! —M. J. Savage.

Newspaper Workers in Chicago.

Some time ago we took occasion to warn newspaper writers against the folly of coming to Chicago in the hope of finding employment here. We regret that the warning has been neglected by very many. This city has been overrun for several months by reporters (both men and women) vainly seeking work. The Chicago newspapers have for two years been getting ready for the World's fair season, and their several departments are filled with competent men. Therefore others who come to Chicago now in the expectation of securing employment are bound to be disappointed; there are no places to be had; in every newspaper office at the present time applicants are standing about 12 deep in the outer chamber, with never so much as the prospect of a possibility to encourage them.

Many of these people are suffering from want of money. They left employment elsewhere to rush to this city of the World's fair, where they fancied their services would be snapped at. Most of these unfortunates will have to walk out of town or take to driving street cars for a means of subsistence.

With a view to averting further trouble we ask our newspaper friends elsewhere to disseminate assiduously the information that newspaper work is not to be had in Chicago; that every place is filled here; that already we have with us an army of unemployed reporters, and that every newspaper writer who comes to Chicago with a view to getting work is pretty sure to have nothing but his trouble for his pains. —Chicago News-Record.

Mountainous Waves.

The daily papers all recorded the fact that the steamship Majestic, on her eastward trip, caught a sea that demolished her crew's nest lookout, and that the Teutonic, which caught the same gale coming west, had one sea which combed over the crew's nest and carried away her forward port lifeboat as it went over the rail. But none of the daily papers took the trouble to mention just how the crew's nest is situated on these ships, and consequently how high that sea was.

Inquiry by a Marine Journal representative discovered that, while in men-of-war and many other ships the custom is to have the crew's nest in the foretop or a trifle above, the White Star ships have it at an altitude of 25 feet above the main deck on the foremast, reached by a little iron ladder from the forward hurricane deck. In such a ship as the Majestic or Teutonic the height of the main deck at the foremast is about 40 feet above the level of the sea, which would make the height of the wave that carried away the crew's nest in this instance about 70 feet. This is a pretty big roller for the north Atlantic, but in other parts of the ocean such waves are often encountered in a storm.

Supposing the ship to have been in a trough of the sea at the time this wave swept her, the mean height of the wave might be calculated as not greater than 40 feet, but it was certainly a body of water nearly 70 feet high from where the ship floated. —Marine Journal.

For and Against the Single Tax.

Hyattsville, Md., is still under single tax rule, but there are few signs to show that the principle has made much headway since it won the day in the bitter fight of last spring. Its opponents assert that it has ruined the town, and they point to the condition of the streets and of the pavements to corroborate their claim that the place has gone backward since the single tax people got control of its affairs.

These contentions the single tax men vigorously deny, but their vigor is more in the championship of the single tax as a principle than in the demonstration of its workings in this place. Generally they say that it has not been in force long enough yet for a fair trial. The opponents reply with vigor that they have had enough of it and that they intend to bring about a change in May, when the annual election of town commissioners will be held. The votes seem to be pretty evenly divided between the two factions, both of which are quietly but earnestly preparing for the contest in the spring.

There is a great deal of feeling in the fight, and the literature of the discussion is becoming formidable. —Cor. New York Times.

Great Men and Organ Grinders.

That the late Mr. Blaine had a liking for the melodies of the Italian organ grinders who perambulate the streets are told by Il Progresso Italo-Americano. There have been other distinguished Americans with the same liking at times. One of them was the late General Ben Butler, when the organists played the tunes that pleased him, one of which was the tune of "Annie Laurie," and another that of the "Marseillaise." —New York Sun.

SULPHUR BITTERS

ARE YOU low spirited and suffering from the excesses of youth? If so, Sulphur Bitters will cure you.

Is your Urine thick,ropy,cloudy,or high-colored? Don't wait! Your KIDNEYS are being ruined. Use Sulphur Bitters.

One bottle of Sulphur Bitters will do you more good than all the Latin prescriptions of drugs and mineral poisons which will remain in your system, destroy your bones, and make you a poor, weak, and broken down invalid. No person can remain long sick who uses Sulphur Bitters. If covered with ugly sores, and festering Pimples, give her Sulphur Bitters. Ladies in delicate health, who are all run down, should use Sulphur Bitters. None better.

Try Sulphur Bitters TO-NIGHT, and you will sleep well and feel better for it.

Sulphur Bitters will make your blood pure, rich and strong and your flesh hard. Get a bottle now.

ARE YOU nervous and fretful, or in DELICATE health? Sulphur Bitters will make a new person of you.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

HARPER'S.

"An Artist's Summer Vacation" is the title of the opening article in Harper's Magazine for June. The writer is John Gilmer Speed, and the artist whose hardworking holiday is described is William M. Chase, president of the Society of American Artists. The second and concluding article by Thomas A. Janvier on "The Evolution of New York," also appears in the June Harper's with two maps and four illustrations by Howard Pyle. An insight into the every-day life of the city is given in an illustrated paper on "The Empress of Austria," by One of the Ladies of Her Court. In "Wyoming—Another Pennsylvania," Julian Ralph continues his popular contributions to the current history of the new States. "Vivisection and Brain Surgery," by W. W. Keen, M. D., summarizes the results of all experiments in the heroic treatment of the human brain. Mr. A. Conan Doyle's story "The Refugees," reaches its conclusion in a thrilling climax which equals in interest any of the other situations in this stirring romance. "The Handsome Humes," a new novel by William M. Chase, is opened entertainingly, and the June installment of Miss Woolson's "Horace Chase" is punctuated with an exciting episode. "Pogit Way," by Grace Livingston Furniss, is a story of New England life of unusual insight and humor, and Mr. W. T. Smedley has endeavored it with eleven charming character illustrations. "New France Under British Rule," by Henry Loomis Nelson, is a description of the habitant of Quebec who loves France and obeys Great Britain. "The Editor's Study" and the "Editor's Drawer" complete this strong and varied number.

NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE.

The New England Magazine for June opens with an interesting paper dealing with the men and times of "The Boston Tea Party." Price Collier gives the history of "The Old Meeting House in Hingham, Mass.," the first church organized in America. The article is finely illustrated by M. Lamont Brown. Katharine Lee Bates contributes a long poem on "The Funeral of Phillips Brooks." Charlotte Forten Grimke gives a pleasant chapter of her "Personal Recollections of the poet Whitier." Ralph Adams Cram writes a fine sonnet, "Dante in Exile." John Albee, the author of "Prose Idylls," contributes a sketch, "A Mountain Maid." There is an installment of Benjamin Penhallow Shillaber's autobiography, "Experiences during many Years." Charles Frederick Danforth writes a paper on "Trout Fishing in New England." Richard Burton has some pretty lines, "From a City Window." Albert Hardy tells of the delights of June in delicate verse, "June's Noonday." Prof. Julius E. Olson of the University of Wisconsin contributes an able and and judicial account of "Norway's Struggle for Political Liberty." Mrs. Helen Campbell's serial, "John Ballantyne, American," is continued. Edith M. Thomas is represented by a strong poem called "The Fugitive," based upon Heine's line, "I shall return to God." Edith Mary Norris, the poet and storywriter, conducts a department of Household Science and Art, of interest to the lady readers of the Magazine.

SCRIBNER'S.

Scribner's for June has the following attractive table of contents: The Fall of a Giant Redwood, Frontispiece; Life in a Logging Camp, by Arthur Hill; Under Cover of the Darkness, by T. E. Sullivan; An Artist in Japan, by Robert Blum; Illustrations by the author; The Trouble in the Brice-Brac Mission, by William Henry Bishop; Egotism, by E. S. Martin; The Birds That We See, by Ernest E. Thompson; Endymion and a Portrait of Keats, by Edith M. Thomas; The Opinions of a Philosopher—Chapters I and II by Robert Grant. [A Sequel to "The Reflections of a Married Man."] To-morrow, by W. G. Van Tassel Sutphen; The Haunt of the Platypus, by Sidney Dickinson; De Profundis, by Annie Reeve Aldrich; The One I Know the Best of All, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, (conclusion.) An Old Song, by H. C. Bunner and The Point of View.

THE ATLANTIC.

The Atlantic Monthly for June has the following table of contents: New Facts Concerning the Pantheon, Rudolfo Lanciani; At Four o'clock in the Morning, Oliver Thorne Miller; The Pygmies of Africa, John Deau Caton; An Island Plant. In Three Parts. II, III. Mary Catherine Lee; On the River at Night, Marion Coutbury Smith; A National Vice, H. C. Morwin; Eunui, Agros Replier; Womanhood in the Iliad, William Cranston Lawton; Two Faces, Emma Huntington Nason; Some Recollections of Dr. Schlemmman, J. Irving Manatt; A Marine Observatory, The Prime Need of American Biology, C. O. Whitman; The Future of Libraries, Justin Winsor; The Hayes Administration, Jacob Dolson Cox; The Educational Trend of the Northwest, D. L. Kiehl; Miss Austen and Miss Ferrier; Contrast and Comparison, Charles Townsend Copeland; Chocorua in Literature; Comment on New Books; The Contributors' Club.

The Ladies Home Journal for June has an article on "The art of playing good Tennis," which will be especially popular at this season. Mr. Howell's "Coast of Bohemia" is continued and there are the usual interesting and instructive departments.

Jagson says the messenger boy moves so slowly that he has come to be a standing joke.—Elmira Gazette.

No woman, from Eve to Queen Victoria, ever felt happy when she believed her back hair was coming down.—Texas Siftings.

A Frank Confession. "So you are going to be married?" "Yes, in a fortnight." "And are you really in love?" "Yes, but not with him."—Journal Amusant.

There is nothing that so increases a man's desire to work in the garden as the discovery that his wife has misplaced the rake.—Archibon Globe.

Unkind, He (exhibiting sketch)—"It's the best thing I ever did." She (sympathetically)—"Oh, well, you mustn't let that discourage you."—Harper's Bazar.

Yabsley—"If I had $100,000, I would go around the world." Mudge—"If I had $100,000, I would sit down down and let the world go round."—Indianapolis Journal.

"So you have named the baby 'Obadiah T.' What does the 'T' stand for?" "Oh, that means 'Temporarily'—until he gets his uncle Obadiah's money, you know."—Life.

Nepotistic Privileges. Egbert—"Where are you working now?" Cholly—"G'wheat heavens! I'm not working. I'm employed in me father's bank."—Chicago Record.

Do not think that the politician loves you because he shakes your hand so effusively. After the election, mayhap, he will shake you altogether.—Boston Transcript.

"Are you going to Japan, papa?" "Why, no. What put that idea into your head?" "Well, I just wanted to know, because I want some Japanese stamps awfully to trade at school."—Yonkers Young People.

A henpecked husband called the servant maid aside and said: "Look here, Robustina, I am told that my wife and daughters are planning a trip to Biarritz; do you know whether I am going with them or not?"—El Liberal.

Honesty is the best Policy. "No honest dealer," said the grocer, picking some dark gray objects out of the scoop and pouring the rest of the contents carefully into his swiftly revolving coffee-mill, "will put stones into his coffee. It's a fraud on the customer. And, besides," he continued, dropping a handful of burnt peanuts into the hopper, "it injures the mill."—Chicago Tribune.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It has done for me what other so-called cures have failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical. Clarence L. Huff, Bideford, Me.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulphur Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been entirely cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulphur Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

After trying many remedies for catarrh during past twelve years, I tried Ely's Cream Balm with complete success. It is over one year since I stopped using it and have had no return of catarrh. I recommend it to all my friends. —Milton T. Palm, Reading, Pa.

After the grip, when you are weak and "playe't out," Hood's Sarsaparilla will restore your health and strength.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, ss. FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. The Impertinent Press.

What are we coming to if the press is going to take the starch out of everything? An esteemed contemporary—we have forgotten which one—has complained that the reports of the daily press have made the recent heresy trial appear ridiculous in the eyes of the public. The dignity and mystery of theological discussions, once so awful that angels scarcely dared to tread the platform where the discussion was carried on, have been reduced to a commonplaceness comparable to the reports of a ward meeting or a filibustering session in congress.

The impertinent press persists in treating everything and everybody in an everyday sort of a way. Even religion has to undergo the same treatment. If there is any sham or mysticism or superstition in it, it is liable to be handled as a detective handles an embezzlement. The press, as a rule, believes in pure and undefiled religion, but it wants a religion that is good for Mondays and Thursdays and Saturdays as well as Sundays.

It is complained by some Roman Catholic authorities that the press is unnecessarily meddling with the alleged controversy between the archbishops, and that the laity of the church is being stirred up by a contest which ought to have been confined to the prelates and settled by them. But everything is news, and so important a matter as alleged insubordination in the high places of the Catholic church can no more be kept quiet in these days than could the outbreak of a volcano on Manhattan island. It does indeed detract from the dignity and mystery of ecclesiasticism to have its quarrels reported in the papers, but it cannot be helped except in one way. Let quarrels cease and the press will quit its impertinence.—Springfield Union.

General Butler on His Yacht.

General Butler was happiest on the deck of his yacht, where he clad himself in jaunty flannels, surrounded himself with pretty girls and renewed his youth. If the truth were to be told, he liked to cruise in well frequented waters, where now and then a crowded excursion steamer would be met. On such occasions he was perfectly sure to be cheered heartily; he lifted his cap while the cheering was going on and then beckoned to one of the young ladies. She understood the signal, and stepping aft pulled a cord which discharged the America's biggest gun. Boom! It was a beautiful noise. Once more the crowd on the excursion steamer cheered, the general lifted his cap, the young ladies smiled, and the America sailed exquisitely on her way.

Innocent weaknesses were those of the old general. If he had been a bad man or a really crafty one, he would probably have attained a higher degree of power. He sought his own purposes, but not with that consummate guile, that perfect self seeking, which makes one utterly forego present purposes in order to obtain ultimate ones. Men who are a great deal worse and more mischievous than he ever was have not been abused one-twentieth as much as he.—Boston Transcript.

To Get at the Facts

Regarding Hood's Sarsaparilla, ask the people who take this medicine, or read the testimonials often published in this paper. They will certainly convince you that Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses unequalled merit, and that HOOD'S CURES.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Coughing Leads to Consumption. Kemp's Balm stops the cough at once.

Buy a gallon of common cheap paint and cover any wood, iron or stone work you like. Then buy half a gallon of Chilton Paint, add a little linseed oil to it. You will find that the half gallon covers nearly as much surface as the gallon of "cheap paint." But the difference does not end here. The appearance of the work when done, is to the advantage of the Chilton Paint. It has a better gloss and a more solid look than the other. Why? Because it is made with pure linseed oil. Even here the difference does not end. Look at the work in a year or two afterward and see which paint was the more durable. The Chilton? Why, certainly! It was made to wear—not merely to sell. It is seven times ground and has nothing but the best materials in it. Wherever once used, it is always used afterwards because it has never failed to give complete satisfaction when properly applied. Get a pound can of it and examine it. Ask of people who have used it. —Alvord Bros. & Co., successors to Alvord & Ward, have leased E. D. Seaborn's house on Glenwood avenue, to Henry H. Lovell of Boston, for the summer.

—Services at Trinity church next Sunday are, Sunday school at 9:30, Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 10:30, Evening Prayer and Sermon at 7:30. The pastor will preach morning and evening.

—Mr. C. A. Bragdon, who bought Wilson's express, will continue the business with one change, which will interest customers. He will deliver bundles in Newton Centre from Boston, about two hours earlier than has been the custom.

—A straw ride to Natick and return was enjoyed by a party of young people Monday evening. Henry Hesse conveyed the party, comprising Misses Twombly, Brewer, Hassler, Bond, Rowe, Messrs. Rand, Twombly and several others.

—The week allowed the Homer street sewer in which to be finished has been lengthened into two, and still it is incomplete. The street railway company has laid rails as far as possible, and most of the wiring is finished.

—Prof. John M. English will occupy the pulpit at the Baptist church through June and a portion of July, and an effort will then be made to secure Rev. Mr. Brailin of Brooklyn, N. Y., for a few Sundays, who was formerly pastor of the church here.

—We are always glad to receive news items of interest to our readers, but when reports of matters occurring the previous Saturday or Monday do not reach us until late Thursday or Friday morning, it is impossible to give them the prominence we otherwise might.

—The Newton Highlands Social Club dance at Associates Hall, Tuesday evening, was attended by a large number, nearly 200 couple being present. Dancing was enjoyed from eight to two o'clock. The ladies were disposed of at the supper hour in rather a mercenary manner, each being sold in disguise to the highest bidder, the purchaser taking the lady to supper. The auctioneer was Mr. John Flood of Newton.

—Rev. Mr. Holmes represented the Grand Army at the Mason school, May 29, at 3 p. m. At the close of his remarks three hundred pupils saw as never before how much suffering had been borne and how much wealth had been spent to keep our nation one and inseparable. The boys and girls were delighted with the attractive story telling manner the speaker adopted in his talk with them.

—Rev. Mr. Barnes' last Sunday at the Baptist church was made memorable by unusual religious interest. At the morning service the rite of baptism was administered to five persons, and at the afternoon communion service twenty-eight were received into the church by the right hand of fellowship. Mr. Barnes' pastorate covered a period of five years, and 50 per cent. of the present church members have joined during that time. Over 100 baptisms have been administered.

—The work on Mr. Bray's new block is not being pushed forward very rapidly, as the highway committee still have under consideration the petition asking that Union street on which the block is to front be widened. The committee may be able to report next Monday evening, and it is understood they are favorable to the petition. As soon as the street lines are defined the front foundations for the block can be put in. Mr. Conson's block is being hoisted in and in a few weeks will be ready for business.

—The marriage of Miss Hannah L. Drennan, daughter of Mr. Eugene Drennan and Mr. Alexander D. Mills, took place Monday evening at the Church of the Sacred Heart, the auditorium being filled with friends of the young people. The ceremony was performed at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. D. J. Wholey, the bride looking charming in white. The bride was Miss Nora Drennan, sister of the bride, and Mr. Henry McMan was best man. A reception was held later at the home of the bride on Paul street, about fifty friends being present. There were a large number of wedding gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Drennan will reside on Parker street.

—On the afternoon of May 30 the Newton Normal school 18 to 6. Thayer, W. Rising and Bond led in battling for the Newtons, while Tucker of the visitors hit safely three times. Barton of the Newtons played an excellent game at short stop, taking seven chances without an error. Stacey's catching and throwing were fine. Five of the Bridgewaters threw out at second base. The Bridgewaters were obliged to leave at the end of the seventh inning to catch the train. The score:

Innings.....1 2 3 4 5 6 7 Totals
Newton.....0 0 1 2 3 5 18
Bridgewater.....2 0 3 0 1 0 0 6

Earned runs, Newtons, 8; Bridgewaters, 2; hits, Newtons, 16; Bridgewaters, 7; errors, Newtons, 6; Bridgewaters, 15.

Saturday, June 3rd, Newtons vs Allen's school.

—A sad case of destitution with fatal results was brought to the attention of the Newton police Wednesday night. The victim was Max Bebler, a German. He had been about the city the past three weeks looking for work but had been unsuccessful in obtaining any permanent employment. Yesterday he was in the Oak Hill district looking for a job at gardening or farm work on some of the large estates in that locality. After tramping around the region, he finally, in the evening, went to the house of Farmer Weitz, and asked for food and lodging. He was admitted, and the sympathetic inmates of the place tried to make him as comfortable as possible. He was in a pitiable condition, completely exhausted and ill from exposure and lack of food. He was in a state of shape that the efforts made in his behalf proved futile, and the poor fellow expired about half an hour after he entered the house. The authorities were notified, and Officer Bartlett went to the place and awaited the coming of the medical examiner, by whose orders later the body was removed to the city morgue. Deceased was about 40 years of age, tall, sparsely but not light complexioned, and of a sturdy build. He was a native of Germany, and was established by some papers in his pocket. It is not known where the man came from, to Newton, or whether he has any relatives in this country.

—Rev. Lemuel C. Barnes, for the past five years pastor of the First Baptist church, and who recently accepted a call to the pulpit of the Second Baptist church, Pittsburg, Pa., preached his farewell sermon Sunday morning. He took his text from Hebrew vi., 1: "Press on to maturity." The text, he said, "may well be taken as the watchword of the religious life of the time. The rule of the church, which is progress, is to look forward—not back. The spiritual, moral and material life of the age is pressing on to its maturity. The progress which has been made in material things during the past 10 years is emblematic of the progress which is to be made in religious work, man's apprehension of spiritual things having broadened and deepened. His conception of the proper attitude toward his fellows is becoming more humane; his learning of the lessons of the past is necessary to him, but that it is also essential to live and feel the spirit quickening within him. The changed social order which is to come will necessitate a change in the attitude of the church toward secular affairs; its field of action must be broadened and greater liberality toward outside philanthropic enterprises displayed." The speaker referred to the work of his pastorate at Newton Centre. The membership of the church had increased 275; a net gain of 173. The contributions for charitable purposes had increased from $7000 to $15,000. He spoke of his regret at leaving, and of the possibilities in his new field of labor.

—The school house grounds have been improved by the bare spots having been soddied.

—Mr. S. D. Whittemore and family are at home from their visit to the World's Fair.

—Mr. G. F. Higgins is having another house erected on Circuit avenue near Eliot station.

—Mr. W. V. Brigham arrived home last week from Montana having visited the World's Fair on his way.

—Waterhouse, the druggist, expects to reopen at the old stand, which is being fitted up very handsomely this week.

—Pupils' Commencement Concert, Lasell Seminary, Auburndale, 7:45, June 7. Admission 50 cents.

—The Chautauqua Circle will meet next Monday at Mrs. Geo. A. Moore's on Floral avenue.

—Mr. E. H. Corey has a cellar started for a house on his lot on Floral avenue, and when completed will occupy.

—Mr. Amasa Crafts, who is visiting at Newton Centre, has been several days ill.

—Mr. W. S. Richards is greatly improving his house on Floral avenue lately vacated by Mr. Barrett, by extensive additions and alterations.

—Flowers may be left at the station Tuesday and Friday mornings from 8 to 8:30, to be sent to the Fruit and Flower Mission in Boston.

—Mr. Peterson has removed from Columbus street and has taken one of Mrs. Wade's tenements in her new block at Upper Falls.

—Mr. F. W. Gates is having a house built for his own occupancy on land lately purchased from Mr. Horace Bacon on Eliot Heights.

—Meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society at the Congregational church Tuesday evening at 7:45. Topic, "Neglected Opportunities. The loss to others, to ourselves." All cordially invited.

—Memorial services will be held next Sunday morning at the Congregational church, and the members of Charles Ward

Post will be in attendance. Rev. Dr. Dunning will conduct the services, and the music to be rendered by the quartet will be appropriate to the occasion. Seats free.

—The music at the Congregational church Sunday next will be appropriate to the Grand Army Memorial Service and consist of arrangements of

"To Those O Country,"
"Fencing Tonight,"
"The Vacant Chair,"
Mr. Hunting, tenor; Mr. Estabrook, tenor; Mr. Ayer, baritone; Mr. Morgan, bass; Miss Stone, organist.

—The M. E. services last Sunday evening were very interesting. After a praise service, including war-songs and other patriotic music, the pastor preached an exceptionally able and stirring memorial address on the text, "And this day shall be unto you for a memorial." Services next Sunday as usual. Topic for evening, "Solomon the Brilliant Failure."

—The following officers were elected by ballot: President, Mrs. Samuel Wright Simpson; secretary, Miss Margaret Stevenson; treasurer, Miss Daisy Earle.

—Children's day will be fittingly observed next Sunday at the Methodist church. At 10 A. M. there will be public baptism of children followed by an appropriate sermon from the pastor. At 7 P. M. the beautiful, patriotic and religious service "Our Father's Defence" will be given by the Sunday school. All are welcome.

—Dr. Winslow, now on duty in the Newton Cottage Hospital, reports the largest number of patients ever treated during any one day in that institution. This was on Wednesday, when there were 40 patients in the hospital. There have also been an exceptional number of accident, fracture, and other surgical cases besides three cases of attempted suicide, one of which proved fatal, within the past few weeks.

—About 10 o'clock Monday night Officer Burt was approached by two aged women who asked for lodging. They gave their names and ages as Mary White, 65 years, and Maria Wilson, 54 years. They said they were without money and were very tired, having walked from Swampscott, Monday. They were bound for Dedham, where they had formerly lived. They said they had no relatives, and left Dedham some time ago, looking for work in some of the summer hotels, but as so many people had gone to the World's fair the hotel business is quiet and they were unable to obtain work. The women were plainly, but neatly dressed, and looked thoroughly respectable. They were given accommodations—such as any tramp would receive, but still the best the city has. They were locked in a cell at the police station, and Tuesday continued their journey to Dedham.

—The marriage of Mr. Charles A. Worth of Watertown and Miss Minnie Henderson occurred last Wednesday evening, at the residence of the bride's parents on Fayette street. The ceremony was performed in the presence of 30 relatives by Rev. Daniel Greene, pastor of the North Evangelical church. The bride was dressed in a suit of cream colored tulle, with tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The groom was in a dark suit. Among the bridesmaids were Miss Emma Henderson and Miss Etta O. Worth as bridesmaids. The ushers were Mr. A. R. Coe and Will Henderson. Immediately after the ceremony a reception and wedding supper was given at the future residence of the newly married couple, 10 Fayette street, where they will be at home to their friends after June 20.

—Mr. Bush's barge line to Oak Square was started this week, and now runs regularly from Nonantum Square and the Newton station to Oak Square. Trips begin at 7:15 in the morning from Newton, and run every hour thereafter, except at 12:15 and 6:15, the first evening trip being made at 7:30 and the next at 8:15. Returning the barge leaves Oak Square at 7:45, and every hour thereafter, except that the 12:45 trip is omitted. The fare has been reduced to 5 cents. Passengers by the Cambridge or Newton street car lines can now connect with the Oak Square electric, and the barge will be a great convenience to ladies, as the Oak Square cars leave them right in the shopping district of Boston.

—There was a very pleasant reunion of the family of Josiah Bush, at the old homestead in New Braintree, June 1st. Mr. Bush was born in 1805, and has lived in New Braintree 53 years, and he and his wife celebrated their golden wedding in 1880. There were fourteen children, among them Mr. Geo. W. Bush of this city, of whom all but three are living, and all but one of these were present at the reunion, and the number of grandchildren, their husbands, wives and children present was forty-one. Mr. Bush is the oldest resident of New Braintree, and enjoys remarkably good health. He enjoys a well-earned competence in his old age, and enjoyed the reunion as much as any of the younger ones. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Bush and two daughters of this city were among the guests.

—The annual June Festival for the children was held at the Eliot church parlors, last evening. The children came at 5 o'clock and were entertained with games till 6:30, where supper was served. In the evening an entertainment was furnished, consisting of a slight of hand performance, and humorous recitations by two young men from Boston, which were highly enjoyed by the children, who were present in large numbers.

—Music for Grace church, Sunday evening: Professional, "O 'twas a joyful sound." Wood; Magnificat, Nune Dimittis, Wood; Sole for boy, "He giveth his beloved sleep," F. Abt; Anthem, Sing alleluia forth in duteous praise, D. Buck; Recessional, "To Thee, O dear country."

—The annual children's festival at the Baptist church was held Thursday afternoon and evening. The children were entertained from 4 to 6 with a slight of hand performance and music, with a supper at 5 o'clock. The older people gathered in the evening and were entertained by Mr. Williams, Miss Williams and Miss Mitchell of the Swiss Bell Ringers, who played on Swiss bells, gobslet, mandolin and guitar, and all sorts of odd musical instruments, which was highly appreciated by the large audience present. The serving of ice cream and cake closed a very pleasant evening.

—Mr. Walter H. Doane of Howard & Doane, was married at South Yarmouth on Wednesday afternoon to Miss Etta Frances Sears, daughter of Mr. Barnabas Sears. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's father, Rev. J. Wells McGregor of Hyannis, assisted by Rev. William Wilkinon, officiated. The bride, who carried a bouquet of bride roses, was attired in white faille francaise, with train and trimmed with point lace. The bridal party entered the parlors to a "Loehengrin" wedding march played by Mrs. C. B. Wheldon and Miss Linn Nickerson. The house was most beautifully decorated, every balustrade and mantle being intertwined and banked with evergreen and hawthorne while the parlors in which the ceremony was performed were a mass of fragrant roses and rare flowers in clusters against strings and wreaths of hawthorn, smilax and evergreen. The maid of honor was Miss Lillie A. Clark of Brewster, whose gown was a rose pink china silk. She carried a bouquet of catharine mernet roses. The best man was Mr. Herbert M. Howes of Somerville, and the ushers Messrs. Chester L. Crosby of Sagamore, D. Frank Sears of South Yarmouth, Elmer S. Bailey of Providence, R. I. and Arthur E. Shaw of Middleboro. A reception followed the ceremony for which nearly 500 invitations had been issued. A special car conveyed the bridal party and guests back to Boston. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Doane will reside on Richardson street in this city.

Boyd's Pond Nuisance.
City Engineer Noyes has prepared a plan for beautifying the Boyd pond district. For years the pond has been a breeding place for malaria and a general nuisance. It is located in Newton and Watertown, and is to be cleaned up by the city of Newton through a special act of the Legislature. At the meeting of the board of aldermen Monday evening, $9250 was appropriated for the purchase of 264,000 feet of land located in Newton and Watertown for the purpose of abating the nuisance and making the now unhealthy spot a place of beauty and a benefit to the general public.

The plan as prepared by Engineer Noyes provided for filling in the pond and grading the banks, reducing the steep bank on the north side to a pretty slope. Gravel walks are to be laid out, to be bordered with beds of flowering plants. The dam is to be taken away and a channel cut through the park to allow the free flow of water from the brook above on its way to Charles river. The brook will not be stoned up, but will be made a pretty stream of flowing water, with graceful grassed banks sloping to the water's edge.

A boulevard will be built on either side of the brook, and later it is the idea to extend the boulevard to connect with the proposed cross-town boulevard to run from Washington street to Newton Centre, work on which has already commenced.

It is expected that the aldermen will make an appropriation to carry out the plan of Engineer Noyes at their next meeting, and that the nuisance will be abated this summer.

Newton Cottage Hospital.
At the last meeting of the executive committee, there was presented some statistics by the Superintendent, Dr. F. G. Curtis, which show a large amount of work done in the ordinarily quiet month of May. On the first day of May there were twenty-two patients in the hospital. During the month there were fifty-one admitted and thirty-eight discharged, leaving thirty-five in the hospital on the first day of June. Out of the seventy-three persons treated during the month, three only died. Of these three, two were beyond human aid when they arrived at the hospital.

The work of the month has been important not merely from the number, but from the gravity of the cases.

There has been cerebral and abdominal surgery, various fractures and other injuries. On the medical side there have been cases of measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever, pneumonia, inflammatory rheumatism, dysentery, gastric ulcer, etc. The usefulness of the hospital is demonstrated anew in thus caring for a large number of very serious cases with an extremely small percentage of loss.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE BOYD'S POND ORDER PASSED—MUCH DETAIL BUSINESS.

The board of aldermen met Monday night, with all the members present and Mayor Fenno in the chair.

The reading of the records was postponed and two members were appointed to look them over.

Mayor Fenno appointed ex-Alderman Frederic M. Crehore a member of the Water Board to succeed the late Adams K. Tolman.

POLICE.

Mayor Fenno recommended the following as members of the police force for the probationary term of six months: Seth L. Johnson, Hiram B. Hartford, Charles Tapley, James J. Mullen.

Alderman Thompson moved to lay on the table for one week. Aldermen Bothfield asked what reason there was for such an unusual proceeding. If any good reason existed he was willing to vote for it.

Alderman Thompson said he knew men who had served as specials for two years, and been told that they must pass another examination, and although on the first they got 85 per cent, on the second they dropped 10 per cent. He did not think it was necessary for them to take the second examination, and wanted the matter left over till it was found whether it was necessary. He did not believe in passing over men who had served well and taking new men.

Mayor Fenno said three of the men appointed had served in the city.

Alderman Plummer endorsed Seth L. Johnson very highly, and Alderman Thompson's motion being defeated, all the appointments were confirmed.

FIREMEN.

On recommendation of Chief Bixby, Frank C. Rawson was granted an honorable discharge from the position of driver of No. 4 hose, and John R. Huggard appointed to succeed him. Joseph S. Hayes was granted an honorable discharge from No. 4 hose, and Edward S. Haynes from Engine 2, and John H. Robblee appointed on Engine 2.

The appointment of the members of No. 8 hose, Nonantum, was deferred to await an amendment of the ordinance, allowing of such increase.

Notice was received of a suit brought against the city by O. W. Tarbox, for land taken by the Sewer department. The Newton & Watertown Street Railway Co. accepted their location on Walnut street, as amended, and the Wellesley & Boston accepted the location granted them.

The list of Jurors for 93 and 94, was submitted and ordered posted.

MAGUE MEADOW.

The City Solicitor reported on the petition of N. T. Allen and other remonstrants against the assessments for the drainage of Mague meadow, that there was no question as to the powers of the aldermen to grant them a hearing, but the law provided that the assessments should be laid by the board of health, and those assessed may within three months apply for a jury, but such application had not been made, so that there was now no provision for any abatement, and neither board had the power to make it. This would not prevent a compromise being made for the sake of a settlement.

OTIS PETTEE

resigned as a member of the board of health, as his own health was not such as to permit of his doing the work necessary to be done, on account of the increase in the business before the board. The resignation was accepted.

Papers from the Common Council were received and disposed of in concurrence.

On the vote for the purchase of the Claffin estate, Alderman Roffe voted no, all the others voting in favor.

Leave to withdraw was granted to the petitioners for the sewer location at the Concord street grade crossing.

Hearings were held on the widening of Lincoln street, the acceptance of Eliot street, on taking land for sewer on Columbus place, on rounding off the N. E. corner of Elm and Webster streets; on laying out, grading and accepting Edinboro street. No one appeared at any of the hearings.

G. Lyman Snow of Auburn street, Ward 4, and E. D. Conant of Elgin street, Ward Six, were drawn as traverse jurors for the superior court at Cambridge.

STREET RAILWAY WANTS.

The Newtonville & Watertown street railway petitioned for license to connect their car house on Watertown street with their tracks, and also for a change in the location granted them from Pearl street to the Watertown line. Referred to the street railway committee and a hearing ordered for the next regular meeting.

The same company asked to be allowed to use one row of paving blocks on the inside of their rails on Watertown street, and to fill in the rest of the space with crushed stone, and have it rolled by steam roller.

Alderman Roffe moved to suspend the rules and take immediate action in the matter.

Alderman Bothfield objected, as representing the highway department, against granting the petition. The Superintendent of streets was opposed to any such change, as it made the roadbed harder to keep in repair, and heavy teams were constantly cutting up the road bed as was seen on Washington street, where much extra work had to be done to keep the road in good condition, on account of the railway. On Washington street the street railway company had of their own accord decided to put in blocks on account of the expense of the present method.

President Parker said all he wanted was to put the road in the same shape, as the Walnut street line was above Mill street. That was in good condition and had stood the wear well. The City Solicitor had one form for drawing up the street railway franchises, and always put in the paving proviso, but the aldermen had always modified it, when asked to do so. Watertown street was a broad street, and the crushed stone would be just as good as the paving; Washington street was different, it was a very narrow street, and more heavy teams passed over it.

Alderman Bothfield: This change would save the road some expense?

Mr. Parker: Yes.

Alderman Bothfield: If you were granting the franchise you might feel differently.

Mr. Parker: No, the condition of the road through Newton Highlands is very satisfactory, and shows what this would be.

Alderman Bothfield: The road there is too new too decide how it will wear. But it is a fact that there is a great deal of heavy teaming on Watertown street, the mill teams all pass over it, and the heavy wheels in crossing the tracks cut into the road bed. He would like to oblige the company but must regard first the interests of the city.

The petition was then placed on file, and the company will have to put in the paving blocks.

FIRE ALARM BOXES.

A. R. Mitchell and nine others asked for a hearing before any order was passed for the purchase of fire alarm signal boxes and the Gamewell Co. asked for the same. A hearing was granted for June 19th, at 8 p. m.

The N. E. Telephone company asked for location for poles on Centre street, between Bellevue and Mill streets, on Chapel, Cherry and Grafton streets, and a hearing was set for June 19th, at 8.15 p. m.

A petition was received for the grading and graveling of the sidewalk on Woodland street from Lincoln to Winslow.

E. H. Corey gave notice of intention to build house on Floral avenue, 20x32 feet. W. H. McOwen asked for license to build stable on Chestnut street, Ward 5, 48x25.

Miss Grace Gould, house, Tappan street, 31x39.

H. A. Spear asked for license to build addition to stable on Centre street, Ward 6, 51x12 feet.

A. J. Doane asked for license for billiard and pool room, on Oak street, Ward 5.

James Stevenson and others asked to have Willard street laid out and accepted from Hunnewell avenue to Hunnewell terrace.

The West End Street Railway asked for license to put up trolley wires on Centre street, from the Watertown line to Nonantum square.

W. F. Hahn asked for license to run telephone wire from Centre over Washington and Jefferson street.

Caroline A. Spooner gave notice of intention to build house on Oakleigh road, Ward 7; F. L. Chambers was granted license to remodel building on Brooks street.

Geo. W. Bush was granted license to run a barge from Oak Square to the Newton station, with a 10 cent fare.

The trustees of the Cottage Hospital asked for concrete crosswalk across Washington street, opposite the north entrance to the hospital.

Frank Royce gave notice of intention to build house 28x32 feet on Watertown street; Arthur French, house 46x33, with ell 10x31 on Prince street; John Nugent, house on Prospect street, 38x27, with ell 18x27; Frank Joy, corner Walnut and Lowell, 34x38 feet; W. H. McOwen, house 50x30 feet, on private way off Grove street.

D. Loring White asked for main drain and sewer on Alpine street.

Geo. Blaney and others asked to have Chestnut street from Berkeley to Fuller street, graded as provided for by plans already made, and according to the width established on said plans.

Residents on Prince and Temple streets asked for concrete walks, the petition being signed by Messrs. Bush, Luke, Peters, Wise, Robbins, Bellows, King and others.

A. F. Luke and others asked for concrete crosswalk at junction of Sewall and Prince streets.

W. L. and J. A. Dodge asked for license to build granite church, 12x110 feet, on Walnut near Washington street, for the Central Congregational society.

F. M. O'Donnell, M. D., asked to have the sewer on Crafts street extended to Washington street.

Peter Connelly asked to have his sewer assessment on Crafts street divided into 10 equal parts.

M. Mahoney asked for concrete walk on Watertown street.

Sidewalks were ordered on Newtonville avenue, Gibbs street and Lowell street.

The Village Improvement Society of Auburndale called attention to the nuisance from defective drainage on Seaverns street, and asked to have it abated without delay. Alderman Plummer said house, were built on a pond hole there, which had not been half filled up, and every time it rained the cellars were filled and stagnant pools were left. The place was on the margin of the park and was very unsightly and unhealthy. He moved it be referred to the highway committee with the request that they take immediate action.

UNION STREET.

The highway committee reported in favor of widening Union street, and an order was passed granting a hearing to property owners interested, for Monday, June 19th.

Alderman Bothfield presented an ordinance, for the inspection and supervision of electric wires; referred.

STEAM LAUNCH.

On motion of Alderman Plummer a license was granted to C. E. Berry, master, and O. E. Davis, owner of the steam launch Clito, to ply on the Charles river within the Newton limits, to carry 25 passengers.

WEST END.

An order was passed that the West End Street Railway Co., be required to use square granite blocks, for paving the inside of their tracks, and for 18 inches outside, on Centre street.

SEWERS.

Alderman Hunt from the sewer committee recommended the laying of a drain and sewer across private land from Boyd to Fayette street, and taking land therefor, and hearings were appointed for June 19 and 26.

An order was presented for a sewer on Russell Court, and hearings were appointed for June 19 and 26. Similar orders were passed in regard to sewer on Columbus place.

ARC LIGHTS.

Orders were passed substituting arc for gas lights at the corner of Lexington and Freeman streets, on Chapel street, corner Waban and Pearl, Pearl and Thornton, Walnut and Lowell, Walnut and Lincoln avenue, Chestnut, Boylston, Eliot and Mechanic, Boylston and Meredith avenue, Central avenue and Central place, Waban station, also for new street lamps on Crescent, Sharon avenue, Melrose, Harvard, Beacon, North, Carlton and Morsfield roads, Dickerman road, Oak, Reservoir, Boston, Pine, Maple, Grant avenue, Maple terrace, Washington Park, Florence and a few other streets, and petitioners for lights on Brookline, Dedham, Dudley, Hyde Park, Winchester streets and Waban avenue were given leave to withdraw.

Alderman Bothfield asked where the money was coming from to pay for all these new lights.

Alderman Roffe said the committee could furnish them and have some money to spare, at the end of the year.

Orders were passed for the proper observation of June 17 and July 4th.

WALKS.

Concrete walks were ordered on Berkeley, Prince, Foster, Eldridge and Beacon streets and Lake avenue, and walks were ordered graded on Everett and Gibbs streets and Newtonville avenue.

Water pipes were ordered laid on Adams, Crafts and Hyde streets and Warwick road at a cost of $1037.

STREETS.

Orders were passed for the widening of Lincoln street, taken the N. E. corner of Elm and Webster streets; for the laying out of Edinboro street under the betterment act.

The ordinance for the supervision of electric wires was passed to be enrolled.

BOYD'S POND.

Alderman Emerson presented an order authorizing the mayor to purchase 264,000 feet of land in Newton and Watertown, and all the rights and privileges appertaining thereto, the land being known as Boyd's pond, and appropriating $9,350 therefor, to be raised by a note for ten years at 4 per cent, to be given by the city. The order was passed.

A recess was then taken to allow the ordinance committee to read the ordinance relating to highways, which they found to be well and truly enrolled and it was passed to be ordained.

CITY STABLES.

Alderman Thompson reported an order adding $1,000 to the public property appropriation, for the purchase of some 18,000 feet of land on Auburndale avenue, to complete the city lot on which stables are to be erected, there being now only a very narrow entrance to the lot.

Alderman Bothfield asked to have it laid on the table till the next meeting, as so much money had been charged to unexpended balances that he did not think there would be any left. He thought this amount could be put in one loan with what would be needed to build the stable, and the order was tabled.

Alderman Thompson presented bills for $185 for maps used in the report of the drainage commission and they were ordered charged to miscellaneous expenses.

C. F. Hunting and others asked to have Clyde street sprinkled; referred to highway committee.

A motion of Alderman Plummer the committee on ordinance were requested to report an amendment, to provide for such addition to the fire department as might be needed.

An order was passed appropriating $250 to buy a horse for the fire department, to take the place of one disabled by a foot disease.

An order was passed appropriating $750 for the purchase of five fire alarm signal boxes.

On recommendation of the city solicitor authority was given the mayor and city solicitor, to make a reference of the Kilian case, a suit over one of the sewer contracts of last year, to some suitable party whose decision should be final. The case is known under the title of Walter Austin et al.

Alderman Thompson moved that the Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway Co. be allowed to use crushed stone inside their tracks as they desired, but the motion failed to pass.

RATHER PERSONAL

Alderman Thompson asked how much time a city official should devote to his duties. He asked the question, because he had seen that the City Engineer had been given $616 by the city of Medford for professional services. What right had he to go there without permission?

City Engineer Noyes said in explanation that two or three years ago he was asked by the Medford authorities for advice as to an addition to their water supply. He secured an engineer of large experience, but his work for Newton was so pressing that he had him work here. He never allowed anything to interfere with his work in Newton. He finally got another engineer who visited Medford, and he himself went over there two Saturday afternoons, and went over the data with him. He did feel at liberty to work at anything he desired outside of his regular hours.

Alderman Thompson said it seemed to him that the City Engineer had more to do than he could well perform, and the Water Board should have a committee of its own and relieve him of that part of his service. He had seen boys come over to the Upper Falls and measure for a water pipe and then come again after the pipe was there, he supposed, to see if their first measures were right. A man had complained to him that the street railway had laid rails on his land, and he could get no redress. If a man would not get the grade right the first time he should resign, and he thought it could save expense to give the water board a separate engineer.

The board then adjourned.

Scientific Whist.

A writer in the New York Evening Post enters a protest against the scientific whist player who, he says, gets to be "an uncomfortable sort of fellow socially, even sometimes aggressive and unpleasant, and never genial or adaptable." But the worst phase of the whist disease is that, while a man who plays a scientific game is better than always (secretly, if he does not dare openly) blames his partner. This writer concludes by saying: "All those who have not acquired the dreadful habit of strict whist will, I am sure, agree with me in warning all young men of good family, and who wish to be respectable members of society, and at some future time the fathers of young children, to avoid it, as they would strong drink." The injunction is timely, and its application may be often made.

A Summer Traveller's Guide.

The Forum Publishing Company, of New York, have published a little book that will prove of much interest to all contemplating a visit to any of the great resort sections or to any of the large cities of this country. The volume, "America's Great Resorts," is handsomely illustrated, tastefully bound, and describes in detail the leading resorts of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, the Great Lakes, the White, Catskill, Rocky and Adirondack Mountains, Niagara Falls, Florida, California, Yellowstone Park, etc., etc. The volume is for gratuitous distribution, and copies will be mailed to any address by the publishers on receipt of eight cents to cover postage.

THE SEWER ORDINANCE.

The committee on ordinances are attending to the work for which they were elected and have discussed the proposed amendments to the sewer ordinance at several meetings. It is said that they have finally agreed on the report they will make to the City Council and have prepared the draft of a new ordinance, which will more nearly meet the wishes of the people.

Instead of having one quarter of the expense borne by the city, they propose to have sixty per cent of the cost so borne, the full limit the law allows being 66 and 2/3 per cent. This would leave forty per cent to be assessed upon the owners of estates within the sewer limits.
As the legislature gave the city power to issue sewer bonds outside of the debt limit, the cost of the sewer can be paid by those who will enjoy the benefits in future years, instead of having the present owners of estates pay the whole.

The amendment will make the cost per front foot 25 cents instead of 50, and the assessment per square foot 4 mills instead of 6. This would prove a great relief to the people in moderate circumstances who own their homes, and would be a very popular measure.

The ordinance committee have certainly not lost much time in the matter, and it is to be hoped that the question will be speedily settled so that people can know what they will have to do, as the present uncertainty is not pleasant nor business like.

The present city government were elected mainly to make some such change as this and the majority was so large that their instructions might be considered to be very explicit in this matter. Of course some of them may regard their own ideas as much wiser than the wishes of their constituents, but they would be very foolish to refuse to assist in the work which they were elected to perform. Any one who has talked with many real estate owners in any of the wards where sewers have been built, especially in Wards One and Seven, Two, Three and Four, would not be left in the slightest doubt as to the general sentiment in this matter, and we believe that many will be disappointed that the full limit allowed by law was not availed of in the amendment.

WHAT'S IN A NAME.

Some years ago Mr. A. D. S. Bell built an electric railway in Quincy. Looking into the surroundings and the historical associations of that city he decided to call it the Manet Street Railway. Now comes the funny part of it.

Mr. Charles Francis Adams, with other classical writers, have taken the question up and wish to know why that word should be used or rather what is the meaning of it, and in a letter written some time ago say that it is a Latin word and in English would read "to stand by or maintain."

Mr. Bell has lately built a street running from Hammond to Ward street.
His interest in Indian names has led him things than any members of the City Council who have never paid special attention to such matters, and if his advice was not worth following he would not be fit for his position. If the new boxes should be tried in opposition to the chief, and should fail to work at some fire, it would prove a very hot box for the committee that made the experiment. If it was a question of an entire new system for the city that would be an entirely different matter, and the City Council will probably not venture to take such a great risk in this matter, as mixing up two different kinds of fire alarm boxes on the same system. What the citizens want is the best protection against fire that can be had, and they do not care about the quarrels between two rival companies or the making of any doubtful experiments.

PRESIDENT PARKER, of street railway fame, is a pretty constant attendant at the meetings of the board of aldermen, and not an unpopular one either. The board evidently likes to hear him speak, whether they grant his numerous requests or not. He always puts his requests in such a plausible manner and is so evidently honest in his statements, that it is very difficult to refuse him, and he has the art of taking all refusals with the utmost good nature. The railway authorities could not place their interests in better hands, for President Parker gets more favors than any other man could get, and never rouses any

—Mr. Fred C. Smith has gone to Philadelphia, Pa., and may eventually go south on account of health.

—Arthur Plummer left Monday on a two weeks trip to Digby, Nova Scotia, to enjoy the fishing and hunting.

—Mrs. F. A. Sawyer is having a new house built on Woodland avenue near the Seminary.

—Mrs. Alfred Brush and daughter, Miss Fannie Brush, have left town for the summer season and are at Halifax, N. S.

—The wedding of Miss Maud M. Maynard of Weston, whose engagement to Mr. William Benford Miles of Cambridge, was a short time ago announced, will soon take place at Weston.

—Wm. L. Phillips has purchased the tenorial business of Fred C. Smith and took possession Monday continuing at the old stand. He has engaged W. P. Wilbur as assistant.

—There will be a "Children's Fete Champetre" to aid the work of the St. Agnes Society of the Episcopal church of this village on the grounds of Mr. Henry Pemberton, Woodland avenue, on Saturday, June 10th, from 2 to 9 p. m. There will be a few useful articles, homemade cake, candy, ice cream, etc. for sale, and a drop a card for a descriptive catalogue of the children and a twilight bonfire.

—Prof. C. C. Bragdon of Lasell Seminary is building a new house on Seminary avenue, and it is stated that a second house is also to be built. They will be used in connection with the seminary where the accommodations are becoming limited and more room is necessary to keep pace with the growing demands of the institution. Wm. Pettigrew of West Newton has the contract.

—The choir of the M. E. church will give their last vespers service for this season on Sunday next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The hour will be devoted to sacred music, consisting of soprano, alto, tenor and bass solos, chorus choir and Amphion male quartet, assisted by Willis Nowell, violinist.

—Brakenham Pingree was taken suddenly ill on one of the trains from Boston Monday evening, and on reaching this station was put on a stretcher, taken to a carriage and conveyed to the Newton Cottage Hospital where medical aid was at once summoned to revive him. It was found that oil of cloves had been taken presumably with suicidal intent, but an overdose of the poison prevented its terminating fatally. Pingree has had considerable trouble of a domestic nature and despondency is said to be the cause of the poisoning. He was sent to his home after recovering.

—The graduation exercises at Lasell will be observed the coming week. Rev. Dr. R. Curtis of Boston will give the sermon before the graduation class on Sunday, 10:45 a. m. in the Congregational church. The class day exercises will be on Monday evening at 7:45. The Principal's reception on Tuesday evening, from 8 to 10, the regular commencement exercises on Wednesday at 11 a. m. in the Congregational church with an address by Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus, D. D., of Chicago, followed by the conferring of diplomas. The alumni reception and business meeting will be held at 2 p. m. in the Seminary chapel.

—The Methodist church will omit its morning service next Sunday, and join in a union service at the Congregational church, when Prof. Olin Curtis, D. D., of Boston School of Theology will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon before the Lasell Seminary. The Sunday school will meet at this service. In the evening at 7:30, Mr. Davis will give the last vespers service for the summer at the Methodist church. The music is to be of a high order of excellence both in its quality and rendering.

—Lasell Notes.

A party of forty or forty-five attended Sunday morning services at Trinity church and the Church of the Advent respectively, the party dividing into two sections.

Monday morning saw a merry party of thirty or more Lasell girls enroute for Wellesley College and Huxford's Gardens. Mr. Rich conducting. Though the morning was a warm one, the excursion proved delightful and was every way a success. In the afternoon a second party, numbering about as many, took the same trip, under Mr. Bragdon's escort. Those who have not yet visited these places do not realize what they have missed.

On Tuesday two fine loaves of bread, such as might delight the heart of any experienced breadmaker, were shipped to Chicago, there to occupy a place of honor in Lasell's exhibit. These were made by Miss Mabel Case, So. Manchester, Conn., and are evidence both of her ability in this line and of the practical value of the instruction in cooking furnished by Lasell.

The pupils' commencement concert took place in the gymnasium on the evening of the 7th. The pupils of Mr. Hill and Mr. Davis, and the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Nowell, furnished the entertainment of the evening. The music was rendered with the spirit and feeling that elicited prolonged applause. The concert was one of the best ever given at Lasell, and not the least enjoyable feature was the excellent character of the music rendered by the orchestra. Lasell's latest development in the musical line, and Mr. Hill's pupils did equally praiseworthy work.

On Wednesday evening, May 31st, the pupils in elocution gave a recital in the chapel, under the direction of Miss Shinn, their teacher. There were present the school and a few friends from outside. The efforts of the fair elocutionists were heartily applauded by the audience, and the entertainment they furnished much enjoyed. Those reciting were as follows: Miss Grace Snyder, "How to Do It"; Miss Blanche, "Bingen on the Rhine"; Miss Louise Hubbard, "A Roman Legend"; Miss Grace Allen, "Going Somewhere"; Miss Jennie Fitch, "Lorraine"; Miss Stella Cody, "Driving Home the Cows"; Miss Lucy Richmond, "The Swan's Nest"; Miss Louise Zschetzschke, "The First Settler's Story"; Miss Mabel Crocker, "Mother and Poet"; Miss Louise Whitney, "Timothy's Quest." Miss Shinn is to be congratulated upon her success in training her pupils.

AN INDIAN WIND SONG.

The wolf of the winter wind is swift,
And hearts are still and cheeks are pale
When we hear his howl in the dreary drift
As he rushes past on a phantom trail.
And all the night we huddle and fear,
For we know that his path is the path of death.
And the flames burn low when his steps are near.
And the dim hut reeks with his grave cold breath.
The fawn of the wind of the spring is shy,
Her light feet rustle the sere, white grass,
The trees are roused as she races by.
In the patter of rain we hear her pass,
And the bow unstrung we cast aside
While we winnow the golden, hoarded maize.
And the earth awakes with a thrill of pride
To deck her beauty for festival days.
The hawk of the summer wind is proud;
She circles high at the throne of the sun.
When the storm is fierce her scream is loud,
And the scorching glare of her eye we shun.
And oftentimes when the noon is bright
A silence falls on the choir of song,
And the partridge shrinks in a wild fright
Where a searching shadow swings along.
The hound of the autumn wind is slow;
He loves to bask in the heat and sleep
When the sun through the drowsy haze bends low.
And frosts from the hills through the starlight creep.
But oftentimes he starts in his dreams
When the howl of the winter wolf draws nigh.
Then lazily rolls in the gold warm beams
While the flocking birds to the south drift by.

THE SLIPPER TRICK.

This varnished dancing pump was slipped off the foot of an exquisite young man at a reception at one of the leading salons of Paris. My eminently correct readers need not turn up their aristocratic noses at the vulgar lack of delicacy betrayed by my exquisite young man. Let him among you who does not adore a dainty foot cast the first stone.
Octave Latourneille—that is my exquisite young man's name—was not only a perfect dancer. He possessed not only two very nimble legs, but two very nimble hands, whereof the adroitness was the admiration of all his friends. Indeed the most expert conjurer would not have been ashamed to own him for a pupil. At his word of command watches passed from one pocket to another, gold coins vanished into thin air, flowers grew upon him as if on a magical bush—he drew them forth from his pockets, his sleeves, his waistcoat, his cravat, in quantities sufficient to decorate the corsages of all the ladies present, and this after having, by way of preamble, turned his pockets inside out, rolled up his sleeves and opened his waistcoat. In a word, he was the enchanter of the best drawing rooms and the spoiled child of the ladies.
Perhaps, rather than the spoiled child, he considered himself the petted darling. At any rate he was in love, and he made that fact known with the audacity that often gives success.

The object of his adoration was the young wife of General Pascalon—it is only the husband's rank that restrains me from mentioning the disparity of their ages. But all generals have young wives, which is only another proof that the truly brave do not recoil from dangers of any kind. It is traditional in cases of this kind that the husband should be jealous, but General Pascalon was not so. But if he was not an Othello neither was he a fool.

Trusting in the loyalty of his young wife, he cherished no illusions. He enjoyed many a Palais Royal farce—with his wife by his side more often than not, which was imprudent perhaps—but he also escorted her to balls, never pleading his age as an excuse, and waited patiently for her till after the cotillon, and to all appearances his wife was quite content.

Perhaps she was so. But there were plenty of young fellows who would look down at you from the high superiority of their 25 years if you ventured to express such an idea and say:

"With an old fellow like that! Really you are too refreshing."

The general was not to be laughed at. He knew his danger, not only before all the world had seen it, but before any one else suspected it, and he saved his honor like a man of intelligence—which indeed he could have done in no other way.

And this brings us down at last to the varnished slipper of the exquisite young man.

I have said that the affair took place in the midst of a reception. Dancing was going on in the larger rooms. The general was chatting with some of the older guests in a small room adjoining the one set out with card tables. He happened to glance carelessly toward the players and started suddenly in surprise.

"Bless me," said he, putting up his glasses, "there's my wife at a whist table. I certainly thought she was waiting for polkaing or something, and there she is playing whist. She must be very tired, for she never plays cards and is always dancing. I shall have to scold her," he added, with a laugh, "for indulging herself so much in her favorite pleasure that she has to do penance at the card table," and he strolled leisurely toward the players.

A jostle knocking his glasses from his eyes as he reached the whist table, he stooped to pick them up and saw beneath the table a slipper, a patent leather pump, from which its tenant had escaped, and now, shod only in fine black silk hose, was pushed against the little foot of the general's wife. But he also noticed that the latter constantly avoided the foot that so persistently pursued her own.

"Hum," said the general, taking in the situation at a glance, "the fortress is attacked, but it is well defended. I have arrived just in time." Then, smiling calmly as if he had seen nothing, leaning over his wife's chair, questioning and advising her play, he devoted himself to a feat that would have furnished a dramatist with an irresistibly comic theme, considering the difficulties of the situation. The general had undertaken to draw toward him with the tip of his boot the abandoned slipper, provoking every instant sudden jerks from jostled feet, protestations from disturbed players, astonished looks from those who could see the extraordinary movements of his leg and the remonstrance from his wife:

"My dear, what makes you knock my chair about so? You are giving me a headache."

At this moment the mistress of the house came up to ask Latourneille if he would not perform some of his amusing tricks.

"Certainly! I shall be delighted," he answered nervously, preoccupied as he was by the extraordinary movements of the general, who stooped down just then as if to pick up something and immediately got up and left the group.

"Well, sir," said the lady, "give me your arm, and I will introduce you. Your audience is growing impatient."

"Certainly, madame, in just one moment," said Latourneille, feeling with his foot for his slipper, and so recommending the remarkable jig executed by the general a few moments before. Now the other players laughed outright—which they had not dared to do the first time. And the mistress of the house stood there, surprised at being kept waiting so long and wondering how much longer her escort would keep her in that attitude. Impatient ladies came in shoals to add their solicitations to those of their hostess.

Our young man positively had to get out of the predicament somehow. He did get out of it, but with only one shoe, for he also had stooped down and discovered the disappearance of the mis-guided slipper, and he marveled in deep anxiety how he was going to explain such a state of affairs.

His one shod foot provoked general hilarity, then delighted applause and cries of "It's a trick! It's some trick!"

The petted darling of the ladies smiled a weak smile and stammered:

"Yes, ladies, it is a trick."

Applause, accompanied by a general clapping of hands, greeted this announcement, while Latourneille kept saying to himself:

"Oh, yes, it's a great trick, but some one has played it on me, and I don't find it so very funny. If I only knew who it was"—then, struck with an idea: "Heaven! If it could be the general—his singular performance just now—and I saw him stoop down—if it was really he, it would be a pretty uncomfortable joke on me. How can I make sure?"

As he escorted the lady through the room he tried to get near the general. He managed to do so, and with the back of his hand he cautiously knocked against the pocket of the general's coat which he suspected contained the slipper. There was nothing there! He tried to sound the other pocket, but a slight move on the general's part carried him out of reach. To touch it, it was necessary to pass around on the side where it was.

"Where in the world are you taking me?" demanded the lady on his arm.

"Why—er—to the head of the room," and as he was now on the right side of the general he wanted to try the other pocket. Here was a new obstacle that he had not foreseen. The fact that the lady had the arm nearest the general made any attempt at exploration impossible. He offered the other on the pretext of an old wound which was paining him and was able at last to repeat his former tactics. This time he was satisfied. "It's there!" he murmured, and he did not enjoy the reflection that the husband of his adored one had discovered his maneuvers under the table.

"Well, I'm in a pretty mess," he concluded.

Everybody had crowded into the room, there was an expectant hush, and all were on tiptoe for the promised trick. There was no way to retreat.

"Here goes," said the imprudent lover. "I must take the plunge, come what may." And he plunged.

"Ladies," he said, "I have lost my slipper. I have not got it concealed about my person; my pockets are empty"—he turned them inside out—"nor is it in my coat"—he held it open—"nor in my waistcoat"—he unbuttoned it—"nor in my sleeves"—and he turned them up to his elbows. "You see, ladies, I have nothing in my hands or my pockets. I must find out, then, where the lost article is. Nothing is more simple. I have only to make a slight cabalistic calculation."

With this he covered his face with his hands and assumed an attitude of profound cogitation. Then, without removing his hands, he counted: "One, two, three, four, five. My slipper," he cried, "is in the left pocket of the sixth person to my right."

This person was the general.

"Not bad!" the latter exclaimed under his breath, and in obedience to the universal cries of "Search yourself, search yourself, general," he drew the slipper from the pocket indicated.

A storm of applause was evoked by the brilliant success of the trick. Then, after much whispering, several voices cried, "Oh, the general is his confederate."

"Yes, yes," came a chorus of voices; "he's a confederate."

The conjurer protested.

"Do it again, then!" some one demanded, and everybody took up the cry: "Yes, yes! Do it again!"

"Oh," said a lady, "the general has just been whispering to M. Latourneille." And the cry went up again that he was a confederate.

The general affirmed that he was in no sense furthering the conjurer's devices.

"But you were just now whispering with him," insisted the witnesses of the conference.

"The exact truth is this, ladies: You asked the conjurer to repeat his performance. I just this moment told him that it was one of those tricks that should not be tried a second time. Did I not, sir?" said the general significantly.

"Precisely, general, and I shall follow your advice," replied Latourneille. "It shall not be repeated."

And it never was.—Translated for Argonaut from the French of Jules Moutaux by L. S. Vassault.

"Nixie! The unjust swipe the umbrellas."—Exchange.

How Two Brothers Met.

There was a touching scene at the lunch counter in the Cincinnati, Hamilton, and Dayton station in Hamilton, O., a few nights ago about 10 o'clock.

Several trains pulled in at that hour, and two men rushed up to the lunch counter. The men were brothers, but they did not know it at the time. They had not seen each other for 20 years.

They were James and Charles Monroe, aged about 40 and 42 respectively, who a score of years ago lived near Springfield, Ills. They separated when young men, one finally settling at Grand Rapids, where he accumulated considerable wealth. The other went west and settled at Denver. As years wore on the brothers never heard from each other, and latterly each thought the other dead.

As they sat at the lunch counter, a friend of James called him, shouting, "Oh, Jim Monroe!" Before James could respond the gentleman sitting next to him turned, and giving him a close look said, "Are you James Monroe?" "Yes, sir," was the reply. "Who are you?" "I am your brother, Charles Monroe of Denver," replied the man.

The two men eyed each other in silence for several seconds; then there was an affectionate handshake, and tears glistened in the eyes of both.

Neither of them finished his lunch, but getting down off their stools they walked arm in arm about the station until the train left, and they went off together.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

An Odd Missouri Law.

Missouri law is sometimes comical. I read a few days ago that a new statute had been passed by the Missouri legislature which makes it a penitentiary offense for a husband to desert his wife until he has lived with her for at least 10 years. I do not know the phraseology of the statute, but it is plainly and simply interpreted, it seems, by everybody who has read it, and it means that when you marry a woman in this state you marry her for 10 years, and when you have served your 10 years you can kiss her goodby and go.

It's a sort of a tontine arrangement, I suppose. The lawmakers must have been married men with wives at home who wear the breeches or they wouldn't have taken such a practical view of matrimony and set a time limit on the marriage contract. They probably argue that the men who live 10 years with some women are sufficiently punished for their folly, and are entitled to skip if they have survived the ordeal.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Playing Santa Claus.

Charles Keene's 8-year-old son Freddie had a peculiar experience that nearly cost him his life. Freddie had climbed to the roof of a 1-story building used for cooking and washing purposes at the rear of his father's house in East Norwalk, and spying the chimney, which was about as high as his head, thought it would be great sport to play Santa Claus, climb down the flue and, like the jolly little fat man in the story book, descend to the room below.

The youngster had proceeded about five feet when he discovered that the chimney was not large enough to allow his body to pass further. His struggles to climb back again only resulted in his becoming wedged firmly in the chimney.

Workmen near by heard his cries for help and hastened to the youngster's assistance, but before he could be extricated the chimney had to be torn down.—Connecticut Cor. New York Times.

Here's a Chance.

A professional man of wide reputation, who resides at Parkersburg, W. Va., and is a great lover of aquatic sport, determined to surprise his friends here this spring by coming out with a new yacht, and as a recreation and to make the surprise more complete concluded to build the vessel himself from a model of his own.

Being the owner of a large house he went to great expense in fitting up the garret as a workshop, after which, having procured the necessary timber, he spent the entire winter at work on the boat.

He turned out a trim looking craft, about 30 feet long by 9 feet beam, manufactured his sails and got her all ready to launch when the idea dawned on him that he had made no arrangements to get it out of the building. Any one that can suggest a plan to get her out without tearing out the front or back or taking off the roof of the house can get the boat at a low price.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Prices of a Stock During a Wall Street Panic

Some idea of the character of Friday morning's speculation may be gleaned from this incident: A well known broker had an order to sell 500 shares of General Electric. When the order was sent to him, the price had already fallen from 80 to 70. By the time he reached the trading post the stock had sold at 58, and he offered his stock at that price without eliciting any higher bid than 53. Unwilling to sell at such a sacrifice he determined to wait a little and turned to execute an order in another stock in an adjacent "crowd." Returning almost directly to the General Electric post, he heard somebody bidding "nine for a hundred." He disposed of his 500 shares at "nine" and was astonished to learn that he was selling them at 69 instead, as he supposed, at 59, and the stock kept on jumping until it crossed 80.—New York Herald.

The President's Summer Home.

"Belvoir," the house in the suburbs of the national capital which President Cleveland has leased for his summer home, has an interesting history. General Winfield Scott selected the place as the site for the soldiers' home, but it was not secured, as no agreement could be arrived at with the owner. Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," spent many years of his early life at "Belvoir," and Presidents Van Buren, Tyler and Buchanan each spent several seasons there. Baron Gerault, the German minister at Washington about the time of the Mexican war, also made "Belvoir" his summer residence.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Fragment of the Pension List.

Abuses of the pension system are not all confined to men who have no possible claim on the government on account of disabilities incurred in the service. The acceptance of the nation's bounty by men distinguished and disabled to an extent in the service, but who yet do not need government aid, is open to severe criticism. The New York World publishes a small fragment of the list of veterans who, though comfortably well off and able to make a generous living in spite of disabilities, yet refuse to relinquish their claims upon the government for support. Among them is Secretary of State Gresham, married for life before Atlanta in 1864, who has still as lawyer, judge and cabinet officer, been able by his own efforts to earn a fair living. He draws a pension of $30 a month. United States Senator Manderson of Nebraska is a rich man, but continues to accept a pension of $15 a month for lost arm at Gettysburg and draws $45 a month, though successful in getting a good living. Judge Calvin E. Pratt of Brooklyn, as lawyer and judge, has attained comfortable circumstances, but the government pays him $35 a month. Rev. Dr. Green Clay Smith, pastor of a wealthy congregation at Washington, still claims compensation of $30 a month for a wound in the knee, which, however, does not appear to have affected his capacity for service as congressman for Kentucky or pastor of the church. Others in the list are Gen. Hugh Ewing, a leading and wealthy lawyer of Ohio, who draws $30 a month for rheumatism contracted in the army; ex-Congressman Newberry, a Chicago millionaire, who accepts $12 a month for general disability; Gen. Neal Dow of Portland, who is wealthy and draws $7.50 a month for a wound in the thigh which has never been known to hinder his activity and service in business and prohibition politics; ex-Gov. Chase of Indiana, of abundant means, who draws $12 a month for general disability; and ex-Gov. Dick Oglesby of Illinois, who, though well off financially, accepts $8 a month for services in the Mexican war.

We probably could not rate too highly the services to the country of these men, or their patriotic devotion to the cause of freedom. Most, if not all, of them are entitled to pensions, no doubt, under the law. Many of them may at one time have actually needed the pension money. But that time is past. However greatly disabled physically or otherwise in the government's service, they have yet been able to acquire a competence far above the average. They have been highly successful in the struggle for a livelihood. They do not need the money. And the sight of wealthy men keeping hold of to them a pitiful claim upon the government of $12 or $45 a month for partial disability is rather calculated to impress the public with the grab-all nature of a good part of the pension-roll than to increase popular respect for it. And it cannot be questioned that it tarnishes the splendor of their patriotism.—Springfield Republican.

The Choir Festival Music.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

On this morning of rarest beauty (June 5th) I want to write a word in memory of the high delights of last evening. While nothing can exceed the strong and earnest sermon in power to satisfy the mind, rouse the best feelings, and sway the life, such as the faithful heard in the morning on the service of The King in every capacity; yet the value of a service mostly of sacred song is by no means to be underestimated. At the least, even its negative value is great in placing, elevating, refining, purifying influences instead of debasing or belittling ones; influences, in short, that must be resisted in order to enter into wrong doing. Not least among these influences was the simple spectacle of so many young heads, all intent on their work, and on doing it well. With the elders, it was partly a matter of trained skill, and facility acquired by years of practice. But with the boys (bless them) it was, that, as a philosopher would say, they are so keenly alive to objective realities. That is, their quick eyes intently see the place and length of every note, and their voices respond as quickly as the organ key to the touch; their minds being all undistracted by self-consciousness, or reflections or whys, hows, and consequences.

But to the music, itself, a moment. First, let all rejoice in the existence in Newton of an organ by builders who, in my amateur judgment, for many years, are on the whole inimitable. The softer base stops of "stringy" effect just like a "double base" viol, the lighter reeds like violins, or clarinets. The fuller power never ceasing to be rich, full and sweet, or becoming thunderous, roaring, growling, harsh or piercing. And then it possesses the most important of all characteristics, proportion to the building. More than once, far and near, have I seen and heard organs, altogether too large for their location, overflowing and bursting out of their places, large enough for a cathedral, and gratifying to nothing better than the vulgar spirit of brag of mere bigness. In some organs too, some of the larger reed stops are more to the ear what scrap tin is to the hands, than like a breeze through a pine grove, as in the magnificent Tremont Temple organ, whose destruction was no less than a public calamity.

Mr. Editor: In these days of praise for concealed purposes, I am bound to add that these remarks about organs are solely in the interest of art, for the writer has no acquaintance, whatever, with any organ builder.

There is no space left for detailed notice of the separate numbers on the program. The selections and performance were good, the solos modestly and sweetly given in clear flute and clarinet tones, and the total, balances, rich, firm, and strong. I am no composer or professional critic, yet know instantly what pleases me and why. Man's works are perfect in proportion as they resemble those of nature, which are God's. Thus, "How beautiful upon the mountains" was exquisite as is a quiet and charming landscape. But the recessional hymn was, to my ear, the gem of the evening, simple as it was; first, because of a graceful yet spirited melody running through it, because it so readily suggested the rippling waves at Revere on a calm day. One wave of melodious harmony flows in, then the next a little further and then a double wave ends before the lull which precedes a new beginning. And so the little fellows hearts were evidently brimmed with it as they whistled snatches of it here and there on the green grass, in the dusky shades and soft air of that rare Lord's Day evening, the light notes pleasing the ear as the glad light of the "lightning bug" does the eye. Thanks to them and all the choir for the pleasure which their laborious and probably somewhat self-denying preparation, and honest, earnest performance gave us all. And now a short moral twist to my last line. Shall someone instruct their young lives in evil, so as then to warn them against it? No; a thousand times no. Let their hearts be continually occupied with pure sweet thoughts from all sides to bubble forth in their lives, as the great hill supplies the cold spring at its foot with sparkling water bubbling up through the clear, white sand. So shall they go on "singing the psalms of God," as said the great and loving Bishop, and their lives shall unfold gracefully "in the light of His countenance." W.

Flowering Shrubs for the Garden.

The Garden and Forest gives the following valuable hints:

The abundant flowering of many small Apple-trees, this spring, reminds us of the pleasant duty of calling our readers' attention again to the beauty and value of these plants, which should find a place in every garden in this northern climate. The number and variety of Apple-trees with beautiful flowers and of good habit is considerable. The earliest to bloom are some of the white-flowered varieties of the Siberian Crab, Pyrus baccata. The young plants are noticeable for their formal pyramidal habit; this disappears as they grow to their full size and the mature plants present a more irregular, bushy outline. The flowers are large and snowy white, or they are often pink, for no tree varies more in the size and color of its flowers or in the character of the fruit, which is sometimes exceedingly beautiful, and often remains on the branches through the winter.

The next species to flower is the Japanese Crab, Pyrus Toringo, which is often found in gardens under the name of Pyrus Malus floribunda. This, it seems to us, is the most beautiful of its race and one of the best ornamental plants in cultivation. It is particularly beautiful before the leaves expand, when the bright red flower-buds cover the branches. The Japanese crab should be planted in rich soil and allowed plenty of room in which to spread its wand-like branches. The portrait of a well-grown specimen of this tree was published in this journal some years ago (vol. ii., p. 523), and gives a better idea of the masses of flowers it is capable of producing and of its surpassing loveliness than any words can convey. Improving with age, the Japanese Crab grows more beautiful every year; the severest winter leaves it unharmed, and insects and disease pass it by. The variety with bright pink semi-double flowers, known as Pyrus Parkmanii, is equally beautiful, although it is rather less robust plant.

The flowers of the Japanese Crab are followed almost immediately by those of the Chinese Pyrus spectabilis, a bushy tree of spreading habit, known in our gardens in a double-flowered form only. This is one of the good old-fashioned trees our grandfathers planted, and the present generation knows little about it. It is hardy, long-lived, not too large for a small garden or lawn, and so conspicuous in flower that the most careless and indifferent passer-by stops to admire its branches wreathed in pink and white.

This is the season of the year when the owners of gardens should inform themselves about such plants as these; and this is the time to order such plants, instead of waiting until next spring, when the nurserymen will have disposed of their best stock. The advice we give to persons who want a good garden is to make notes of the plants they see and admire now, and order them at once, prepare the ground carefully where they are to be planted, and then plant in the autumn or as early as possible next spring.

Hardup: "The amount of your bill, doctor, has made me feel quite ill." Doctor (gleefully): "Has it, sir? Then I suppose you will want me to attend you professionally again?"—Tid-Bits.

Could not Keep

Shop without them. I consider your Sulphur Bitters a remarkable blood purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been entirely cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulphur Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

Didn't Want a Girl.

Last summer my wife's health was all run down, and she wanted me to hire a girl to do the work. In a little while I found one I thought would suit her, when to my surprise she said I need not hire any one, as she felt much better, and thought another bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla would cure her. —Mr. H. A. Spear is having quite a large addition built to his stable, to accommodate his increasing business. The office of the Adams Express Co. is at its former location in Stevens block in the office of Mr. Spear.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Stevens of Lincoln street, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, on Monday, June 5th, which was attended mostly by the relatives of the family from the near by towns.

—Mr. John R. Henderson, while attending to his duties as janitor at the Congregational church, on Monday, was prostrated by the heat, and was taken to the Cottage Hospital in a critical condition.

—As Mrs. Cram and maid were out riding on Tuesday, the horse shied when the electric car was passing, and the carriage striking a tree, both were thrown out. Mrs. Cram received some bruises, but the maid was uninjured. The horse cleared himself from the carriage and was secured after going a short distance.

—A large audience were present at the Memorial services at the Congregational church, last Sunday morning. Suitable decorations consisting of flags and bunting and pot plants banded around the pulpit in a very tasteful manner, gave a fine effect. The members of Chas. Ward post, E. Gott, commander, were present and all listened with close attention to the very able sermon by Rev. Dr. Dunning, and the fine selections of music by the quartet.

—Sunday's music at Congregational church.

Chorus, "O Come let us Sing." Dorr Response, "Father, day by day." Gerrish
Offertory, "Now Heaven in fullest glory." Dorr Benediction and hymns from Haydn's "Missa."

After sermon, "Abide with me," Dorr
Mr. Hunting, tenor; Mr. Estabrook, tenor; Mr. Ayer, baritone; Mr. Morgan, bass.

—The list of jurors has been posted, and the following persons residing in this village are among the number: E. E. Bird, L. K. Brigham, B. F. Butler, Jr., M. G. Crane, E. Gott, C. H. Guild, E. J. Hyde, W. T. Logan, G. May, W. S. Richards, H. A. Spear, H. W. Taylor.

—The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Stevens was the scene of a very pleasant reception last Monday evening it being their twenty-fifth anniversary.

—Mr. Henry W. Savage has just closed one of the important deals of the season. He has sold 80,000 square feet of land on Winchester and Needham streets. This land is known as the old Winchester place, and has been bought by a syndicate. The land will be cut up into building lots, streets will be cut through, and many improvements are to be made which will entirely transform the old place. The terms are private.

—We note that our city fathers have ordered the ringing of the bells on the 17th of June. It is to be hoped that some competent person will be engaged to do that service in this village for such ringing as we had last year was more than the patriotic citizens can stand. Let it ring not toll. The same will also apply to the glorious 4th of July.

—The choir of St. Paul's church under the charge of Choir Master Shelton participated in the service of the third annual festival of the Massachusetts Choir Guild in Emmanuel church, Boston, on Thursday of this week. Mr. George L. Osgood was the conductor. The music was of a high class and difficult to sing but was admirably rendered. Master Franklin L. Wood was accorded the distinction of singing the soprano solos.

—The work of excavation and the building of the foundation walls for the Patterson block, for which was awarded to Mr. T. D. Sullivan, who has the reputation of doing first-class work and doing the same promptly, has been completed, and we hear to the satisfaction of Mr. Patterson. The work of building the walls has been awarded to Messrs. Johnson Bros. of Brookline and will be commenced immediately. The wood work will be done under the supervision of Mr. J. C. Newcomb.

—The Congregational Sunday school will hold its annual "Children's day" festival exercises in the church, Sunday evening, June 11, 6.12 o'clock. The program is made up of a procession, responsive readings, choruses and recitations, with out sermons and with special music. At each service an anthem will be sung by the choir and there will be at least two solos. The usual choir will be augmented. For next Sunday Mr. H. P. Ayer, baritone, will be the soloist and will sing, (a) Recitative and aria "The People that walked in Darkness" from Handel's Messiah. (b) Abide with me (arranged) Nessler. The choir will sing the anthem, "To Thee do I lift up my soul," King Hall.

—The E. C. Frost estate on Chandler place has been purchased by Mr. Harry Dresser.

—Mrs. Otis F. Pottee, Jr., of High street is at Chicago enjoying the attractions presented by the World's Columbian exposition.

—Michael Cannon, driver on one of Wood, Barker & Co's lumber teams, was thrown to the ground from a horse loaded team in entering the Echo Park grounds Wednesday afternoon, and sustained a compound fracture of the leg. The patrol wagon was summoned and he was conveyed to the Newton Cottage Hospital.

—Mr. Lorenzo W. Penney is enjoying a short vacation from the Pottee machine works, and it is whispered that he will bring a Lowell lady with him as Mrs. Penney on his return, the wedding occurring Thursday.

—Andy Donovan, who has charge of this section of the highway system, is keeping the streets about the village in fine condition, comparing favorably with the most travelled sections in the city.

—The new postoffice sign, put up for Postmaster Billings this week, is a handsome article and conforms to the latest postal regulations. It is so dim at frequent intervals as to be practically useless.

—The new postoffice sign, put up for Postmaster Billings this week, is a handsome article and conforms to the latest postal regulations. It is so dim at frequent intervals as to be practically useless.

—H. A. Sherman, Jr., has purchased a new democrat wagon.

—Hickey's Paper Mill has been shut down this week, caused by the bursting of one of the head gates in the dam. It will be re-opened within a few days and work resumed.

—Dr. H. G. Hildreth's residence, High street, appears to advantage in a new coat of paint.

—Alderman Thompson is having extensive alterations and additions made to his present residence on Oak street, which will greatly improve its appearance and convenience.

—Some complaint is being found with the unsteady burning of the light in Postoffice tower. The light is so dim at frequent intervals as to be practically useless.

—A party of young gentlemen leased the Quinobegun alleys Tuesday and brought their lady friends with them to bowl. The entrance of some evening strollers who supposed the alleys to be open had the effect of hunting up a key, with which the party afterwards kept the alleys free from intrusion.

—Messrs. Hagerty Bros. horse, attached to their big butcher cart, got away Tuesday morning when the bridle was slipped off the head to be fixed, and ran up Elliott street, overturning and demolishing the valuable cart and strewn Elliott street with meat and provisions. The horse ran to Needham Plain where he was caught attached to the forward wheels of the cart.

—The Cambridge Reds came here Saturday and defeated the Gamewell team quite handsly. The score:

Innings. Cambridge. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9

Earned runs, Cambridge Reds 4. Two-base hit, Shaughnessy. Stolen bases, Cambridge 5. Hobson 2. Sacrifice hits, Cambridge 2. Hit by pitched ball, A. Russell, Ray. Time 2h. 5m. —The Waban Racquet Club will hold an open tennis tournament, in gentlemen's singles only, on its grounds, Boyd street, June 17. Play will begin at 9 o'clock and continue throughout the day. Three prizes will be offered, the first prize, the wind up, and the consolation. About 20 entries are expected, and some fine playing is promised.

—Timothy Donnelly, driver for Lewand's French Dye House, was thrown out of his wagon against a telegraph pole on Washington street near the electric car station on Tuesday. His horse took fright at a passing train and ran away. Dr. Winslow was called and found he had sustained a fracture of the hip and sent him to the Newton Cottage Hospital.

—The letter carriers of the State formed an association at the United States Hotel, Boston, last Saturday evening, and enjoyed a dinner at which Carriers James Dunn and P. R. Mullen of Newton, were respectively president and secretary. The temporary association was afterwards made permanent. The credit of the organization is due to the Newton carriers, who started the plan and carried through all the arrangements. Every city in the State was represented among the 93 present at the dinner.

—The bogus freight agent has put in an appearance here and three attempts to collect money on forged freight bills have been reported to the police. The story he tells is that a tub of butter or some other perishable stuff is at the freight depot, awaiting the payment of freight charges, and if the amount (the forged freight bills are generally for about $4) is paid to him, he will see that the goods are delivered within a few hours. The swindle, however, has been well advertised and failed to work in each case.

—The Newton Christian Endeavor Union held its last meeting before the summer vacation, with the Pilgrim Society, at the Methodist Episcopal church, Newtonville.
The vestry was the evening by a Cornu-flower and a large number of Endeavorers were present. The officers of the Union held an informal reception during the first part of the evening, which was followed by a grand consecration service conducted by Mr. Charles W. Davidson. It was a most interesting and helpful service.

—There were two runaway accidents last Saturday night, which fortunately were not serious. One happened at the Centre street crossing when a frightened team broke through the gates, but the driver jammed one of the wheels against a post and so held the team till the train that was coming had gone by. Daniel Scully's horse of Brighton also ran away, broke loose from the wagon and turned up the railroad tracks at Church street and was caught at Newtonville.

—Children's Sunday was observed at the Methodist church, Sunday morning with a sermon specially for children by Rev. Mr.
Bronson, and in the evening by a Columbian concert. The church was decorated with bunting and many flowers. The exercises were from the form gotten up by the Methodist board of education and consisted of music and recitations. One character represented America, and the others told her of the dangers before her and about her, and gave her wise counsel, the whole concluding with the singing of America.

—The Methodist Sunday school had a delightful time at their picnic last Saturday at Forest Grove, Waltham. They left Newton at 9 by the Newton electric and returned at 6. One of the great events of the day was the ball game between the married and the single men, which every one witnessed, and was enthusiastic over. The young men were sure of winning and their young lady friends had secured some very handsome prizes to be given to their favorites, and of course they were much disappointed to see the married men win by a score of 9 to 7. Nevertheless the prizes were given with outward cheerfulness.
There was a great abundance of refreshments, and all sorts of amusements for the little ones, and all had a very jolly time.

—One of the most important sales of real estate made in Newton for some time has just been negotiated by Mr. Edward F.
Barnes, who has sold the John Cheney Potter estate on Walnut Park, to Mr.
Joseph F. Flanagan of Newbury street,
Boston, a business partner of Col. A. M.
Ferris of this city. The estate consists of the handsome mansion house, gardener's cottage, stable and over three acres of land fronting on Walnut Park and Washington street, and Mr. Flanagan will take possession October 1st. The price is reported to have been close to the assessed valuation, and the sale indicates a return of confidence in property on the north side of the track, owing probably to the near prospect of the abolition of grade crossings and the widening of Washington street, which will enhance the value of all the north side property. The estate is one of the handsomest in Newton, and it is located on one of the prettiest parks in any of the suburbs of Boston.

—The Channing Sunday school will observe children's day next Sunday.

—Mrs. U. C. Crosby gives an "At Home" next Monday from 4 to 6 p. m.

—The Nonantum Club has announced a members' tennis tournament for Friday, June 16. The competition will be in singles and doubles.

—Miss Clara L. Bowers was one of the vocalists at a pupils' concert given last Saturday in the New England Conservatory. She was in fine voice and acquitted herself creditably, winning deserved praise for her good work.

—Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Coburn of Franklin street have returned from Chicago.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Haskell of Sargent street, arrived home Monday from their visit to the World's fair.

—Dr. William Jones, who formerly resided at California street, and graduated from the high school a few years ago, has been appointed house surgeon at St. John's Hospital, Lowell.

—Jerry Daley, one of the drivers for Howard Brothers, was thrown out of his wagon by a collision on Pearl street, last evening. At first he was thought to be seriously injured, and he was taken to Dr.
Stearns' office, but fortunately his injuries proved very slight.

—Mr. Frank D. Frisbie is at Nahant for two weeks, visiting his cousin, Judge Wilson.

—The Hickory Wheel Co. is to be moved to South Framingham, the Columbia company having bought the Para Rubber Shoe Company's plant.

—The Virginia Lutea, which blooms rarely, is full of blossom this year, and the trees make a very handsome sight with their many white flowers.

—Mr. Robert S. Coday is taking a much needed rest in Canterbury, N. H.

—Rev. Mr. Calkins gave an interesting sermon, Sunday morning, with special reference to children, and the Sunday school exercises afterwards were prepared for the children's day anniversary. Each child, according to the pleasant custom at the church, was given a flowering plant to take home with them.

—The Newton Free Library was represented at the meeting of the State Library at the meeting of the State Library on Monday by Miss Thurston and the Misses Stewart, Cleveland, Bassett, Wood and Dennen.
The addresses by Chas. Francis Adams and Col. T. W. Higginson were of special interest to those engaged in library work.

—The Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its next meeting at the residence of Mrs. Katharine Lette Stevenson, 95 Hunnewell avenue, Monday evening, June 19, at 7.45. A cordial invitation is extended to all the young people of Newton.

—J. Henry Bacon's dry good store will be open to-morrow, June 17th, until 10 o'clock in the morning and after six o'clock in the evening.

—An Odd Fellows' memorial service will be held in the Newtonville Universalist church Sunday afternoon. The various I. O. O. F. organizations of the city will participate. There will be a sermon, singing and addresses.

—Dr. Travis, a colored man, was arrested in New Bedford Wednesday on complaint of J. H. Holmes of Newton, who claimed that he obtained money from him under false pretences. Holmes says that he worked the "banco" game, telling him that a fortune had been left him by a relative in the Barbadoes. He told so pleasantly a yarn, according to Holmes' version of the affair, that he (Holmes) parted with $48, a sum which Travis was to use in collecting the legacy. Another colored resident, Dea.
Johnson of the West Newton district, says that he gave Travis $80 to collect a fortune which he was informed had been left him, but the expected failed to happen, and the deacon's bright prospects of wealth gradually faded into thin air. In the police court yesterday Travis was granted a continuance until today. He claims that the transactions with Holmes and Johnson were straight, and that the sums in each case were loaned.

Lasell Notes.
Full report of the commencement exercises will be found on another page.

The greater part of the pupils left on Thursday for their homes in various parts of the country.

The custom of the Sabbathal year of rest for teachers, has for sometime obtained at Lasell Seminary, each one in turn having an entire year of rest with full salary continued. It is Miss Carpenter's turn next, and her pupils will miss her very much for the incoming school year.

Considering the crowded condition of the gymnasium on several musical occasions of the present year, the audience of Wednesday night, June 7th, seemed pitifully thin, that room being scarcely more than half-filled, and that largely by students on the occasion of the commencement concert. Is it possible that the fact that the others were free and this was not free, made all this difference? The concert itself was one of the best ever given at Lasell Seminary; but the only concert in the year to which any admission fee is exacted, that of commencement season, has of late years been given with plenty of empty chairs; while on every free evening (and every other evening in the year is free) the gymnasium is crowded to excess.

The audience at the commencement exercises were invited by Mr. Bragdon to the seminary for luncheon, and the social enjoyment of the afternoon following the more formal exercises in the church, and after the graduates had received the congratulations of their friends, and the many beautiful gifts of flowers had been bestowed, nearly the whole assembled company proceeded to the seminary. The preventing the lunch from being given on the lawn as usual, it was served in the dining room by the debt hands of the students, who certainly reflected great credit upon themselves by their skillful performance of an unaccustomed duty. At two o'clock the Alumnae meeting closed the business of commencement day, though not its social pleasure, guests lingering in the house till the close of the day. Altogether it was a very enjoyable and very successful commencement.

tend St. Mary's church in a body Sunday morning, June 25th, by invitation of their chaplain, Rev. H. U. Monro, rector of St.
Mary's, who will deliver a discourse. All old members in this vicinity are cordially invited to be present on this occasion.

—Children's day was observed at the Methodist church on Sunday last with appropriate services. In the morning the pastor, Rev. S. H. Howard, gave an interesting discourse to the children of the Sunday school and congregation, from the text "Remember now thy Creator." In the evening the customary concert was held by the school, with recitations and music.

Fest and Recreation for Working Women in Newton.

We would gladly call the attention of the public to the sale to be held on Tuesday, June 27th, from two to six o'clock
p. m. in Miss Speare's school rooms, Washington street, Newton. The proceeds of the sale will be devoted to vacations for tired working women in Newton.

This is the third annual sale. As the result of last year's efforts, twelve persons were given vacations of one or two weeks each, while day trips and car rides were afforded to twenty-five others. Let us make the sale more of a success this year than ever before, that many more tired mothers and sick children may have rest and recreation. C. W. J.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

DISCUSS THE SEWER ORDINANCE IN EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Both branches of the city council met Monday evening. In the upper branch all the aldermen were present and Mayor Fenno presided.

Alderman Rumery reported that the committee had examined the records for the past month and found them correct as far as they could remember.

M. L. Caswell asked for license to build a stable 14x10 on Otis street.

Residents on Lowell and Edinboro streets asked for concrete crosswalk at the junction of those streets.

Joseph Heustis gave notice of intention to build house 26x30 with all 17x18 feet on Central street.

A main drain and sewer was asked for on Crafts street, from Watertown to Central avenue; on Prescott street, from Lowell street to Central avenue, and on Temple street from Prospect street easterly, and orders were passed for their construction.

W. H. Ireland gave notice of intention to build house 25x28 feet on Irving street.

Fred W. Gates, house 30x30 feet on Beacon street.

The highway committee recommended the rounding off of the southeast corner of Lincoln and Woodward streets, and an order was passed granting a hearing to property owners interested, on June 26.

The highway committee reported in favor of referring the drainage of the stagnant water on Woodbine street to the board of health.

Various petitioners were given leave to withdraw.

Francis E. Bridgman gave notice of intention to build a house on Elmhurst road, and Louisa R. Ford, a house on Tremont street.

Edward Croise asked for concrete walk with edgestones on Watertown street.

An order was passed appropriating $2500 for the widening of Union street at Newton Centre.

The highway committee reported in favor of widening Hull street to a width of 40 feet, from Walnut to Appleton street, and a hearing was granted to the property owners interested, on June 26, at 7:30.

C. A. Butterworth gave notice of intention to build house 35x47 feet, with ell, on Chase street.

Geo. W. Lamson was granted an innholder's license.

On motion of Alderman Emerson, so much of the order as changes the $500 for the purchase of 40 acres of land in Auburndale for park purposes, the $6000 for the parkway from Newtonville avenue to Cabot street, to unexpended balances or to the taxes of 1933, was repealed, and an order was then passed authorizing a note for $14,000, to run 10 years at 4 per cent, the proceeds to be used as follows: $5500 for the Auburndale park, $6000 for the parkway from Newtonville avenue to Cabot street, and $2500 for the widening of Union street.

Orders were passed for concrete walks in front of the estate of the Farlow heirs on Church street, and also on Pelham street.

On motion of Alderman Emerson $11,383 was appropriated for interest on sewer bonds, and charged to the assessment of taxes for 1933.

The city treasurer was ordered to pay over to the sinking fund commissioners the sum of $25,000 for the sinking fund for water bonds.

F. B. Sisson was granted a license for a stable 14x17, on Washington street, Ward 2.

$67,700 was appropriated for city expenses during July.

On motion of Alderman Rumery, the order appropriating $750 for new fire alarm boxes was reconsidered and tabled, till after the hearing.

On motion of Alderman Bothfield the ordinance relating to electric wires was reconsidered, as the electric light and telephone companies claimed that it was too severe, and asked for a hearing. The order was recommitted to the ordinance committee.

An order was passed for a street lamp on Chestnut street.

On motion of Alderman Hunt, Chapter 389 of the acts of the General Court of 1893, relating to the appointment of sewer assessors, was accepted. It provides for the appointment into 10 equal parts of the assessment, if application is made within 30 days, and that these parts can be added to the annual assessments for taxes, and also that at any time the whole tax can be paid.

The Brookline selectmen gave notice of their agreement to the conditions for building a sewer in Middlessex road.

The Wellesley & Boston Street Railway company accepted the location granted them, and the conditions imposed.

Alderman Plummer called attention to the city garbage, which was still a very unsavory subject, he said, and last Saturday night, especially, it was very offensive. He thought the contractor must be getting lax again and asked the board of health to look the matter up.

The board then took a recess and afterwards went into committee of the whole, with closed door, to discuss the proposed amendments to the sewer ordinance.

Common Council.

President Weed presided at the meeting Monday evening, and all the members were present except Councilmen Tolman, Ross and Turner.

After the records of the last meeting had been approved papers from the board of aldermen were taken up.

The petition from the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Co. for a hearing on the matter of fire alarm stations caused quite a breezy discussion of the matter and ended in an emphatic refusal to allow such a hearing.

Councilman Staples provoked the discussion by inquiring the reason for a hearing.

Councilman Bennett could see no good reason for granting such a petition. It would be a severe criticism on the fire committee, who were appointed to attend to this matter, and after months of consideration had recommended the municipal boxes rather than the Gamewell. The company has had hearings before the committee and their factory has been visited and their boxes inspected, and then the committee refused to recommend them. If a hearing were allowed it would establish a bad precedent.

Councilman Knapp thought the matter had been sufficiently ventilated and moved to have the petitioners withdraw, but his motion was declared out of order.

Councilman Green thought a hearing would be no reflection on the committee, and if more light could be thrown on the matter by a hearing it should be granted. They have furnished the city with boxes for years and their past reputation should entitle them to a hearing now.

Councilman Bennett did not believe in one company having a monopoly and the city pay them $50 more per box than seemed at all necessary.

Councilman Parker, a member of the fire committee, showed the great anxiety manifested by the Gamewell folks to have their boxes used, by saying that after the first bid the Gamewell Co. came to the committee and wished to bid a second time. After they bid the second time the committee awarded the contract to another company, and now the Gamewell Co. ask for a hearing. The committee had gone into the matter very thoroughly, and after a good deal of work had decided another box to be the best.

Councilman Green thought that while the city council of Newton had a chief upon whom they lean, they should be guided by his knowledge of electrical apparatus.

Councilman Knapp thought the committee was composed of competent men to deal with the matter. If a hearing was given one company the other was entitled to the same privilege.

Councilman Hatch did not believe there was good reason for a hearing, and should oppose it.

Councilman Bennett said if this was an experiment he should be very slow to recommend a mixed system, but when they were working satisfactorily in large cities like Boston, Worcester, Cambridge and numerous others he saw no reason in the city of Newton paying $50 more for a box to the Gamewell Co. They offer bonds, and if the boxes are unsatisfactory will take them out at their own expense.

Councilman Briston believed it no more than courtesy they should be heard. It need make no difference in the recommendation of the committee.

Councilman Deen opposed a hearing. He did not think the judgment of the chief of fire department should supersede that of a committee composed of perfectly competent gentlemen.

A vote was then taken and a hearing for June 26 refused.

At 7:45 o'clock hearings were opened for taking land for sewer in Central place, widening of Lincoln street, laying out and acceptance of Edinboro street and Eliot avenue, rounding corner of Elm and Webster streets, and no remonstrances appearing, were closed.

Papers from the aldermen were passed in concurrence until 5:45, when a recess was taken, and the council went into joint session with the other branch to discuss the new sewer ordinance.

Upon reassembling the council made a demand for two orders, one appropriating $750 for fire alarm stations and the other the ordinance relating to the inspection and supervision of wires. Both of the orders had been tabled by the board of aldermen, and Clerk Kingsbury acting under instruction refused to produce them. The council desired both orders before proceeding and an order was then passed requesting the opinion of the city solicitor, as to when the orders should come before the council.

The ordinance prohibiting city officers from taking active part in political organizations came down to be ordained and the council refused its passage.

Posting Their Names.

There is a singular correspondence between the vote on Thursday in the Senate in favor of killing the anti-stock watering bills by reference to the next Legislature and that on Friday in favor of making a similar disposition of the Lyford gas bill. Thirteen of the 17 or 18 names recorded in the one case in favor of granting to quasi-public corporations the privilege of doing as they please, also appear in the other. They are as follows:

F. P. Arnold of North Pembroke, C. H. Baker of Lynn, Luther Dame of Newbury, Stephen A. Hicks of Williamstown, E. S. Horton of Andover, Henry A. Kimball of Northampton, Frederick Lawton of Lowell, John F. Merrill of Quincy, Hiram A. Monk of Campbell, George K. Nichols of Grafton, Samuel L. Sawyer of Danvers, E. P. Shaw of Newburyport, E. H. Shaw of Chelsea and Ford.

As these senators must be proud of their record there can be no injustice done to them in posting their names, says the Springfield Republican. But it is only fair also to the people of the districts represented by them to know that they appear to be in favor of repealing instead of enforcing the long established policy of this state prohibiting corporations holding monopoly franchises given by the public from levying monopoly burdens and taxes on the public through inflated capitalization; and that they appear to be opposed to the enforcement of the spirit and letter of the laws already made in restriction of the power of these quasi-public corporations to plunder the people, when any such offender is caught. As representatives of the corporations, at least, their services at the state-house have been of marked value.

Bethel, Maine.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

This is early for summer correspondence. But the writer, having twice passed through the beautiful region of Bethel, Me., ventures to make a suggestion which may be useful, where so many are asking: Where shall we go? Bethel has been called the "North Conway of Maine," by a no less fond lover of the hills than the late distinguished Starr King. Not all the places, or names are found either in guide books or newspapers, hence the writer is glad to volunteer to add to the list of inexpensive resorts, on the recommendation of those who know the address, Maple Lane Farm, West Bethel, Me., on a smooth stretch of the wild Androscoggin, and central to many interesting places to visit, and, as the writer knows by repeated experience, in a region of delightful hill and river beauty. Inspired Pam.

The poem read by the Newton Club poet at the late banquet of the Newton Club has been rescued from oblivion and is here confided to the public and to posterity. It fairly bristles with puns and witty allusions, and had a most enthusiastic reception at the dinner. It is inscribed:

TO HENRY E. COBB, ESQ.

Here's a welcome, Mr. President, of the very warmest kind,
From the Newton Club's Four Hundred, who were doomed to stay behind;
When you left the classic precincts of your Garden City home.

For a trip to England, Scotland, France and dear malarial Rome,
We trust you suffered no great stir from Neptune's odious tactics,
Or that, at least, you had on board some Brush's Tropic-tactics.

It beats all pills, and cures all ills from cholera toague;
As you controlled, so I am told, by Mr. Charles H. Sprague
The scene seemed out of balance when you left your native shore.

So Spain sent us the Infanta, Marie-Eulalie-Francoise D'Assise Marguerite Roberte-Isabelle-Francoise de Paul Christine-Marie de la Victoire, the equilibrium to restore.
The coin you took to spend abroad put Carlisle in a plight.

He had to try the Gold Cure when the market it got tight,
The Gold Reserve quite lost its nerve, and Cordage went to naught;
For ropes can do most anything that's bad, when they are taut.

Team Tare has scooped the bowling prize—we won it with hands down—
With Benyon for our fifth-class man, we did Inspector Hawley made his rounds on horseback just the same.

Although the sewer's being laid has spotted his little game,
The Club's affairs, so it appears, have no need for improvement,
Though some have planned, I understand, to crush the "Early Closing Movement."

The gamblers kick and growl and fume; and swear—the more the merrier to restore.
Next year, I trust, the men who've cursed will be on the Committee.

Now here are some conundrums I would really like to ask,
To answer which it would not seem to be a serious task.
Did you visit Queen Victoria, and did she return the call?

And chat about the Grand Old Man, and Home Rule beauties all?
In Edinboro, did you view the house of good John Knox?
Or the places where for punishment they put a man in stocks?

To the Lady of Threadneedle Street, did you early pay your court;
And of Mr. Krupp of Essen, did you hear a good word?
You saw, of course, the Paris Bourse; but I would like to learn

If you met the Bulls of Madrid and, as well, the Bears of Berne?
Did Count Von Bismarck mention, with his eyes surcharged with tears,
How thoroughly he'd changed his views with his advancing years?

And how, in his opinion, it was most confounded rot
To force upon a fellow-man the risk of getting shot?
And, in Rome, I'd ask, did you do as the Romans do,

Take Spaghetti and Confetti and a Roman Punch or two?
Did you visit old Saint Peter's, and buy a Cameo?
Or a coin for William Follett made two thousand years ago?

If King Nibb gave you the choice—perchance it might be so—
Would you kiss his Eminence, the Pope's, or Harry Beecher Stowe?
If you were on that ancient bridge, with Horatius and his band,

When Lars Porcena made a call, would you "stand on either hand?"
I know your views are very strict, but did you To hazard an acquaintance with the Prince of Monaco?

Wait for fear, when tempted, you your promises would break,
The only margins you would touch were margins of the lake?
Pray did you bank on river banks where all the draughts you saw

Were in municipalities that practiced License Law?
And checks were on the trousers of the British tourist's proud,
Which 'tis needless to insinuate, were very, very loud?

When you were in St. Petersburg, did you get an invite
To put your bomb-proof dress suit on, and come and dine a minute?
Did anyone blow up the Czar while you in Russia were?

Except his wife and married men expect no less of her!
When you dined out with sovereigns, a thing which well might be,
Or when liquors and beer and wine around the board did gush,

Did their countenances ever show to you a royal flush?
When in Ireland did the countryman, who knew "where he was at,"
Receive your card, or shake his head and solemnly stand, Pat?

There are many other things of which I'd like to speak,
But they tell me that the dinner must be finished ere I leave.
So I'll repeat that to you a hearty welcome give.

And pledge our friendship, one and all, as long as you shall live;
And when again you go abroad, we trust that you will feel That the members of the Newton Club are as true to you as steel.

Pray, remember in your absence we are with you heart and soul,
For our thoughts will all turn toward you, as the needle to the pole.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Shop without them. I consider your Sulphur Bitters a remarkable purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been entirely cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulphur Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years. I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. TOBACCO HABIT EASILY CURED.

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. TO THE LASSELL SENIORS.

PROF. OLIN CURTIS PREACHES ON LOYALTY AND DUTY.

Prof. Olin Curtis, D. D., president of the Boston school of theology, delivered the baccalaureate sermon before the senior class of Lasell Seminary in the Congregational church, Auburndale, Sunday morning. Beside the fair young women of the graduating class nearly all the students of the institution were present. The pulpit and chancel were adorned with roses and groups of palms.

The text of the sermon was taken from Acts xvii, 23: "For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am and whom I serve." These words of the Apostle Paul, said Rev. Dr. Curtis, have suggested to me the subject of loyalty. With this theme I want to do several definite things, first to show what loyalty is in the deep nature; second, to show the relations of loyalty to service; then to indicate how the theme culminates in loyalty to Christ our Lord.

The nature of loyalty is brought out in part by the common definition of the word itself. To be loyal is to be true to a superior. But profounder than this definition is the expression of St. Paul—"Whom I am and whom I serve."—an expression which tells us with an axiom the secret of the apostle's loyal life. At the bottom of loyalty there is an appreciation of grand things. I believe that even the appreciation of a great character, or a noble deed in history, or a masterly work in fiction, is a real movement toward loyalty. This first movement may cease, of course, and one might lodge in a literary taste which would be nothing more than a dilettante appreciation of an author's artistic skill. Such a lodgement is, however, neither necessary nor normal. The normal influence of any great book, unless it is saturated with a vile purpose or a false philosophy, is to arouse those emotions and thoughts which are basal in egoism.

It is important that we get rid of egoism. To fully appreciate any grand thing we must have genuine humility. We must plainly see that there are all sorts of things larger and more important than we are ourselves. This does not mean that we are to have no just knowledge of self and no just estimate of what we can do or what we have done. It is not the hesitation and confusion and lack of confidence which prepare the way for loyalty, but that humility which does not think of itself more highly than it ought to think, and that humility which looks eagerly, sympathetically at all the grand things outside of the world of self-interests.

Somewhat higher up in the nature of loyalty is the notion of duty. The word of duty is recognized over and over. We see the sublime thing, and recognize that it has a right to us. But it is not always true that a duty received is a duty felt. And a duty felt, a conviction cherished, is not always a duty done.

Here we reach the notion of the necessity of personal allegiance. To be loyal we must give ourselves in actual voluntary consecration to that which is grand enough to own us. It all could be put in this very simple way—first, we must find something worth giving ourselves to; then we must feel that we ought to give ourselves to it; then we must actually give ourselves in personal allegiance. In our time, there is not only an emphasis put upon service as a thing in itself, but also an emphasis put upon popular success. The cry is: "O, don't be a nobody! Get into some conspicuous place. A quiet, unknown life is a silly waste." The result of this is that many people are one of the most wretchedly brought down the house: "Wanted—A suitable receptacle in which to keep meditation hours."

"What the Years Have Brought" was told in verse by Miss Eva L. Couch in an original and pleasing way.

"What the Years Will Bring" was expressed by Miss Nellie Davis with stereoscopic illustrations. Between the talks Miss Jennie M. Arnold gave a fine rendering of Thome's "Valse," and there was a pianoforte duo by Miss Effie Symms and Miss Bessie M. Pennell.

The good-bye for the class was spoken by Miss Nellie M. Richards. "We go forth now," she said, "to verify our motto. Let us begin in earnest to make our lives grand and noble."

Good-bye to dear Lasell, the place of many happy days. We have had our sorrows but the joys outweighed them. May the seniors be to countless others what it has been to us.

The concluding exercises took place on the lawn in front of the main building where an auction was held. The class kitted, the natty goat and the seniors' treasured possessions of like character were offered for sale. Those articles not bid off were consigned to the flames and helped to feed a huge bonfire. This feature took the place of the burning of the books, which has marked the usual final of class day in preceding years.

The graduates are: Jennie M. Arnold, Peabody; Eva L. Couch, Round Pond, Me.; Nellie Davis, Chicago; Clara L. Eads, Paris, Ill.; Elizabeth Ewing, Atchinson, Kan.; Flora Gardner, Chicago; Jessie M. Gaskill, Woonsocket, R.I.; Harriet Noble, Tiffin, O.; Bessie M. Pennell, Atchinson, Kan.; Nellie M. Richards, Boston; Esther Scouller and Ida O. Short, North East, Pa.; Effie Symms, Atchinson, Kan.

The grounds were thronged with people, over 1000 participating in the social festivities. An orchestra was in attendance. The seniors were the recipients of the customary congratulations.

Principal and Mrs. Bragdon entertained many guests. Principal and Mrs. Bragdon gave the reception to the Senior class Tuesday evening. The guests were introduced to Prof. and Mrs. Bragdon by the juniors and then to the seniors, and the parlors and corridors were filled with the friends of the graduates and of the school.

At 9 o'clock a collation was served in the dining hall, which was decorated for the occasion with ferns, roses and carnations. The grows of the seniors were as follows:

Miss Esther Scouller, pale grey crepe de chine; Miss Clara L. Eads, pale pink silk, trimmed with white lace and ribbons; Miss Harriet Noble, green skirt with brocade Nile green waist; Miss Bessie M. Pennell, pale blue satin; Miss Effie Symms, white silk and lace; Miss Jessie M. Gaskill, yellow satin and cream lace; Miss Nellie Richards, white silk; palms, beautiful flowers and artistic groupings of American and foreign flags and emblems. The class motto was suspended from the reading desk. The inscription in golden letters on a rich, red background read: "Not Finished but Begun."

In one corner of the stage a group picture of the class was arranged on an easel. Under it appeared the figures '93, worked in "Jack" roses, giving the effect of the class color. The balcony on the left of the platform was decorated with red and yellow bunting, and contained a small group of spectators, who formed a striking contrast with the large assembly seated in the audience room below. Every available chair was occupied, and many of the later arrivals were obliged to stand either in the aisles or in an open space in the rear of the room.

The members of the senior class entered the "gym" at 7:45 o'clock, marching in single file down the main aisle to the stage. They wore red caps and gowns, the head-dress having its special and striking ornamentation of a golden tassel. The girls' faces were hidden behind a mass of golden shade, only relieved by the red color of the figures '93, which formed what might be termed a unique centrepiece.

The appearance of the young women was greeted with a storm of applause, which only subsided after they had taken their positions in a semi-circle on the platform and dropped their fans, the signal for the rendering of the class medley, an arrangement of popular airs by Nellie M. Richards and Eva L. Couch of the graduating class. The introductory words of the chorus were:

First thirteen maidens in a class,
And very bright maidens we
The concluding words touched the humorous vein of the audience, and brought up again the well known music of the "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" song.

Following the medley the address of welcome was delivered by the president of the class, Miss Flora Gardner. She commenced by saying that she represented the class of '93, and extended a welcome in its behalf. "We have been told," she said, "that we are not handsome, not very wise and have no style; but we refuse to believe it, attributing such unkind remarks to the jealousy of some of the under students."

Some of our superstitious friends have talked a great deal about the number of girls in our class—13. We regard 13, however, as a lucky number, and look with pity upon the attempts made to convince us of the contrary. We have completed our work here, and suppose we shall be alluded to as dignified seniors and sweet girl graduates.

"In our exercises tonight we ask you to be lenient and generous with our applause. We need encouragement and a little flattery, now and then is, at least, agreeable."

The roll call was unique. The girls responded in a humorous way as their names were spoken, and some of the witty sayings were greatly enjoyed, especially by some of the students who appreciated the funny references to scenes, events and personages of school life.

The presentation orator, Harriet Noble, in a pungent address, bestowed the gifts of the class. A tiny hour glass was given to Prof. Bragdon, accompanied by the reminder that "Time was an unrelenting tyrant." Prof. Hill, the instructor of music received a miniature baby grand, Miss Blaisdell a work entitled "The Art of Conversation," and the "Guardian angel" of the class a beautiful bunch of Jacqueminot roses.

The debate was the next feature of the program. The topic, "Auburndale versus Boston," was handled in a clever way by Miss Jessie M. Gaskill and Miss Esther Scouller.

"Our Advertiser" was the title of a paper delivered by Miss Clara L. Eads. It was very bright and sparkling, and was pronounced one of the most witty contributions of the evening. The "wants" were laughter provoking. The following brought down the house: "Wanted—A suitable receptacle in which to keep meditation hours."

The outdoor promenade, owing to the unfavorable weather conditions, was omitted. The grounds were, however, brilliantly illuminated with electric lamps sweeping in long lines in front of the main building and through the trees across the lawn skirting the seminary grounds.

The Commencement.

The 38th annual commencement exercises of Lasell Seminary were held Wednesday in the Congregational church, Auburndale. There was a large attendance, the parents and friends of the graduating class, together with the faculty and students, completely filling the spacious auditorium.

There was no attempt at elaborate decorations, and the floral arrangements were merely simple and tasteful. The pulpit was draped in red and gold, the class colors, and around the reading desk were grouped masses of daisies and ferns. The American Watch Company orchestra of Waltham was stationed in the vestibule between the chapel and the main audience room, and rendered selections during the exercises.

The opening prayer was delivered by Rev. T. W. Bishop of Auburndale. The commencement address was delivered by Rev. Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus of Chicago, and at the close of his remarks the diplomas were presented to the seniors. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Calvin Cutler, pastor of the Auburndale Congregational church.

The essays and subjects of the young women of the graduating class are appended: "What Christianity Has Done for Women," Jennie M. Arnold, Peabody; "A Harbinger of Spring," Eva L. Couch, Round Pond, Me.; "Wondering Jew," Nellie Davis, Chicago, Ill.; "The Power of Language," Clara L. Eads, Paris, Ill.; "Kansas," Elizabeth Ewing, Atchinson, Kan.; "Evelyn of the South," Flora Gardner, Chicago, Ill.; "Myths and Superstitions," J. M. Gaskill, Woonsocket, R. I.; "Tomorrow," Harriet Noble, Tiffin, O.; "Twentieth Century," Bessie M. Pennell, Atchinson, Kan.; "Gossamer," Bessie M. Pennell, Atchinson, Kan.; "Ambitions of Woman," Esther Scouller, North East, Pa.; "Ruins," Ida O. Short, North East, Pa.; "Definiteness of Purpose," Effie Symms, Atchinson, Kan.

The certificates in the various departments were awarded as follows: bookkeeping—Frances Lockwood Casabell, Bellville, N. J.; Laura Eads and Bessie Louise Comstock, Peabody, Mass.; June Marie Hoyt, Olympia, Washington.

Cooking—Jennie Miller Arnold, Peabody; Laura Mabel Case, South Manchester, Ct.; Nellie Gertrude Davis, Bellville, N. J.; Jessie May Gaskill, Woonsocket, R. I.; Nellie Manning Miller, Bay City, Mich.; Mary St. John Taylor, Toledo, Ohio; Emma Louise White, Weatherfield, Ct.; Louise Carroll Whitney, Peabody, Mass.

The prizes in military drill were thus awarded: A silk banner to company A, Capt. Helen Medsker; first individual, Florence Alice Ray, Ottawa, Ont.; second individual, Grace Scott, North East, Pa.

The prizes for best bookmaking were presented to Emma Louise White and Louise Carroll Whitney.

Following the exercises the seniors and their friends were given the social grounds. It was a charming outdoor spread, and one of the very pleasant features connected with the graduation observances.

Visitors attending the commencement week exercises at the seminary were given an opportunity Tuesday and Wednesday to inspect the work of the pupils in the art department. The collection of sketches and pictures were exhibited in the study, and included specimens of preliminary free hand work, model drawing and work in water and oil colors. In the latter classification, notably, "Bits of Drapery," Miss Bennett; "Study of a Violin," Grace Holmes; "Bunch of Corn," Helen Johnson; "Morning Glories," Mabel Sawyer.

Miss Esther Scouller, of 15 pieces in the several grades of art work was much admired. "A Study of a Mandolin," drapery effects, and a fruit piece were among the best specimens. Another fine collection was an artistic display of drawing by members of the sketch class, patronizing arts of picturesque scenery and some comic phases of student life.

MASS., WOMEN'S CLUBS

HOLDS ITS FIRST ANNUAL MEETING IN NEWTONVILLE.

The first annual meeting of the clubs—whose federation had been named the Massachusetts Women's Clubs Union—was held Wednesday in the Methodist church, Newtonville, by invitation of the Newtonville Women's Guild, of which Mrs. Mary T. Hill is president.

The church was beautifully decorated. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, who presided, and Miss Florence Everett, who acted as secretary, sat in a perfect garden of daisies and ferns, poppies and fleur-de-lis, with a background of lilacs and a front drapery of trailing wisteria.

From various parts of the stage—from Salem and Lynn and Cambridge, from the Newtons, from Woburn and Danvers, and other towns too numerous to mention—the clubs assembled. At the morning session, one of the first things done was the discarding of the old name and the adoption of the new, and the union is hereafter to be known as the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs.

Then came the election of officers, with the following results: President, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe; vice-president, Mrs. Jennie K. Adams of the Woburn Women's Club; Mrs. Mary R. Hill of the Newtonville Women's Guild; Mrs. Electa N. L. Walton of the West Newton Women's Educational Club; Mrs. Phoebe M. Kendall of the Cambridge Club; secretary, Mrs. Florence Everett of Dorchester; assistant, Mrs. Adeline Cogswell Ferguson of the Women's Book Review Club; treasurer, Mrs. Adelaide H. Blodgett of Social Science Club; directors, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell of the New England Woman's Press Association, Mrs. Calista A. MacFarland of the American Club; Mrs. Sarah Sheldon Collins of the Thursday Morning Club, Great Barrington; Mrs. Laura A. W. Fowler of the New England Abbott Academy Club; Mrs. Alfred Hewins of the Afternoon Club, Dedham; Mrs. Belle D. Jackson of the Swampscott Woman's Club; Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln of the Wheaton Seminary Club; Mrs. Mary C. Stevens of the Dorchester Woman's Club; Mrs. Mary E. Mason of the Thought Club, Hyde Park; Mrs. Evelyn F. Masury of the Danvers Women's Association; Mrs. Kate A. Mead of the West Newton Educational Club; Mrs. Ellen Spaulding Morse of the Tuesday Literary Club, Marlboro; Mrs. Kathleen M. Phillips of the Monday Club, Newton Highlands; Mrs. Mary Alder Ward of the Alden Club, Franklin; Mrs. Kate Tannatt Woods of the Thought and Work Club, Salem.

It was afterward decided that the directors should be divided into groups of five, to serve in terms of one, two and three years, and the nominating committee for next year, consisting of Mrs. Nickerson of the Home Club, Mrs. Martin of the Newtonville Guild, Ellen Appleton Brown of the Thought and Work Club, Mrs. Young of the Lawrence Women's Club, and Mrs. Converse of the Woburn Club, was instructed to govern itself accordingly.

The bylaws, previously presented for consideration, were adopted as a whole. The annual meeting will be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in June.

At 1 o'clock the convention, by invitation of Mrs. Hill, adjourned to the vestry, where an elegant luncheon was served and a chat enjoyed. At 2 o'clock Mrs. Howe again called the meeting to order to enjoy an afternoon program, which proved to be crowded full of good things.

First came the roll call, responded to by the chairman of each delegation; but, beside the delegates, many club members were also present.

Mrs. Hill, president of the Newtonville Guild, was then called forward and gave an interesting sketch of the formation of her club, some nine years ago, first for social development, then for philanthropic work, whose results are best illustrated in the cottage hospital, the training school for nurses, and the free bed which the club supports.

Several members of the federation, among them Mrs. Sawyer, president of the Social Science Club of Newton; Mrs. Orcutt, president of the Dorchester Women's Club; Mrs. Howe and Miss Brown of the Thought and Work Club, then gave reports and reminiscences of the World's Fair, which they had attended as delegates from their several organizations.

This closed the exercises for the day, but subsequently, on motion of Mrs. Smith of the Home Club, it was voted to appoint Mrs. Nickerson of East Boston, N. Y., as the representative of the Newtonville Guild to the committee on legislative doings, the chairman of this committee to be a delegate to the committee of counsel and cooperation—otherwise known as the "three C's."

Before the adjournment a vote of cordial thanks was given the Newtonville Women's Guild for its generous and hearty hospitality.

MANY INVENTIONS

is the latest published of the works of the late Kipling, who seems to retain all his popularity as a writer. The book is gotten out in very attractive form by D. Appleton & Co. The books opens with an introductory poem "To the True Romance" and then follow some fourteen of Kipling's most characteristic stories. The first is a weird tale entitled "The Disturber of Traffic" being a story told the writer while visiting at night the lighthouse of St. Cecilia. It has to do with the Flores straight, and mysterious events that took place there. The second story takes the reader back to the pleasantly familiar grounds of India, although it has to do with the adventures of three Indian officers who are on leave of absence in London, but are all very full of reminiscences of Indian life. "My Lord the Elephant" introduces our old friends "Mulvaney, Orthor and Leary," who are as amusing as ever. Shafiz Ullah Khan gives his idea of the English and their habits, gained during a visit to London, which is entitled "One View of the Question" and a very shrewd one too. The other stories, many of them now printed for the first time are "The Finest Story in the World," "His Private Honour," "A Matter of Fact," "The Lost Legion," "The Bunch of Brags," "The Love of Women," "The Record of Badala Herodfoot, Judson and the Empire, and The Children of the Zodiac."

Mona Maclean, Medical Student, by Graham Travers, is an interesting story, although the reader is inclined to find the medical student part of the heroine rather of a trial, and would be glad to forget it. As a guest in the family of her titled relative, or while keeping shop for her cousin, she is a very agreeable character, and must have been a nice companion on a botanizing expedition on a ride, or even at a tea party, and we rather sympathize when her cousin insisted that the medical student part shall be concealed. The love story is charmingly worked out, and she finally finds her fate by marrying a rising young doctor and they have their office side by side. Published by D. Appleton & Co. in their Town and Country Library.

FIRE APPARATUS.

On Monday evening next the Board of Mayor and Aldermen will give a public hearing in the matter of purchasing additional signal boxes to be used in connection with our fire alarm system. There is more than usual public interest in this question for the reason that the committee on fire department have by a majority vote decided in favor of introducing signal boxes of a different make and device from those now used by the City, and the claim is made that if this course of action is taken it will result in seriously impairing the efficiency of the fire alarm system now in use. We confess that we are unable to understand why the committee having this matter in charge have decided upon such a course of action, since the city is to gain nothing in dollars and cents, and is to take its chances of impairing the efficiency of the apparatus now in use.

The success and welfare of every city is to a greater or less degree dependent upon its fire department. Rates of insurance depend more or less upon the appliances which the city provide for extinguishing fires. Newton has for years had the reputation of maintaining an excellent fire department and of using the best apparatus known, not only for extinguishing fires, but for giving alarms. More perhaps depends upon the giving of the alarm than upon any other feature connected with this department. It is the first few minutes after the fire commences that is of the greatest importance. If time is wasted in notifying the department the fire gets beyond control and the property is destroyed. For that reason the apparatus used for giving the signal or alarm should be of the best possible make, and should contain devices which have been thoroughly tested by time and experience.

Ever since the adoption of an automatic fire alarm by this city we have used what is known as the Gamewell system, being an apparatus manufactured in our own city by the Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company, which is considered the oldest and most reliable company manufacturing such apparatus in this country. It has been in the business for a great many years, and has installed its plants in every state in the Union, more than six hundred cities and towns having adopted them. The statement has been made, and so far as we know, not contradicted, that this company does more than four fifths of all the business that is done in this country. The apparatus which they originally sold this city, together with all the additions which have been made to it, have worked with perfect satisfaction to the department, and so far as we know with entire satisfaction to the public. Rates of insurance in Newton have been low for many years, and we understand that the insurance companies in fixing the rates for this community, have taken into consideration the efficiency of our department and apparatus.

We confess that we are at a loss to understand why the committee on fire department should recommend a different signal box from the one now in use. In other words, why they should recommend a mixing of different systems, neither one of which may work in connection with the other. We do not believe that there is any public sentiment in favor of the change, and, on the other hand, we feel confident that the public sentiment is decidedly against it. Even if the city could save money by buying boxes of a different make and device, it undoubtedly would be bad policy to do so, since tens of thousands of dollars in property might be destroyed by the attempt to save a few dollars for the city. In this particular case nothing is to be gained in a financial way by the change proposed, and much may be lost to the citizens if we are to enter upon the doubtful experiment of not letting "well enough alone." We understand that the Chief of the department has expressed himself plainly to the committee in opposition to connecting into the existing fire alarm circuits, apparatus differing in device and construction from that already in use. His position is one of great responsibility, and his opinion in this matter is certainly entitled to careful consideration. The city of Newton covers such an extent of territory that the fire department is especially dependent upon the fire alarm telegraph for prompt notice of the breaking out of a fire, and our existing system has been in use so long and worked so reliably that we think the Chief of the department is warranted in objecting to any change that by any possibility might impair its efficiency. In fact, that he would be derelict in duty if, with his knowledge and views, he had failed to protest against the proposed change.

CORPORATE INFLUENCE.

The late session of the General Court was remarkable in many ways, and in none more so than in regard to the movement against the corporations. It was started, not by professional agitators, but by the business men of Boston, who realized to what extent corporate greed had prevailed in this state, and the pressing necessity of some radical measures being taken to check the dangerous growth. Business men have evidently become tired of being compelled to help pay dividends on watered stock, and as far as the house was concerned the movement was successful and some admirable regulations were passed. The house deserves a good deal of credit for its action, and is receiving it from the press and the people. No house in recent years has deserved so well at the hands of the general public, and it is a matter of local pride that the Newton representatives, Messrs. Chester and Estabrooks, were among the foremost in the good work.

It is unfortunate, however, that the same commendation cannot be given to the Senate. It is a small body, and the lobbyists evidently took possession of it. Corporate influence was manifest throughout the session. The bill against the Boston gas ring was passed, it is true, but the report is that it was only got through after the most urgent appeals from political leaders, who predicted the most dire disasters if the majority were found to be in the power of Mr. Addicks. The appeal was successful in that instance, but the Senators failed in other legislation against stock watering and kindred evils. The use of money is not openly charged, but any one can see how great the temptation to use it must have been to corporations whose thousands of watered stock, present and prospective, was at stake.

Nevertheless there is good ground for encouragement. The agitation has accomplished something. The public has been awakened to the magnitude of the evil, the names of the corporation Senators are being printed in all the papers, and the people will be more wide awake hereafter to the imperative necessity of being more careful in regard to the choice of their representatives, both in the house and the Senate. The party label is seen to be poor reliance in such an emergency, and a nominee's character is the one great thing to be considered. People will ask hereafter, not whether a candidate is a Republican or a Democrat, but whether he is a man strong enough to withstand temptation, and with intelligence sufficient to see through the schemes of the persuasive gentlemen who would like to direct legislation in favor of some corporation or other.

The Common Council was rather discourteous in refusing a hearing to the Gamewell Company, and they were a little previous, also, as the citizens who asked for the hearing only asked for one from the board of aldermen, and the order went down to them by a blunder. The council may have thought it was a reflection on the committee, to give a hearing after they had voted, but this has always been done by former boards, and the action of the committee is seldom regarded as final. The Common Council showed evidence of a strong personal feeling in the matter, which is unfortunate, as one of the stockholders and traveling agents of the Municipal Company, Mr. Turner, is a member of the Common Council, and the general public might make unfair inferences. Some years ago a city official was very harshly criticised for purchasing at his son's store, who happened to be a member of the city council, and was forbidden, we believe, to make further purchases there.

As the Gamewell company is one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the city, is a large taxpayer, and its officers are Newton men, it was hardly the right thing to do to refuse them a hearing, especially when it was asked for by such men as Mr. A. R. Mitchell and Mr. L. G. Pratt, who have a large amount of property at stake, and who certainly deserve to be treated courteously when they make a request of the city council.

The Caterer worms are doing great damage in the towns about us, and in Waverley the elms are almost denuded of their foliage and people driving along the streets find strings of the worms hanging on their carriages. Waverley has a bad name for neglect in such matters, but the plague is spreading to other towns, and around Bemis station and on the edges of Newton and Waltham the trees are beginning to suffer. Some twenty years ago these worms proved very destructive to the elms, and now that they are making their appearance again only prompt and radical measures will avert the danger. The tent caterpillars have been sensibly checked in many places, but there are still many orchards that are a disgrace both to the owners and to the city, as their leaves have turned brown and they are covered with nests and worms. It may be necessary for the city to take some measures to compel the owners to take proper care of their trees, as one neglected orchard will supply the worms for a whole neighborhood, after the moths have hatched out.

BOTH branches of the city council held an informal discussion of the sewer ordinance amendments, Monday evening, in an executive session. Judging from reports it is considered certain that some amendment will pass, and probably the assessment will be divided into equal parts, one half to be paid by the city and one half by the owners of real estate. As the council were elected on this issue, they could hardly oppose some kind of an amendment without danger of being called down by their constituents, and a half and half division would be better than the present one, and furnish a decided relief to people in moderate circumstances, who have to carefully count their dollars.

THE Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway Company is reaching out for a new route to Boston, and the Watertown selectmen have granted it a location on North Beacon street to the Boston line, and also the right to use the West End tracks to North Beacon Square. The line will have its terminal, when fully completed, at Allston Four Corners, and this will furnish a short street car route to Boston for the Watertown people. It will also furnish a means of reaching the U. S. Arsenal, which is an interesting place for visitors, and such a line ought to find plenty of patronage.

If the Wellesley & Boston road ran through from West Newton to the Wellesley depot, there would seem to be a good prospect that it would find a more profitable field than if it stops short at Lower Falls. Pleasure riders would be attracted by the prospect of a ride through such a beautiful country, and many would come from Wellesley to take the trains at West Newton for Boston, as they would make a really important saving by doing this. The company has applied to the Wellesley selectmen for a location, and there is a prospect that it will be granted.

The question is asked whether the ordinance against salaried officials of the city acting as delegates to political conventions, acting as officers of caucuses, or taking active part in campaigns, was defeated by orders from the Republican state committee. The Boston papers charge that the state committee is working against any such ordinance, and two members of the Republican city committee are in the common council, and one of them, President Weed, spoke from the chair against passing the ordinance, and is given the credit for defeating it.

THERE is a movement to ask the city council to pass the same regulations adopted in other cities, to regulate the noise of the night before the Fourth. The mere announcement that the police were instructed to arrest every one making any noise before 5 a. m., would probably be sufficient, and the young people could then save up their energies for the day itself. In former years they have begun their celebrations so early the night before that daylight finds them exhausted, and the day itself passes very quietly.

How to be Comfortable.

"The Algonquin," at St. Andrews, N. B., opens its fifth season on July 1st, under the continued management of Mr. Albert Miller. Aside from the peculiar natural attractions of the location, the scenery, cool dry climate, and balsam laden atmosphere, the appointments, cuisine, and admirable service of the hotel, have made it the summer home of that class of well bred people who appreciate delicate luxury and refinement without the glamour of fashion. St. Andrews boasts of fine driving and cycling roads, numerous near by fresh water lakes, where trout and salmon abound, and the magnificent 17 mile long Passamaquoddy Bay on its front, where the yachtsman, canoeist or fisherman, always within view of the hotel, may recreate his heart's content. Last but not least, the entire absence of mosquitoes, and comparative infrequency of fogs, are features which largely add to a summer's comfort.

—A society affair of note Tuesday was an afternoon tea given from 5 to 7 o'clock in the handsome clubhouse of the Newton club. It attracted a large company of well-known residents and the occasion was pronounced a most interesting one, in part because of its delightful informal character. The tables were arranged in the attractively furnished cafes and consisted of a Russian tea stand in charge of Mrs. C. P. Hall and Mrs. W. H. Colledge; sherbet table, Mrs. H. E. Cobb, Miss Cobb, Mrs. Joseph Byers and Mrs. Theodore Nickerson; coffee table, Mrs. A. F. Luke, Mrs. R. C. Bridgman, Mrs. Harry Ayer, Mrs. C. Frank Hunting, Mrs. A. C. Walworth and Mrs. E. H. Mason; cocoa and chocolate stand, Mrs. W. J. Follett, Mrs. A. D. S. Stephenson, Miss Grace Stephenson and Mrs. Fisher Ames. The table decorations were very elaborate, consisting of ferns, daisies, roses, pinks and pansies. Tall palms were grouped about the apartments and the chandeliers were entwined and festooned with clinging vines. Music was an enlivening feature, a fine program being read by the Boston Ideal Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar club. Following the tea, there was an entertainment of a unique character in the Assembly hall. Electrical experiments were demonstrated and commented upon by Mr. J. H. Farnham, electrician of the N. E. Telephone Company. Then from numerous telephones suspended in front of the chairs occupied by the spectators, an amusing talk with musical interlude was enjoyed over a line from the Chicago Long Distance Telephone Office. This feature was provided through the courtesy of Mr. J. N. Keller, general manager N. E. Telephone Co.

—The West Newton Unitarian church has never had what is termed a church organization, and the propriety of it has been a topic for discussion by the young people of the society who have held meetings Sunday evenings of late and talked the matter over. They have decided in favor of a committee has been appointed to further the plan. The older members of the society, it is thought, will co-operate.

—Flower Sunday in the Unitarian church was one of great interest. The choral service by Mr. E. G. Horton was one of his best, and well sung by the children. Miss Laura Coffin taking the solo parts, also "Verdure Glad" from the Creation most delightfully. The decorations of the church, under the supervision of the flower committee, were as usual beautiful, with the addition of an arch composed of daisies, under which the school passed from the class room. The motto wrought out by the children in a bank of green with white daisies, was "Trust in God," from which and the surrounding flowers, Mr. Jaynes preached an eloquent sermon to them upon purity and usefulness. The service was followed by the christening of children, among whom were the grandsons of Mr. George Lovett and Mr. Lucius G. Pratt, bearing their names.

—Flower Sunday in the Unitarian church was one of great interest. The choral service by Mr. E. G. Horton was one of his best, and well sung by the children. Miss Laura Coffin taking the solo parts, also "Verdure Glad" from the Creation most delightfully. The decorations of the church, under the supervision of the flower committee, were as usual beautiful, with the addition of an arch composed of daisies, under which the school passed from the class room. The motto wrought out by the children in a bank of green with white daisies, was "Trust in God," from which and the surrounding flowers, Mr. Jaynes preached an eloquent sermon to them upon purity and usefulness. The service was followed by the christening of children, among whom were the grandsons of Mr. George Lovett and Mr. Lucius G. Pratt, bearing their names.

—The West Newton Unitarian church has never had what is termed a church organization, and the propriety of it has been a topic for discussion by the young people of the society who have held meetings Sunday evenings of late and talked the matter over. They have decided in favor of a committee has been appointed to further the plan. The older members of the society, it is thought, will co-operate.

—The grand jury found true bills against the Ederkins for larceny, burglary and receiving stolen property.

—The new electric line running between this place and Watertown will be in operation, probably, August 1.

—Russell, the clever pitcher of the Allen school nine, broke the record throwing a base ball at the interscholastic meet in Cambridge. He threw it a distance of 369 feet, beating last year's record by 20 feet. He will probably be one of the pitchers for Harvard next year.

—The National Bank and Allen school nines played an interesting game of ball here Wednesday afternoon, the latter winning by a score of 8 to 4. The second base play was the game of the game.

—The battery work for Allen was another excellent feature.

H. S. BATTALION.

THE ANNUAL PRIZE DRILL AND THE WINNERS.

The 11th annual prize drill of the Newton High school battalion was favored with fair weather last Saturday, and called out a brilliant assemblage of interested friends and relatives. The high school grounds were enclosed, and seats were placed in the centre of the lawn where the drill was held, and were filled long before 2.30, the hour when the exercises began.

The grounds were elaborately decorated with the colors of the various classes. Blue predominated, that being the class color of '93. The other classes were not lacking in the display of their colors, and about the trees, on the seats, posts, ropes and everywhere possible, streamers of blue for '93, orange and black for '94, red for '95 and white for '96 were flying in the soft southern breeze. The school color—yellow—was also seen in many places, and from the turret on the school building floated the stars and stripes.

Class colors were conspicuous on the young ladies present, and among the special guests were a large party of Lasell girls, in charge of Prof. Bragdon. The officers of the calisthenic battalion in their pretty uniforms occupied front seats, and Mayor Fenno, members of the school board, and of the city council were present as interested spectators.

Visitors were present from neighboring school military organizations, Institute of Technology, Boston Latin, Chauncy Hall, Malden, Brookline and elsewhere. At the hour appointed, the battalion marched upon the field, to the music of the Salem Cadet band, and the exercises were opened by the drill in the manual under the direction of Maj. Page, closing with various battalion marching movements.

Next came one of the most interesting events of the drill, that of the company competitive contest, for which two prizes were offered. Companies B and D were first on the field and showed creditable work. The artillery drill was here introduced and attracted much attention, and the squad were well up in their work and demonstrated their skill in handling the brass field piece. Lieut. A. B. Harlow was in charge and the work of his men was much commented upon.

Artillery drill is a recently introduced branch of military training, and in the Newton battalion has met with great success. The drill was carried out to the smallest details—loading and firing, dismounting and mounting both piece and limber. The squad was formed at the instigation of the instructor, Maj. Benyon, who says the men are to be congratulated on their year's work.

Following the artillery drill came the individual competition, and of course the enthusiasm of the spectators was aroused. The squad was made up of forty men, ten of the most proficient from each company, under command of Adj. Priest. The boys were destined to a tough ordeal, being put through a severe exercise, introducing the most difficult tests in the manual.

The boys stood up bravely, however, but after the judges made their decisions in the first and second round, but eight of the forty remained. The remaining contestants were then put through the drill, which seemed to those looking on to be even more severe, if anything, than the exercises of the whole squad, but finally the judges were satisfied, and the men were marched off the field amid the cheers and applause of the spectators.

The competitive drill between companies C and A was next on the program. The work of the contesting companies was the closest for years, and it was only by the utmost diligence that the judges were enabled to make their decisions, the difference between company B and company D being less than 1 per cent., which is decidedly even work.

Battalion parade, Maj. Page commanding, closed the drill. The boys were lustily cheered at their fine appearance and excellent maneuvers, executed with the utmost precision.

One of the features of the battalion parade was the presentation of an elegant bouquet to Maj. Page, from the members of the calisthenic battalion. Mayor Fenno awarded the prizes, saying that he was somewhat surprised to receive an invitation to present the prizes, as he did not before know that that was one of the privileges of the mayor. He said he had always been interested in the drill and the battalion, and that he would like to be in it again, if only for one day. Such exercises, he said, are impressed in the breast of every boy. They have come down from time immemorial through all these centuries, and today form a part of the education, teaching the pupil to stand erect, to be alert and to obey promptly, and in after-life you will always remember the battalion and the military drill, although you may forget a portion of the book learning.

He told the boys that he had never seen a battalion which appeared as well as they did on Memorial day. He was proud of them, he said, as he was today.

With a few felicitous remarks he then presented the prizes as follows: Individual—First, Sergt. Springer; second, Corp. Hollings; honorable mention, Corp. Kimball.

Company prize—First, Capt. E. C. Hood; company C; second, Capt. A. F. Brewer; company B.

The prizes consisted of gold medals for the winners in the individual contest and handsome silk flags to the captains of the winning companies, while the lieutenants received silver medals, each of which were suitably engraved.

After the battalion had been marched to its headquarters and dismissed, the officers were entertained at the residence of Mr. Miliken, where they enjoyed a luncheon.

The roster of the battalion and companies is as follows: Major, H. F. Page; adjutant, H. D. Priest; quartermaster, A. C. Walworth, Jr.; sergeant-major, A. I. Franklin; quartermaster-sergeant, H. C. Wiggins; bugler, H. B. Imman; lieutenant artillery detachment, A. B. Harlow; company A, captain, H. S. Benson; first lieutenant, E. H. Woodworth; second lieutenant, S. F. Hall; company B, captain, A. F. Brewer; first lieutenant, C. A. Ranlett; second lieutenant, G. H. Pratt; company C, captain, E. C. Hood; first lieutenant, C. D. Stevens; second lieutenant, W. E. Felton; company D, captain, I. S. Dillingham, Jr.; first lieutenant, E. F. Hollis; second lieutenant, R. H. Hunt.

A Trip to Lexington.

Twenty-six members of the Newtonville Women's Guild took a delightful morning drive to the beautiful old town of Lexington, on Wednesday, June 7, making their first halt at the old Parker homestead, where in 1810 Theodore Parker was born.

A Madame Parker, stately, handsome and genial in the crown of her 92 years, came out to greet the party, and as she stood in the sunshine, her white cap and kerchief framing her smiling face, it seemed impossible that she had known so many many winters. Waving good-byes the party drove on, and lunched under the beautiful elms on the hill, where stands the old belfry, erected in 1761. The ancient bell rang out the call to prayer, the noon hour, and the curfew rang merry wedding chimes, and tolled the funeral knell—rang for the spirited town meeting, of which our own Edward Everett Hale tells us in such graphic story, and was the very bell to ring out the alarm on that memorable 19th of April, 1775.

On Lexington Common stands the elm planted by Gen. Grant a century later, and close by it, is the site of the first meeting house of the town, built in 1692, restored 1713 and 1794, a spot identified for 150 years with the history of the town.

On this same "green" is a cannon with the date 1705, and here was drawn in line on that famous day that brave band of minute men, under command of Capt. Parker, whose orders are thus commemorated:

"Stand your ground, Don't fire unless fired upon, But if they mean to have war, Let it begin here."

In that historic picture the "Dawn of Liberty," Captain Parker's attitude, facing the foe at the head of the line, awaiting the fire of the British redcoats, under Major Pitcairn, is that of a hero, who will do or die.

Houses rife with the spirit of that hour surround this village, "open." One guarded by magnificent elms bears this inscription: "House of Marritt and Nathan Monroe, built 1729, a witness of the battle."

The monument "Sacred to Liberty and the rights of Mankind" tells us that "the contest was long, bloody and affecting, but victory crowned their arms, and that Peace, Liberty and Independence of the united states of America was their glorious reward. The remains of those who gave their lives that day were brought from the old cemetery in 1835 and placed within the enclosure."

With reverent thought we wander later on among the graves in the quaint old burial place. One moss grown stone bears record of one born in 1693, so long, long ago. Here is the monument sacred to the memory of "his excellency, William Eustis, born at Cambridge, 1753, died in Boston 1825. He was a surgeon in the revolution, Secretary of War of the United States, Envoy extraordinary and Minister plenipotentiary at the Court of the Netherlands, Representative to National Congress and Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and above all and beyond else was a noble gentleman."

After reading a number of the old inscriptions, among the most gawsome of which is this one:

"The greedy worms devour my skin, And gnaw my wailing flesh, When God shall build my bones again, He'll clothe them all afresh."

We visited the famous old homestead where Rev. John Hancock lived for fifty-five years, and where Rev. Mrs. John reared thirteen children, and yet the number brought no ill luck to the family, for later on there were more than twenty ministers in the family, the sons following their father's example, and the daughters, not being allowed to speak for themselves in those days of firm faith in St. Paul's advice, married men to speak for them in the churches.

On the night of April 19th, 1775, John Hancock and his chum, Samuel Adams, slept here when roused by Paul Revere on his midnight ride of warning.

Later Rev. John Clark lived in this quaint house for fifty years, and under the magnificent Clark elm dome, with its grand shelter of branches of more than 100 feet across. We rested and admired the branches that swept in graceful curves to the ground.

As a parting pleasure in old Lexington we were entertained at the residence of Messrs. and Misses Wellington, where there was so much that was rare and curious, ancient and modern in the stately mansion, and its beautiful surroundings that it would take another article to half tell it, and where the courtesy was such that you felt you had opened a door into the past century, and found courtly manners and graceful speech all pervading, and where ere the rush and confusion of this 19th century, there were time and place for all that was sweet and gentle and delightful.

The homeward drive elicited much of old and romantic story from our historian, Mrs. Andrew Wellington, and our president, Mrs. George Hill, whose ancestors were also among the tried and true, and we voted the day perfect, the company "more so," and altogether a time to be long remembered.

JEANNE CHALONER.

It has always been customary with the Chilton Paint Co. to use in their roof paints the same quality of oil and dryer as used in the Chilton Paints. We could never see the reason for putting a good paint on a house, and a poor paint on a roof or barn. Any paint bearing the name Chilton is made with pure linseed oil and a turpentine dryer. We wish we knew what "the old red school house" was painted with, where we went to school when a boy. Not Chilton by any means, for it was painted beyond the memory of man. If you want about the same effect, get shade number ten of the Chilton Roof Paint. "Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston."

THE ALLEN SCHOOL RE-UNION.

SOMETHING OF THE HISTORIC SCHOOL BUILDING AND THE MEN AT THE INSTITUTION'S HEAD.

An event of conspicuous interest, which will bring together a notable assemblage of men and women from all parts of the United States, and not a few from foreign lands, is that of the re-union of the former pupils of the West Newton English and classical school.

The date of the re-union is set down for Wednesday, June 21, from 2 to 12 p. m., and the place settled upon is the Woodland Park Hotel, Auburndale. Over 2500 invitations have been sent out, and it is expected that nearly 2000 persons, connected with the school at some time during its 39 years of existence, will be present and participate in the exercises.

The program has been arranged as follows:

From 2 to 3 p. m., teachers' reception in a large tent to be erected on the lawn.

From 3.30 to 4.30 p. m., social interchanges.

From 4.30 to 4.50 p. m., reception of invited guests, election of officers of the school association, and the reading of the address by John Howard Ricketson, class of '54, of Pittsburg, Pa., addresses by distinguished guests, poem by Miss Ethel P. Tiffany, address by the principal of the school, Nathaniel Topf; address by the associate principal, James Theodore Allen.

From 5 to 5.30 p. m., collation and social features.

From 5.30 to 6.30 p. m., promenade concert.

From 6.30 to 12 p. m., dancing in the assembly hall of the hotel.

Much of the preparatory work for the re-union has been superintended by Mr. Eugene Francis Fay of Brookline, chairman of the executive committee, a graduate of the class of '54. His associates on the executive committee are:

Messrs. Samuel Stillman Whitney of Newton (secretary), Edward Carter Burage of West Newton (treasurer), Henry Mason Nourse of Boston, Fred Erastus Crawford of Watertown and Josiah Brown Chase, Jr., of West Newton, Mrs. L. G. Pratt, Mrs. Henry F. King, Miss Elizabeth P. Thurston, Mrs. N. T. Lane, Miss Mary P. Metcalf of West Newton, Mrs. William H. Gould of Waban, Mrs. Clarence A. Sumner of Milford, Miss Ada C. Mott Smith of Boston and Miss Molly G. Kelly of Wrentham.

A large reception committee has been organized, comprising over 150 ladies and gentlemen.

The West Newton English and classical school was established in 1854. It was an outgrowth of the normal school system of the state.

The building itself has a history. Judge Abraham Fuller, who died in 1794, left a bequest of $200 for the purpose of establishing an academy in Newton. Through delays in settling the estate, the years passed away until 1832 before the building was erected, and in the following two years it was taught by Master Perkins.

The town then decided to abandon it, and after a period of disuse the late Seth Davis, who lived to celebrate his centennial anniversary, established a school there, remaining two years.

At a later day, when it became necessary to give up the leased building in Lexington in which the State Normal school for girls was located, Horace Mann conceived the idea of securing the Fuller Academy as a new location. He interested Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., in the project, and that gentleman gave him check for the necessary purchase money in the interest of education in Massachusetts. Here the first Normal school building owned by an American state and the first permanent Normal school for girls in the world was established.

Mr. Quincy made the provision that when the property ceased to be used by the state it should revert to Horace Mann. Therefore, when the Normal school was moved to Framingham, in 1853, the latter took the building and sold it to Mr. Nathaniel T. Allen, who had been for six years at the head of the model department of this notable normal educational institution.

The building, which has undergone only important changes, still stands at the corner of Washington and Highland streets in West Newton.

When Mr. Allen purchased the building it was opened under its present title of the West Newton English and classical school. Rev. Cyrus Peirce, a former principal of the Normal school, being associated with Mr. Allen in the project.

Among its early patrons and friends were Hon. Horace Mann, Rev. Samuel J. May (second principal of the Normal school) Dr. Samuel G. Howe, once superintendent of the South Boston blind asylum; the late Charles Sumner, Rev. Theodore Parker and Dr. Thomas Hill, once president of Harvard University.

The West Newton English and classical school was incorporated in 1852, the incorporators being Nathaniel T. Allen, George E. Allen and James T. Allen. Mr. George E. Allen died in 1888. Messrs. N. T. and J. T. Allen are still at the head of the institution.

Among the former and present teachers of the school may be named many of a world-wide reputation. Dr. William A. Alcott's book on "The Laws of Human Nature," written in the form of lectures to this school. Dr. J. T. Allen was connected with the school for eight years, and there taught his first class in free gymnastics in Massachusetts. Mr. Joseph Allen, the successful superintendent of the Westboro State Reform school was for many years an associate principal.

Beside these mentioned Rev. T. Prentiss Allen, the late Mrs. S. R. Urbin, Rev. Joseph H. Allen, late professor at Harvard University, and the late William F. Allen, at one time professor in Madison University.

The pupils came from all parts of New England, from Texas and the territories, from the far West and the Pacific states, the Spanish West Indies, Hawaiian Islands, China and Japan and various parts of the old world.

Among former students have been:

Judges—John Davis of Washington, ex-assistant secretary of state; William D. Hall, the explorer of Alaska; J. M. Webster Wells of the Institute of Technology; Joseph T. Clarke of London, Eng., the explorer of Assos; Helen Ayers and Alice Curtis, the artists; Theodore P. Adams, principal of the Cambridge High and Latin school; James H. Beals, Jr., president of the New York Newspaper Union; Frank S. Billings, M. D., Y. S., biologist, pathologist and specialist in infectious diseases, late of the State University of Nebraska; the late Warren L. Brigham, assistant adjutant general, staff of Gov. Andrew, and editor Boston Press '67 to '78; Stephen S. Bart, M. D., M. A., professor of physical diagnosis and chemical medicine, New York; James F. Clarke of Marietta, Ga., noted water engineer; the late Hon. W. I. Clark, once proprietor of the Atlanta, Ga., Republican; William H. Cloudman, superintendent National Watch Company of Elgin; W. H. Dall, curator and collaborator Smithsonian Institution; Washington, D. C.; M. Grant Daniell, A. M., principal Chauncy Hall school; Hon. Joseph E. Fiske of Wellesley Hills; Rev. Minot G. Gage of Nashua, N. H.; Charles W. Hubbard of Weston, treasurer of the Ludlow Manufacturing Company of Boston; the late Charles A. Hartwell of Natick, breeder of thoroughbred horses; A. Rev. Arthur M. Knapp of Providence, R. I.; Dr. Scollay Parker, surgeon U. S. N.; John M. Rice, S. B., Ph. D., of Northboro, professor of mathematics, U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, '73 to '90; Baroa T. Lovewell, U. S. deputy collector, Providence, R. I.; John H. Ricketson, A. M., of Petersburg, Pa.; M. S. A. Royce, general manager, Thomson Electric Welding Company; M. Sibley Severance of Los Angeles, Cal., author of "His Harvard Days;" E. Marshall Steadman, lieutenant commander, U. S. N., retired in '75; Prof. William J. Morton of New York, specialist in mental diseases, University of Vermont; John H. Heuck, Jr., late instructor and secretary Massachusetts Institute of Technology; William B. Tappan, ex-United States vice and deputy consul, Merida, Yucatan; J. Trowbridge, S. D., professor and lecturer Harvard University; the late Henry H. Wilson, son of vice-president Wilson; George W. Woods of San Francisco, surgeon United States Navy; Warren P. Lombard, M. D., professor physiology, Michigan University, Ann Arbor; Tontoro Megate, commissioner of education to United States from Japan, now collector of customs at Yokohama; Fred H. Osgood, C. B., M. A., C. S., professor of veterinary surgery, Harvard University; Prince Juiyo Abzomiro Shimidzu of Japan; Hon. W. T. Forbes, judge of probate, Worcester; John F. Kent, principal High school, Concord, N. H.; Frank Mayo, actor; Prof. N. T. Cardozo, Brainard University, Chester, S. C.; William H. Caldwell, B. S., instructor State agricultural College, Pennsylvania; Miss Sara A. Fawcett, supervisor of drawing in the public schools of Newark, N. J.; Mrs. Mary C. Robbins, authoress; Mary L. Greene, L. L. B., practicing attorney, Providence, R. I.; Mary J. Hoags, teacher of vocal music in the Vermont Academy; Miss George L. Norton, principal of the Cleveland, O., school of art; Lena Oathank, actress, and many others prominent in educational, professional and business circles.

The instruction of the school is based upon the principles of Froebel and Pestalozzi, and aims to develop the body, mind and heart. The first kindergarten class in Massachusetts had its birth in this school in 1864.

In training youth and character building the endeavor of the faculty is to learn the family traits of the parents and grandparents, then to develop and strengthen the good and desirable traits and curtail and lessen the undesirable.

The school has stood on its merits, having no denominational or party influence, nor has it received any contributions of money as a gift or endowment.

At present there is not an unoccupied chair in the school. The principal, Mr. N. T. Allen, after 50 years in the school room, has just returned from a journey through 24 of the states and territories, meeting former students in many of the cities and towns. The trip through the Golden State was an especially pleasant feature of the tour.

It is a family school for both sexes, unique in that respect, as the pupils enjoy the features and privileges of home life.

Since the organization of the school over 4000 pupils have graduated. More than 1000 have come from foreign countries, nearly 500 from states outside of Massachusetts and 1200 from cities and towns outside of Newton.

Nathaniel Topf Allen, principal of the school, was born in Medford, Sept. 29, 1823. He was a son of Ellis and Lucy (Lane) Allen. His native homestead farm, purchased from the Indians, has been owned and tilled by seven generations of Allens, noted for longevity, sterling common sense and rugged worth.

Mr. Allen received his education in the public schools, in a family school at Northboro and Northfield Academy. After teaching three years Mr. Allen continued his studies in the Bridgewater Normal school under Nicholas Tillinghast, and in the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y. After teaching in the district and singing schools at Mansfield, Northboro and Northfield until the spring of 1848, he was appointed by the state board of education to the charge of the model department of the Normal school at West Newton. This position he filled with ability for six years, and at the close of that period of service, in connection with Cyrus Pierce, he established the West Newton English and Classical school.

Mr. Allen has been one of the most progressive and successful educators of the last half century. On the paternal side he traces his lineage to the Puritans of 1640, and on the maternal side to the Pilgrims of Plymouth.

He has been prominent in moral reforms. He was a Garrisonian, an abolitionist and advocates the principles of temperance, woman suffrage, civil service and tariff reform. In 1869 he was appointed an agent of the commissioner of public education and went abroad spending two years in studying the school systems of England, Scotland, Ireland, Italy, Austria and Prussia. He was included in the German empire. The result of his observations of the secondary schools, gymnasia, real and Volks Schulen of Prussia, Saxony and Nassau, are preserved in a report published and distributed by order of the secretary of the interior.

James Theodore Allen was born in Medford, Aug. 20, 1831. He worked on the home farm until 1851, graduating from the Bridgewater Normal school in the same year. He taught in the Provincetown common and high schools two years, and graduated from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1855. He was made rector of the training school and professor of English literature in the institute.

Mr. Allen travelled in Europe, and in the east in 1859-60, studying in Berlin. He married the daughter of Dr. E. A. Kittredge of Boston, in 1860, the same year becoming associate principal of the West Newton English and Classical school.

In 1872-74 he travelled with his family in Germany and Switzerland, and made a special study of German, Latin and Greek. Mr. Allen was again in Europe for travel with students in 1870.

Like his brother, he was an original abolitionist. He is a free silver Republican of the stalwart type, and has always been interested in political affairs. He was treasurer of the Newton Republican ward and city committee for five years.

In 1875 Mr. Allen declined an offer of the principality of the largest High school in San Francisco at an annual salary of $4500.

Joseph A. Allen, like the other brothers, was brought up on the Allen homestead in Medford, Mass. He commenced teaching common and singing schools when 15 years of age.

In 1842 he went to Syracuse, N. Y., as teacher in the Syracuse Academy. He remained there 18 years engaged in educational work, the last seven years as member of the board of education.

By the recommendations of Rev. Samuel J. May, Dr. S. G. Howe, Hon. George B. Emerson and other prominent educators, he was appointed superintendent of the Massachusetts Reform school when it was in such a condition that Gov. Banks had been obliged to remove the whole board of trustees on account of its demoralized state.

When he left Syracuse, the teachers of the city gave a public banquet in his honor at which the mayor, the city officials and clergymen of different denominations were present. The musicians of the city presented him with a silver service, he being the conductor of their musical institute.

His success as superintendent of the Reform school was such that in 1866 a commission, consisting of Dr. E. C. Winsor, D. D., Theodore W. Doughty, LL.D., appointed by the Legislature New York to visit the prisons and reformatories of the United States and Canada, reported: "If we might venture among so many excellent institutions, to single out any that seems to us to possess an excellence superior to others, we could not hesitate to name the Reform school of Massachusetts."

He was the first to introduce and organize the "family system" in a Reform school for boys in this state, placing over each family a man and his wife, instead of all men, as was done in Lancaster, O.

After several years he resigned his position, and through the influence of Andrew D. White, president of Cornell University, and such men, he accepted the position of president of one of the New York State Normal schools for teachers.

Andrew D. White, who was once his pupil, says in his article, "How I was Educated": "He was the best teacher of English branches I have ever known."

Mr. Allen left the Normal school with the highest recommendations to join his brother in the West Newton English and Classical school.

In 1881 the Massachusetts State Reform school was in such a state of insubordination that the judges and other prominent people of the state urged him to take charge of the institution again, which he did.

Under his management the school was again brought under control, and in 1885, Andrew D. White, president of Cornell University, and such men, he accepted the position of president of one of the New York State Normal schools for teachers.

He is now living in the old homestead on Medford, where he has a few pupils in his care, and he keeps up, as ever, a lively interest in all educational matters and reforms of the day.

In connection with the reunion all past pupils of the school who have not received invitations or been communicated with should address at once "Reunion Committee," P. O. box 147, Boston.

REMARKABLE

Experience of a Waldo County Woman.

Whose Thrilling Story is Certified to by Well Known Parties in the City of Biddeford, Maine.

She relates it as follows:

"About two years ago my health began to fail. It gradually failed until early last winter I was obliged to take my bed, and I grew rapidly worse. I tried the various sarsaparillas advertised and consulted several physicians who prescribed for me but to no avail. My appetite failed me, I grew weaker as my disease kept gaining upon me. I had a terrible cough and raised a large amount of bloody pus from my lungs, a fearful pain in my chest and side and a deadly pain under my shoulder blades extending down my back.

"My flesh had all vanished from my body until I was a mere shadow of my former self; had terrible night sweats every night and no desire for food. In fact my stomach was in such a shape it would not contain nourishment that was forced down my throat as nothing seemed to agree with me. I was going like dew before the sun, and the month of April last I got so very low I had to be bolstered up in bed to breathe, for I could neither lie down or sit up, as I would faint when they raised me up, and I could not breathe when lying down. A physician from Massachusetts was in our town and I called him. He gave me no encouragement, and told my attendant not to sleep in the same room with me, as I had tubercular consumption and it was contagious, and if she caught it from me, it was incurable. I then called one of the leading physicians in Maine, who gave me a thorough examination, and said my lungs were badly diseased, also my liver, and that I could live but a few days. In this state of affairs, bolstered up in bed to breathe, with my feet and legs swollen to my body, a terrible cough, spitting blood, night sweats and death staring me in the face, by recommendation of a friend I commenced the use of Rodolf's New Medical Discovery. In the first day's use that faint all-gone feeling in my stomach left me. I continued the use and every day's use seemed to build me up. My appetite began to come back, my cough loosened up and gradually left me, my night sweats ceased and the pains and aches left my body.

I gained very rapidly, my appetite was better, and my food did not distress me, and in three weeks I was sitting up and had my clothes on. I have continued the use of the Discovery, together with Rodolf's Cream Emulsion, and in two weeks more I was able to do most of my housework, in six weeks I was feeling as well as I have for years doing my work and finished a few pairs of pants each day, for a clothing manufacturer in this town. This seems incredible but it is true and the townspeople will testify to it."

Not Ready.

(From the Detroit Tribune.)

Her brown hair was drawn simply away from her fair young brow, and her blue eyes had a subdued sadness in them.

She stood aloof from the other young ladies whose hair was drawn simply away from their young brows and whose eyes had subdued sadness in them.

A soft sigh fluttered the delicate lace upon her tender bosom.

"No," she mused, "I am not worthy."

A tear of a distinctively blinding variety welled from the usual source and coursed down her cheek.

The suggestion of a sob was noticeable in her tone.

"—must not deceive my dear teachers. I am not prepared to graduate, and were I to take the degree today, I must ever have with me the distressing consciousness of unworthiness. They who trust me know it not, but I am aware in my own heart that the ribbons on my dress do not exactly match those upon my essay. No, it must not be."

Burying her face in her handkerchief she tottered from the company of the sweet girl graduates.

The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid or a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. 50c.

—Mr. John Briggs and family, Parker street, have gone to Chatham for the warm season.

—Mr. W. H. Pulsifer and family have returned from St. Louis, Mo., for a short time.

—Mr. Geo. S. Drake and family have returned to St. Louis.

—Mr. D. B. Harding and family are at North Falmouth for the season.

—Mr. D. T. Kidder, Jr., and family, are at North Falmouth beach for the season.

—T. Irving Crowell and family are at South Yarmouth.

—Mr. Asa C. Jewett attended the anniversary celebration of the National Lancers in Boston, Wednesday, of which he is a member.

—Mr. A. L. Harwood and family have closed their residence on Beacon street and are at Ware, Mass., for the season.

—Mr. Edward Brattle Oliver, the blind musician residing on Parker street, who has been very seriously ill, is somewhat improved at this writing.

—Robert Weir has commenced the erection of a new house on Trowbridge street, which he will occupy when completed. Contractor Muldoon is putting in the foundation.

—There are at the postoffice letters addressed as follows: C. Johnson, Miss Lida B. Loar, Edgar Libbey, Timothy Quills, Katherine Scully.

—Miss L. A. L. Emery of Hancock avenue has closed her house for a portion of the season and is at her cottage at Pigeon Cove.

—Mr. Walter C. Brooks and family, Laurel street, have closed their house for the season and are at Pocasset, their summer home.

—The annual memorial service of the Newton Old Fellows is to be held Sunday, June 18, at the Universalist church, Newtonville.

—W. O. Knapp & Co. have an "Olive Window" this week, in which are placed olives shipped direct from Bordeaux, France, for this enterprising firm.

—Sparks from a locomotive on the Boston & Albany ignited a shed belonging to Mr. Albany Cousins and called out the fire department, Sunday evening. The damage was slight.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Lowell, Jr., of Chestnut Hill, left town yesterday for the World's Exposition at Chicago, and before their return will visit Philadelphia, Mrs. Lowell's former home.

—Mr. H. G. Chase and family of Boston occupied their new home this week, on Parker street, more familiarly known as the Bassett estate. The house has been rebuilt and modernized, and is one of the most attractive residences in the place.

—A bicycle was stolen from the stable on Mr. Geo. E. Craft's place on Beacon street, Tuesday night. The fact was reported to the police.

—Mr. Harvey Blunt and family have left their Boston house on Tremont street and are occupying the residence of Mr. D. B. Harding on Beacon street for the summer.

—It is reported that Miss Annie Bassett, formerly of this place, is soon to be married.

—Master Lawrence Clapp of Minnesota, formerly of Mt. Ida, Newton, is stopping awhile with Mr. W. C. Brooks.

—Rev. Dr. Butler, presiding elder of Mexico, preached Sunday morning at the Methodist church. Dr. Butler is visiting his father, Rev. Wm. Butler, D. D., of Crescent avenue, for the first time in several years.

—William Bliss has fitted his shop up in excellent order since he put in his new steam engine, and the latter has been kept busy the past week or so. A new boiler with an extra safety appliance furnishes steam for the engine which is almost noiseless when in operation.

—Mr. Dwight Chester and Miss Chester, of Parker street, and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hamlin of Pelham street, are in Chicago. Messrs. Chester and Hamlin are members of the Mass. State Delegation.

—A very interesting missionary meeting was held last Friday evening at the Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Karmarka, the high caste Brahmin who has recently finished an educational course in this country together with his wife occupied the time very acceptably. He described the customs of his people in a very interesting manner, and Mrs. Karmarka confirmed her remarks more particularly to the feminine characters. The meeting was well attended, and at its close a collection was taken.

—Mr. L. H. Morse, a graduate of Worcester academy, class of '90, and of the Newton Theological Institution class of '93, was ordained to the ministry at the South Baptist church, Worcester, Monday evening. He is under appointment by the Baptist Missionary Union as missionary to La Kunga in the Congo Free State. The sermon was preached by Rev. John M. English of this place, and other clergymen took part in the exercises.

—Cards are out announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Pamela Dana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Whiting of Ellsworth, Me., to Mr. Edward B. Bowen of Newton. The ceremony will be performed on Monday, June 19, at the bride's home in Ellsworth, and on the following Wednesday a reception will be held at the Vendome, Boston, from 8 until 11 o'clock.

—Willard B. Monroe had rather a rough experience Tuesday night, when returning from Waltham with a load of provisions. He was driving through Homer street, just after passing the Pine Farm school, at about 8 o'clock, when he was accosted by a man who wanted to ride. Monroe stopped his horse and told him to get on. As soon as the man got in he demanded Monroe's money and grabbed him by the throat. The latter finally overpowered his assailant after a hard struggle and pitched him out of the cart. Monroe's face was badly bruised and skinned, and he was very fortunate in coming out of the struggle first best as he had quite a sum of money with him.

—Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Mills celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their residence on Gibbs street, Wednesday, receiving informally during the afternoon and evening from 3 to 8. Those present, with the exception of a delegation of Baptist clergymen who had been intimate with Rev. Dr. Mills during his successful pastoral labors, were largely relatives and family connections. Three generations of the Mills family were represented. The apartments were very effectively decorated with palms and cut flowers. The "happy" couple were the recipients of hearty congratulations, and were made the pleased possessors of a number of valuable golden gifts, tokens of respect and esteem.

—Rev. C. A. Young of Lancaster, S. H., will occupy the pulpit of the Unitarian Society next Sunday. Service at 10.45. Sunday school at 12. This will be the last session of the school until after the summer vacation.

—Mr. Charles A. Greenidge, a resident of the Island of Barbados, is at the Hotel Pelham for a few weeks.

—Miss Florence Iredell of Allentown, Pa., is the guest of Mrs. H. G. Ruhe, Pleasant street.

—The services at the First Congregational church on Sunday will all be held in the vestry, on account of repairs now being made.

—Miss Blake of Worcester is in this place again for a few days.

—Mr. Edward F. Hamlin of Pelham street, executive clerk at the State House, has left for the World's Fair in a company that includes three ex-governors of Massachusetts, Messrs. Banks, Long and Ames.

—The window sash and smooth wood work that was being made in Waltham for a number of houses for Messrs. Garey & English, was burnt last week with a mill. Messrs. Garey & English are, with the aid of Mr. Bliss with his steam engine, trying to make up for time and material lost.

—The sewer work on Homer street has been completed and the Newton & Boston Street Railway Co. laid the last rail to complete the track to Newton Centre this week. The wires have been up for more than a week and the line is now complete as far as summer street, where the sewer is not yet finished. A trial car was run over the track last night to test its working, and Saturday, June 17, at noon, the cars will be started on regular trips, running every twenty minutes between Summer street and Newtonville square.

—A young lad was arrested Saturday evening by Officer Condrin for obstructing the sidewalk. The boy was requested to move three different times, and was then placed under arrest and taken to the Central station at West Newton, where he was placed in a cell. In some way the cell was not securely fastened, and the boy finding it out climbed out the corridor window and escaped. A warrant was issued for his arrest Monday, as he did not appear, and in court Tuesday he was fined for obstructing the sidewalk and for resisting arrest.

—Mrs. Mary A. Stone, widow of Mr. James F. Stone, who died in Cambridge 13 years ago, died last Sunday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Ellen M. Bond, Pelham street. She had been in feeble health for some years and had been with her daughter about two years. Her age was 70 years. There was services at the house on Tuesday, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hughes. The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Auburn. There are now living of the family five brothers and two daughters.

—Children's Sunday was very generally observed among the various churches. The Congregational and Methodist societies held children's services in the afternoon. At the former a special feature was the part taken by the infant department, the little ones acquitting themselves remarkably well under their pastor's guidance, and then followed an interesting program participated in by the older departments. The Methodist service included recitations and singing by primary, and the other departments, composing a program which proved very enjoyable to the large audience present. The floral decorations received many words of praise.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos rented and tuned, Farley, Newton

—Mrs. Edward A. White of Hotel Cluny, Boston, is at her summer home in Newton Highlands.

—Mr. Edward A. Bryant of New York is spending a few days here.

—Rev. Mr. Thrall of Salt Lake City will have charge of the services at the Congregational church next Sunday.

—Eight o'clock in the morning is now the hour for the celebration of the Holy Communion at St. Paul's.

—Mr. John R. Henderson, who was overcome with the heat two weeks ago, was taken to the Cottage Hospital, has returned to the Highlands.

—The Shumway family, who have been visiting at Groton for a few weeks, are at home again.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Benson of Columbus street are at home from their European trip.

—Miss Cushing of Boston is at Mrs. Cobb's for the summer.

—The Chautauqua Circle will meet next Monday at Mrs. Logan's.

—Rev. Mr. Ayer of the Boston University will occupy the M. E. pulpit next Sunday. Evening service at 7.30.

—The M. E. Society will give a lawn party on the grounds of E. J. Hyde next Wednesday evening of pleasant, if stormy on Thursday.

—See adv. of "Summer board" at Newton Highlands.

—Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Kimball wish to extend their gratitude to their many friends for their help and kindness during the recent illness of their son.

—Mr. John Galvin, who was arrested for drunkenness, and appeared at the police court, was discharged on probation.

—Mr. Philip Nickerson is having his veranda enlarged by the addition of a Pagoda.

—Mr. Horace Bacon is having a cellar dug for a house on his land on Eliot Heights, in the rear of the new house just finished for Mr. Thompson of the Pettie Machine Works.

—Last Sunday at the Twilight Service at St. Paul's church Mr. H. P. Ayer sang two solos which were greatly appreciated as aiding the beauty and devotion of the service. The anthem "To Thee do I lift up my Soul" was excellently rendered by the choir.

—At next Sunday's Twilight Service in St. Paul's church 7 p. m. Master Frank L. Wood will be the soloist. He will sing "Jerusalem, thou that kildest the Prophets" from "St. Paul" by Mendelssohn, and "Come unto Me" from "Emmanuel" by Trowbridge.

—Next Sunday services at St. Paul's church will be as follows: Holy Communion, 8 a. m. Morning prayer and sermon, 10.45 a. m. Sunday school, 12.15 p. m. Twilight service (musical) 7 p. m.

—Last Sunday was children's day at the Congregational church, at which an opportunity was given for parents to present their infant children for baptism, but this year none were presented but two lads, the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Eagles and the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hall. They were presented with handsome Bibles, if being ten years since they were presented for baptism.

—The Children's Day Festival exercises, held by the Sunday school of the Congregational church, Sunday evening, were most enjoyable. The chorus singing under the skilful lead of Mrs. Logan, pianist, was inspiring, while the song birds in their cages catching the spirit as the school marched in from the chapel, added their sweetest and loveliest notes during the evening. Recitations and songs were given in connection with "living pictures," which last with long remain in the memories of those present as beautiful reminders of the occasion. Dr. Dunning, whose service in our pulpit have been so much enjoyed, addressed the audience in his usual happy manner. Mention should be made of the choice rendering of Excell's, "Consider the Lilies," by Miss Newell, Mrs. Whitney, Mr. Pennell and Mr. Ayer to whom special thanks are due.

—On Friday afternoon the ladies of the Monday Club gave a delightful reception to their president, Mrs. Kathleen M. Phipps, at the residence of Mrs. Geo. M. Stone, Walnut street. Mrs. Phipps was the founder of the Monday Club, and for many years its presiding officer, and the pleasantest feature of the occasion was the presentation to her, by the members of the club, of an elegant gold watch and chain in grateful recognition of her services. The watch was suitably engraved, enclosed in a plush case and accompanied by a written testimonial. The presentation was made in a very pleasing manner by Mrs. Nickerson and Mrs. Phipps, after recovering somewhat from the surprise, made a feeling response. The residence of Mrs. Stone was beautifully decorated with vines and flowers, green with a durable suit of Boy's clothes, 50 cents; regular price, $2. Better quality of Boy's Suits, $1 and $2; regular price, $2 and $3. Boys' Pants, 15 cents; regular price, 25 cents. Better quality of Boy's Pants, 25 cents; regular price, $1. NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—The silk mill has been idle a portion of the week in consequence of the breakage of some of the main shafting.

—Saturday afternoon the South Worcester cricket club beat Newton, 42 to 17, on the Sutton lane grounds in Worcester. Newton showed lack of practice.

—The Albion Cricket club of Highlandville will play the Newtons on the 17th of July at Highlandville. Arrangements for the match commencing in the morning at 11 o'clock.

—Echo Park will open tomorrow with a band carnival and suitable celebration if the weather is pleasant. A good deal of expense has been incurred in fitting up the place and it is now to be thrown open to the use of the public with attractions galore.

—Last Saturday night was one of the liveliest in some circles that has occurred lately, and its effects in some cases did not wear off until late Sunday night. One of the many incidents Saturday night was the burning of a keg of beer stored in an out of the way shanty on Chestnut street by a youth residing on another street. The keg was rolled down Chestnut street to Eliot street to "Canada," (Needham,) and there its contents were emptied, but not in the street. This is only one of a dozen or more incidents where a beer barrel conspired the company gathered about it. Expresses were busy this week returning the empty kegs.

—The services at the Methodist church children's Sunday were unusually interesting. Rev. Mr. Fellows, the pastor, delivered a sermon particularly adapted to the children. The church was made attractive by the presence of a large number of an efficient committee. In the evening a children's service was held, in which the Sunday school took part. The exercises were in charge of the following committee, whose contents were emptied, but not in the street. This is only one of a dozen or more incidents where a beer barrel conspired the company gathered about it. Expresses were busy this week returning the empty kegs.

—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Stearns celebrated their 40th anniversary at their residence on Watertown street, last Friday. They were married in the home, and have always lived there, and the estate has been in the family for over 150 years, the original name of the family still standing. There were a large number present at the anniversary, from the large number attending. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns were assisted by a large orchestra furnished music, a supper was served and it was a very pleasant occasion.

—At the Immanuel Baptist church last Sunday Rev. George E. Merrill preached to the children and the usual services of children's Sunday were observed, the church having been prettily decorated with flowers and dowers. Next Sunday Mr.
Merrill's sermon will be specially to the aged.

—The civil service examination for clerks and carriers in the Newton postoffice was held last Saturday in Mr. Cutler's school room. Messrs. Mullen, Fairwell and Lowe, the examining committee had charge of the exercises. There were two applicants for a clerkship and four for the position of carrier. The papers have been forwarded to the chief examiner's office.

—The Loyal Temperance Legion, which meets every Monday at 4 p. m. in the Y.
M. C. A. rooms, has established a flower mission on a small scale. Each week five delegates with their leader, Mrs. Simpson, will distribute flowers in Boston. Their last trip was to the streets of the north end.
The children make their own bouquets and write out the accompanying scripture texts.

—The Newton police have been making numerous arrests of late for drunkenness along the line of Tremont street, adjacent to Brighton, joining the efforts of the Boston police to break up the gang that has been infesting that section and who get their liquor from unlicensed kitchen bar rooms in this vicinity. It is proposed to put a stop to the illegal selling, and beside to make it a rather precarious spot for the persons who have been patronizing the places.

—On Tuesday next, June 27, at Hotel Hunnewell, there will be a sale of stamped goods and art embroideries, from the rooms of Walter M. Eddy, 24 Temple Place, Boston. Mr. Eddy had a sale here for the first time, last season, and his designs were much admired for their originality and artistic merit. This season many new designs have been added and the ladies of Newton are cordially invited to inspect them.

—Nonantum intends to have a big celebration the night before the Fourth when the new street railway is opened. All of Watertown street will be illuminated, there will be fireworks, music, etc.

—The pupils of Miss Spear's school gave their annual exhibition in Eliot Hall, Thursday afternoon, and in spite of the rain there was a large attendance of parents and friends. The Wallace Thayer prize was awarded to Ernest R. Lowe, and the exercises consisted of music, recitations, plays and the presentation of diplomas.

Next year the school will occupy rooms in Bacon's block.

—The tournament of the Waban Racquet Club, announced for June 17, was postponed on account of the inclement weather.

—The old "stone" mansion on Galen street is being razed to the ground, and an old historic landmark is thus removed from a spot where it has stood for more than a century. The old brass knocker was secured by a Newton relic hunter.

—Messrs. Harold Hutchinson and Ordner Nichols entertained members of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity in University Hall, Harvard College grounds, Cambridge, this week.

—Dr. R. A. Reid has built a cottage at North Scituate, which he will occupy with his family during the vacation period.

—Miss Phelps of New York, who has been the guest of Mrs. T. R. Brooke, Vernon street, returned home Tuesday.

—Mr. J. E. Ammons is in Chicago this week.

—Councilman George M. Weed is visiting the Chicago exposition.

—Mr. George McFarland and family will pass a portion of the summer season at Mattanoisett.

—Messrs. Lewis E. C. Bowditch and Fletcher B. C. Fin are enjoying a two weeks' visit at the World's fair.

—The large telegraph pole near the Centre street crossing, which supports two cables and upwards of 100 wires, connecting with the central telephone office, came tipping over Wednesday evening, and the service was somewhat crippled, but the quick work of the linemen helped to straighten out matters, and the broken part was spliced temporarily. A new and larger pole will be substituted.

—Newton was very well represented at the Eastern Division meet of the American Canoe Association, which was held at Haddam Island on the Connecticut river, June 16, 17, 18 and 19. The members of the Newton club who attended the meet and participated in the good times were Messrs. Louis S. Drake, Francis J. Burrage, John F. Linder, George Smith, Wm. V.
Forsyth and Walter U. Lawson. Drake and Burrage again carried off the Division honors in the 1-2 mile tandem paddling event, after a most exciting race and each received a handsome prize. Mr. Smith succeeded in winning first place in the "hand paddling" contest, and Mr. Kinder captured second prize in the "standing paddling" race. Burrage also won second place in the "hurry-scurry" race. The meet proved to be most successful notwithstanding the inclement weather of Saturday, and the Newton men enjoyed themselves in the extreme.

AUBURDALE.

—G. Lyman Snow is serving as jurymen at the term of the Superior Court at East Cambridge.

Mrs. Fisher's house on Pigeon Hill.

The last of the June concerts at the clubhouse of the Newton Boat Club will occur Saturday evening, the American Watch Co. band of Waltham furnishing music.

—President Newton Bateman, L. L. D. of Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., was in Auburndale this week on his way to York, Me. He is the brother-in-law of Mr. Frank Tyler and of Miss E. B.
Tyler. Frank has also gone to York.

—The first "at home" of Mr. and Mrs.
William A. Hall (nee Peabody), occurred Friday afternoon and evening at the home of the groom's parents on Ash street. It was a very informal affair and very enjoyable to the large number attending. Mr. and Mrs. Hall received in a front room surrounded with floral decorations. Ices and lemonade were served in the dining room, which was very prettily trimmed for the occasion, by Misses Hamilton and Dennison.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Dillingham of Woodland avenue gave a large reception at their residence, Wednesday evening, on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Some 400 invitations were issued and the house was filled with guests throughout the hours of the reception. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flowers and foliage, and the guests were entertained in a front room by Mr. and Mrs. Dillingham, assisted by Isaac S. Dillingham, Jr. and Miss Fannie and Miss Marion Dillingham. The ushers were Messrs.
Arthur Tourjee, Walter Dillingham, John Harlow and Charles Hardy. Refreshments were served in the dining room and many tokens of esteem were left commemorative of the occasion.

WABAN.

—Mr. Harlow was in town Monday.

—Mr. Campbell of Waban avenue is quite seriously ill.

—Officer Mitchell was off duty for two or three nights this week.

—Mrs. J. H. Robinson and son returned Thursday from a visit to Middleboro, Mass.

from the Harvard Medical School for the summer.

—Mr. Wm. Dresser and daughter spent Sunday at Dartmouth, Mass.

—Guy H. Maynard bought at auction Wednesday three frame houses on Waban avenue, for $22,300. With each house was a lot of land of about 15,000 square feet.

—We are glad to learn that Mrs. F. H. Henshaw is slowly recovering from her dangerous illness and it is expected that she will soon be removed to her home.

—The three houses at the corner of Beacon and Chestnut streets, have been purchased by a resident of this village. They will be removed and the place greatly improved.

—Miss Dinnie and Miss Morse gave a picnic to the pupils of Waban school, last Wednesday. After the luncheon the children played games and had a general merry making. The picnic was voted a great success.

—To-morrow afternoon and evening will witness one of the most brilliant and successful of Waban's social affairs in the "Lawn Party" of the Waban Improvement Society. The extensive grounds of Mr.

Win Gould will be used for that purpose and during the evening they will be illuminated by calcium lights and Chinese lanterns. Athletic contests of various natures will occupy the afternoon while in the evening there will be dancing, charades, etc. Refreshments are to be served.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—But one concern suspended business Saturday the 17th.

—The opening of the new grove at Upper Falls, Sunday, attracted quite a number from this village and Wellesley.

—Dalhousie Lodge, F. and A. M. will attend St. Mary's in a body next Sunday. A discourse will be delivered by the Chaplain, Rev. H. U. Monro.

—Rev. P. H. Callahan of St. John's church arrived home Monday evening after an eight weeks sojourn in the west. A reception was tendered him by his congregation, Thursday evening.

—The ladies of the Methodist church held their annual lawn party on the 17th, and as usual attracted quite a number from this village and Wellesley. The result of the party was a very successful one, and the receipts were quite satisfactory.

—A number of the friends of Miss Addie Richardson, took advantage of the occurrence of her birthday to pay her a surprise visit at her residence on Grove street on Monday evening last. During the evening they presented her with a handsome photograph album as a token of their affection and esteem. Refreshments were served, and all seemed to have a good time.

—Officer Carman took into custody Fritz Butchman of Wellesley, last Saturday morning, charged with the murder of Jacob Little on June 3rd. The deed was committed near the Natick line and suspicion pointed so strongly against the accused that a warrant was issued for his arrest. At a hearing last Monday before Judge Washburn he was discharged on account of insufficient evidence.

—The Epworth League held its last monthly social and business meeting for the season with Mr. Gilbert Taylor on Wednesday evening last. "The Literary Gleaner," a paper edited and read by Miss Vina Hastings, was presented. Refreshments were served, and at a seasonable hour, the company dispersed, with the best of wishes for their host and hostess.

—Dr. Geo. S. Chadbourne, presiding elder of Boston district, will preach at the Methodist church on Sunday evening, the 25th, the services beginning at 7.30.
The first quarterly conference of the year will be held at the close of the preaching services.

—Miss Mary Fuller Jordan, daughter of Counsellman Allen Jordan of Newton, and
Mr. Edward Blodgett Parker of Wellesey Hills were married last evening in St.
Mary's church. The chancel was effectively decorated with groups of palms and a profusion of wild flowers, great bunches of daisies forming an especially tasteful and pretty feature. The bride entered upon the arm of her father, preceded by the ushers, maid of honor and bridesmaids.
The groom and his best man, Mr. George W. Gilbert of Newton Lower Falls, waited just below the chancel, and the groom advanced with the bride to the altar. Rev.
H. Usher Monro, assisted by Rev. A. B.
Shields of Pontiac, R. I., performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock. The bride was gowned in white silk, en train, trimmed with white lace. She wore the customary long veil and carried a bouquet of Annie Jameson of Woburn, was gowned in pink silk, and the bridesmaids, Miss Emily F.
Jordan and Miss Elizabeth Curry, were attired in costumes of pink dimity. A reception for the families and intimate friends was held at the home of the bride's parents, Concord street, Newton Lower Falls, at the close of which Mr. and Mrs.
Parker departed on their wedding tour.
They will reside, upon their return, in Wellesley Hills.

The graduation exercises of colleges and schools bring a demand for presentation mementoes to teachers and mates. Parian statuary in the form of busts and statuettes of poets, musical composers and ideal celebrities have been imported by Jones, McDuffee & Stratton.

Roland W. Macurdy's special sale of millinery at his store in Waltham has been largely patronized by the ladies of the Newtons, during this week, who have found the goods to be of the best and the prices as quoted. This sale continues through the week with an extra discount on all of the trimmed hats and bonnets for Saturday. The well known reputation of this establishment is a guarantee of its offer.

Clean your Furnace.

The care of a furnace demands that at this season of the year it be thoroughly cleaned, to prevent rusting, which otherwise would follow in the months of non-usage and also to insure full heating capacity when in use. These are well known facts best taken advantage of by leaving an order with John S. Sumner, who does all such work in the most satisfactory manner.

Tremont Theatre.

On Monday evening next, June 26, this beautiful theatre will re-open its doors to the public, and for its first offering of the Pauline Hall opera season will present for the first time in Boston the charming opera by Ceballos, "Amorita." Miss Pauline Hall will appear as Angelita, a young Italian, which role she created on the original production of "Amorita" in this country at the New York Casino, where the success of the opera was instantaneous, and a run of 120 nights the result. The present staging of the opera will be under the direction of the manager, and the costumes and armors are among the handomest ever seen in this country and the scenery, especially prepared, is artistic and realistic.
The personnel of Miss Hall's company is of unusual and even strength, and the chorus, enlarged to 50, is of great power and brilliance. Since the house has been closed a thorough renovation has taken place, and every chance for improvement taken advantage of. With the summer chairs, draperies and the new ventilating and cooling system, the Tremont Theatre will be absolutely the most perfect and the coolest place of amusement in New England. "Puritania" will be put into preparation as soon as the season opens, and it will follow the run of "Amorita." The box office is now open for the sale of seats, and the scale of prices is the same as that of last summer. As a special attraction, Messrs. Abbey, Schoeffel & Gran will introduce with each opera one of their great European specialties, and beginning with "Amorita," Mile. Zozo the great Premiere will appear on Monday evening, June 26.
She has been one of the great magicians in "America" now running at the Auditorium, Chicago. Among the great specialists likely to appear during the summer are Sandow, the strong man; the great Schaeffer family and others now appearing at the World's Fair.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE GAMEWELL COMPANY'S HEARING—GRADE CROSSINGS TAKEN UP—THE SEWER ORDINANCE.

Both branches of the city council were in session Monday evening. In the board of aldermen all were present and Mayor Fenno presided.

Mayor Fenno re-appointed Charles W. Ross superintendent of streets.

The following were appointed special policemen: W. E. Fuller, J. W. Gaw, Nathaniel Seaver, Geo. M. Redmond, Wade E. Dearborn, W. J. Green and Wm. Butler.

A message was received from the Common Council relating that they had refused to pass the civil service ordinance, and refused the petition for a hearing for the Gamewell Company.

The board of health gave notice of a hearing for a sewer on Waltham street for the Davis school and one for the Pierce school.

W. J. Hackett asked for license for pool table on Chestnut street, Ward 3.

R. G. Chidsey gave notice of intention to build house, 38x48, on Berkeley street.

An incandescent light was asked for on Otis street.

Concrete sidewalks were asked for on Homer street.

Henry Green was appointed special policeman at the Newton Rubber Co.

Alderman Roffe read a communication from Geo. W. Cobb, relating to the arrest of H. F. Cobb, his son, by Officer Condrin, and asking that a police officer be stationed at the Newton Centre police station during the night. A communication was also received from a large number of prominent citizens, stating the facts of the case to be that the boys were sitting on one end of the postoffice steps, which are not on the sidewalk but on private property, were not obstructing travel, but the officer ordered them to disperse, and as they did not go fast enough to suit him, he arrested young Cobb, who thought the officer had no right to touch him and tried to twist away. He was taken to the cell but not locked in and the boy walked out and went home. On Monday the officer got a warrant but did not serve it till 10 p. m. and took the boy to the station, charging him with being a loafer and assaulting an officer. The lateness of the hour made it difficult to secure bail and it was 10 o'clock before he could be bailed out. In court four witnesses proved there was no assault, but the boy was fined. It looked like a case of spite as if one boy was guilty, all were. The boy is a quiet orderly boy.

The boy's companions also signed a paper stating that young Cobb was innocent, and asking for an investigation.

An order transferring $48.51 from the appropriation for buying horses for the fire department was transferred to that for incidentals.

Theodore Nickerson asked for sewer on Myrtle street from Washington to Temple street.

B. F. Houghton asked for sewer on Elm street.

A. D. S. Bell asked to have Manet road accepted to the width of 40 feet.

A street light was asked for on the corner of Beacon street and Lake avenue.

The sum of $30 was appropriated for expenses of Memorial day.

SEWER ORDINANCE.

Alderman Bothfield reported the draft of the sewer ordinance with a minority report signed by Councilman Geo. M. Weed, who thought the present ordinance could not be improved upon, and that abutters ought to be taxed 75 per cent.

Alderman Bothfield presented an order repealing all orders and ordinances relating to assessments for sewerage purposes, according to authority granted by the late legislature.

Alderman Roffe asked why repeal them, when the present assessment was satisfactory, and he voted no, but the order was passed.

Alderman Bothfield then moved that the ordinance reported from the committee be passed to be enrolled, with an amendment, that 50 per cent of the cost, instead of 75, be paid by the city and 50 by the abutters. The cost of the sewers being fixed at $2.08 1/2 cents a foot, that the assessment be fixed at 15 cents per front foot, and 5 1/2 cents per square foot of area to a depth of 180 feet.

Alderman Roffe said he had serious objections against this order, as it shifted the burden from where it belonged to parties who got the benefit, to those who got no benefit and would get none for twenty years. He trusted it would not be passed, but the amendment passed 6 to 1.

The ordinance was then passed to be enrolled by the same vote, Alderman Roffe only voting no.

GRADE CROSSINGS AT LAST.

Alderman Bothfield presented an order that the Mayor and two aldermen be a committee to confer with the officers of the Boston & Albany in regard to the removal of grade crossings. Passed.

Mayor Fenno appointed Aldermen Bothfield and Roffe as members of the committee.

SEWER HEARINGS.

At the hearing on sewer on Russell court, asked for by C. S. Keene, Mr. Henry Ross objected on the ground that it was unnecessary as far as his property was concerned, and he did not think it would be for the benefit of the city or of the property owners; if he did, he should favor it. Only one party desired it and his house was on Walnut street.

The next hearing was on taking private land on Boyd and Fayette streets. Wm. Hopkinson objected, and could not see why the sewer should not be built in the street.

Mayor Fenno said the street was in Watertown and the city could not enter that territory.

Mr. Geo. E. Pike said he was a taxpayer in Newton but a citizen of Watertown. He felt sorry for Mr. Hopkinson, as he took the matter much to heart, and as he had given part of his land to Newton and to Watertown for just such purposes, he did not see why it could not be used. He thought all that was necessary would be to have the sewer committee of the two places confer together and an arrangement could be made and the chairman of the Watertown selectmen had told him that he would be glad to entertain any proposition from Newton.

If Mr. Hopkinson was young and wealthy he could defy the city, but he was old and poor and felt so badly that he wanted to sell out if his land was cut up. It was too bad to incur so much unnecessary expense because two communities could not agree.

The fuel committee was authorized to advertise for 2,000 tons of coal, the same as last year.

UNION STREET.

was ordered widened, no one appearing at the hearing on the question.

On motion of Alderman Emerson the Mayor and the city treasurer were authorized to have blank sewer loan certificates printed, of $1000 each, to run 30 years, and pay not over 4 per cent. to the amount of $100,000.

The Water Board was authorized to lay 220 feet of pipe in Appleton street, at a cost of $201; 325 feet on Grove street, $508; 1075 feet on Cabot and Langdon streets, the whole to cost $2,841.

An order was passed allowing citizens to discharge fireworks July 4th on their own premises.

Arthur Hudson petitioned for a 6th class liquor license.

F. M. Dutch asked for license to put up awning on Chestnut street.

W. F. Hahn was granted license to run a private telephone wire.

F. L. Chamberlain was licensed to remodel building on Brook street.

The Newton & Boston Street Railway was granted license to connect their power house on Homer street, with the trolley system.

The West End Street Railway Co. were granted license to put up a trolley system and operate it on Centre street, with the necessary poles and wires.

John Monaghan was granted a carriage license with stand at West Newton station, by vote of 4 to 3.

H. A. Spear was granted license to build addition to stable on Centre street.

Dr. W. H. McOwen was granted license to build private stable on Chestnut street.

W. L. and J. A. Lodge were granted license to build granite church on Walnut street.

A petition for concrete walks on Temple street was received.

The amendment to the Board of Health ordinance was passed to be enrolled.

The order from the lower branch appropriating $750 for new fire alarm boxes was tabled.

The chief of fire department recommended better water service in the district bounded by Washington, Court, Crafts and Clinton street.

Amos Hale gave notice of intention to build house 26 by 28 on Oak street.

J. J. Eddy asked for crosswalk at junction of Hunter and Putnam streets.

A hearing was granted for July 10th, on taking land for sewers on Oxford road, and between Paul and Centre streets.

The board then adjourned, at a few minutes past 12 o'clock.

THE GAMEWELL COMPANY MAKE OUT A STRONG CASE.

The hearing granted to the Gamewell Company by the board of aldermen attracted a large crowd, Monday evening, Mr. S. L. Powers appeared as counsel for the Gamewell company and Mr. J. R. Smith for the Municipal company. In addition the Municipal company had an assortment of instruments and experts to play with them and give technical information, which is always of little importance before non-professionals.

The hearing was opened by S. L. Powers, who said he appeared as counsel for the company, and more especially as a citizen of Newton, who was interested in having the interests of the city protected. The matter was not an important one as far as dollars and cents were concerned, but it involved the proper protection of the city against fire. Newton has always had an excellent fire department and the best appliances and boxes for its fire alarm system. As a result of this we have very low insurance rates here, because the insurance companies have confidence in our system. It was installed in 1873, by the Gamewell Co., and all additions had been made by that company, and the system had always given satisfaction and had been endorsed by the citizens and by those in charge of the fire department. It was very important for the protection of life and property to have the fire alarm system the best that could be had. He had never heard of any complaint of the workings of the system, since it was installed, and the system had been now in successful operation for a third of a century. It had its apparatus in nearly every city in this state, and in every state in the Union, and in all it had some 600 plants in operation. It was the oldest and the largest company in the business, and its plants were in all the large cities, and it held the field as the best system that has had a practical trial. There was no need of going out of the city to find evidence, as any of the officials of the fire department could be questioned. When everything was so satisfactory, consider as business men the result of putting in another box, with a different device, which the company claim is so different from the Gamewell as not to be an infringement of their patents, and is there not likely to be more or less interference? Take a watch and get part of the works in Waltham and put in Watertown, and you expect to put them together and have the watch keep good time. This Municipal company was only organized a year ago last December, and has been doing business only about a year. Its officers claim there would be no difficulty in attaching it to the Gamewell system, but it would take time and expense to prove this, and experiments might be costly. The members of the city council are here not to try experiments, but to protect the system already in operation. There are four circuits in Newton, and an average of 25 boxes on a circuit. Now put a box of a different make on one of these circuits and it takes a great deal of confidence to expect that and all the others to work. Would it not be a rather dangerous experiment, if the boxes proved not to work in some important fire when not only property but human lives were at stake. There is no need of going to outside experts, as we have one at the head of the fire department, who has the reputation of being one of the most competent men in the state. When I was in the city council some years ago, I served on the fire committee, and when any new apparatus was wanted we went to the head of the department and got advice and followed it, and we made no mistakes.

There is in Boston the New England Insurance Exchange, which has charge of insurance matters, and three members live in Newton, Messrs. Dearborn, Turner and Emerson. One of them says that on principle the exchange is opposed to any mixing up of fire alarm systems, they never advocate any special kind of box, but they can any of them be consulted by you.

Mr. Powers read a letter from Captain Wm. Brophy, for ten years superintendent of the Worcester fire alarm telegraph, who has been elected as their expert by insurance companies, a man whose honesty has never been questioned by any one. The letter was dated June 16, and in it Capt. Brophy said that he did not advocate any system, but a reliable system was cheap at any price, and a poor one was dear if it cost nothing, and to purchase the latter was a crime against the public and the insurance companies. It was criminal to inject cheap and unreliable stuff into a good system, and even if good, it was hazardous and should not be done. Any system may work perfectly as a whole, but even two good systems may work poorly together. Besides

THE RESPONSIBILITY WAS DIVIDED and neither company could be held responsible for any failure, as each company would place the blame upon the other, as had been demonstrated again and again.

Mr. Powers said this statement was from an honest and capable man, and showed that even two good systems could not be united without the risk of impairing both. In case of loss you can't place the responsibility on either, and you have no bond to protect you from such loss. You have now a system that works well, and even assuming that the Municipal box is the best in the world, so far as it is better it is liable not to work on another system. In 1889 this was tried in Quincy, the city government heard of cheaper boxes and put some in; then came a fire, the box was pulled and refused to work, there was no alarm, and the result was a great loss. The Standard in its editorial, in a paper in Boston, the official organ of the insurance companies, said in a recent issue that the Exchange should insist that no system should be mixed up with another.

It has been said that it was not courtesy to a committee, not to endorse its action. In the last legislature at least half the committee reports were not endorsed. In this case he could not say what the vote was but he did not think it was unanimous, but if the report was not adopted it would be because the committee had not seen all the arguments.

The Gamewell company is an old established concern, it employs 140 men, and expends $100,000 in wages every year, most of which is spent right here in Newton, although it is collected all over the United States. The company has had opportunities to go elsewhere, at much advantage to themselves but they preferred to stay in Newton. It has a pride in its apparatus, and a pride in the city, and it has a right to expect fair and just treatment from the city government. It does not sell goods at an exorbitant profit, as will be seen by the fact that although it is the largest concern of the kind in the country, with a capital of $750,000, its largest dividend has been only 1 per cent. There is no large profit in boxes at the list price of $125 each, and when a company comes in and claims that a better box can be made at $75, this is not honest competition.

The men in the Municipal company are not engaged in honest or legitimate competition, as is shown by the court records, which you can take and read. It was an organized conspiracy with a view to selling out to the Gamewell Co. Take the words of the men themselves in court. There is something in business beyond mere money making. Don't drive away a good concern that has treated you well, which has always proved reliable, and don't desert a reliable concern in order to help a smaller one that was started for the purpose of injuring the old company.

If it is a question of dollars and cents to you, rather than have their system impaired, the Gamewell company will give you two boxes, and you will get the same number of boxes for the same money. The Municipal company want to get you to use their boxes merely to have an argument to use in other places. The company has only been making boxes about a year, and there has been no time to test them thoroughly. Don't take the testimony of the paid experts of any company, and believe it without investigation.

MR. A. R. MITCHELL said that Mr. Powers had covered the ground pretty well. He had a good deal of property about Newton and he should feel less safe if there were two fire alarm systems mixed up, and he should not sleep as well. He hoped the matter would be fully considered before action was taken.

Mr. Smith asked how he would feel if shown that there would be an increase of security.

Mr. Mitchell: I do not see how that could be done without experience. As long as the system used here gives perfect satisfaction and no money would be saved, I think it would be very indiscreet to make a change. One is an old and tried manufacturing company, and the other is a new concern.

Mr. Smith: Are you a stockholder? Mr. Mitchell: I am not.

Mr. Thomas B. Fitz said he was especially interested in the remarks of Mr. Powers, who it seemed to him spoke as a citizen. Here is a system used here for 20 years, which has worked well and satisfactorily and in which we all have confidence. The Chief of the fire department, a man of long experience and an authority in such matters, favors the continuance of the present system. We, on the other hand, are ignorant of the matter, have had no training, and any of us can only give minutes where he gives hours to the study of it. His opinion is entitled to the confidence of the citizens and to put in a new kind of box would be against the advice of the men in the city entitled to have an intelligent opinion. The old system has been tried by years of use, and that is a better endorsement than the testimony of any expert interested in another system.

The committee has a grave responsibility in the matter and they should use the greatest caution. It is a good policy to let well enough alone, when the safety of our homes is considered.

MR. SMITH counsel for the municipal company, said as a citizen he was a small holder of real estate and he would be the last one to advocate anything that he thought would be a disadvantage. But he would try to show that the municipal was a better box and the change would add to the safety of the city. The boxes in use were some of them the first made by the Gamewell company. The Municipal company was not organized to sell out, but to do business the best they could. Their plant was worth $18,000, their stock as much more, and they had bought patents to an equal amount. The Gamewell had a monopoly, he admitted, but in 15 months they had placed boxes in 50 places in connection with the Gamewell company's system. Does this imply a lack of merit? We will show

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.: DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.: GENTLEMEN:—Some time ago I sent for $1.00 worth of your Tablets for Tobacco Habit. I received them all right and, although I was both a heavy smoker and chewer, they did the work in less than three days. I am cured. Truly yours, MATTHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 45, PITTSBURGH, PA.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.: GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three months he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly, MRS. HELEN MORRISON, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.: GENTLEMEN:—Your Tablets have performed a miracle in my case. I have used morphine, hypodermically, for seven years, and have been cured by the use of two packages of your Tablets, and without any effort on my part. Address All Orders to THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO., 51, 53 and 55 Opera Block, LIMA, OHIO.

FIRE ALARM BOXES.

yon that our boxes can't conflict. There are four different kind of boxes now in use in Newton, of which only the latest pattern is a non interference box.—

Mr. Power interrupted by saying that there was a greater difference between the Municipal and the Gardner box than between any of the four now in use.

Mr. Smith said the Municipal was a better box and was sold for $75, while the Gardner box was sold for $125. They had boxes in thirteen cities in this state, in between fifty and sixty cities in the country.

He read a letter from A. J. Coffee of Portland, Oregon, in which he said the Municipal box had given perfect satisfaction, and seventeen boxes had been ordered, and that the boxes were more reliable than any they had tried.

He also read a letter from J. F. Grossbar, chief fire department in Portland, one from Astoria, and others from Fitchburg and other places, all speaking highly of the boxes.

Mr. Smith claimed that this was valuable experience.

Mr. Powers asked when the boxes were put in to Portland, of which Mr. Coffee spoke so highly in February.

Mr. Smith had to refer to one of the Municipal boxes who said they were put in last December.

Mr. Smith said that if two of the Municipal boxes were pulled together, one would not ring and the other would sound all right.

Mayor Fenno asked when the other box would sound.

Mr. Smith—Not till it was rung again.

Mayor Fenno—Then the department would not know there were two fires.

Mr. Smith—They would get one all right, and that would be better than with the Gamewell boxes when the two alarms would be jumbled together.

Mayor Fenno—But the Gamewell boxes would show two fires and yours only one.

Mr. Smith said there had been a constant struggle to get a perfect non-interfering box, and the testimony of the chiefs who had used the boxes for a year were worth something.

Mr. Smith said some length technical point about short circuits and other matters which was interesting to experts.

Mr. Cole of the Municipal company had some boxes, two of the Municipal in covered boxes, one Gamewell covered and one with only the machinery, and made many experiments and testified at some length, as to the merits of the Municipal box.

Mr. Powers asked if the Municipal company were not making a higher priced box.

Mr. Smith—No, this is our best box.

Mr. Powers—I have seen somewhere an advertisement of a "Successful box" made by your company, priced $100.

Mr. Smith—It is not one of our regular boxes.

Mr. G. Ulmer was called on and said there would be no danger of putting a box on another system.

Mr. Powers asked him what company employed him.

Mr. Ulmer—Neither.

Mr. Powers asked him used to be in the city fire department.

Mr. Ulmer—Yes, Laughter in which Mr. Ulmer joined.

Mr. J. W. Stover said that if I should attempt to reply to all that had been said you would be worse confused than you are now.

The counsel for the other side calls the Gamewell a monopoly and the Municipal a weak company. There is nothing in that to call out your sympathy.

If the Municipal were organized by honest men it would be one thing, but the man who organized it was paid $47,000 by the Gamewell company on his agreement not to engage in business for ten years, and in less than one year he was making preparations and got men to join him from our company who drew their pay for working with us and spent their nights in conspiring against us, and finally went out taking our plans and models, and went out at ten days notice. He did not believe the citizens would endorse such proceedings or think that a company so organized was engaged in healthy competition.

The counsel for the other side deserved great credit for the vast amount of knowledge he had got together in a limited time, but he thought he had no intention to say anything misleading.

His claim to have a perfect non-interfering box was nonsense as there was no such thing. The Gardner box is the best of the kind that has yet been produced. They have put their so-called successive box on the market and are offering it today at a higher price, so that they are not giving rise then one year. They come here with a lot of apparatus and manipulate it as they please, and prove all sorts of things, and I can take the same apparatus and manipulate it to prove the exact opposite.

In our history we have seen 15 or 20 competing companies making rival boxes, and they all have claimed to have a better box than the Gamewell.

The Municipal company has not the plant to produce the best work. This exhibition has been the very thing I ever saw. He has what he claims is the machinery of a Gamewell box, all open so that he can do anything he likes with it, and so he can, but it is no honest test. We gave a test with closed boxes, just as they are put on the streets. They talk about confusion of alarms, but how many have we had in Newton in twenty years? Only two, so that is not an important point.

If you introduce other boxes you lose all responsibility as neither company can be held responsible. The counsel says his box steps out of the way, when a Gamewell box is pulled at the same time, and there he confesses the whole case, the alarm is lost. Worcester had the Gamewell system, and two years ago put in some of the Stevens boxes, which were sold for $50. They had a fire in the asylum, and a Stevens box and a Gamewell box were pulled, and the system was all confused, and 30 minutes of time was lost before the firemen found where the fire was, the result being that eleven people were killed and much property destroyed. Since then the Stevens boxes were pulled out. There will be the same experience with the Municipal boxes.

As for their testimonials most of them are far enough off to be safe. Mr. Coffee of Portland wrote this letter in 1889, speaking even more highly of the Gamewell than he does now of the Municipal, but the counsel omitted to tell you that Mr. Coffee is now agent of this company, and the boxes were put up in East Portland. It is very easy to get testimonials, and we could get bushels of them. It is an even chance that these new boxes so highly endorsed have not been pulled since they were put in. None of them have been in over a year.

At the Columbian Exposition, the managers realizing the immense cost of the exhibits, looked round for the best fire alarm system they could find, and although other companies offered to put them in for nothing, for the sake of the advertisement, they chose the Gamewell as the only one endorsed by experience, and paid us $10,000 to put in the system, and we have the plant when the fair is over.

In reply to Mr. Smith, Mr. Stover said the Municipal boxes had one vital defect, any interruption knocks them out and no alarm is given.

Mr. Smith said reference had been made to the court decisions, but they had been appealed and the party had now no interest in the company.

Mr. Powers. He simply transferred his stock to his wife, did he not?

Mr. Smith: I believe so.

Mr. Moses G. Crane said he did have something to do with forming the company, but he acted under the advice of his lawyer, ex-Governor Brackett, and since the injunction, by his advice he had transferred his stock and had nothing to do with the company. The Judge in the case referred to would not let him reply to questions. But he had appealed the case and it was now pending in the Supreme court, and he expected a decision in his favor.

Mr. Powers said it was only proper that the board take the views of the Chief of the fire department before any decision was reached.

Mr. A. D. Wheeler for the Gamewell company, showed how the alarm from the Municipal box was lost when another box was pulled, and also that the Gamewell boxes would sound the shorter alarm, when two were pulled together.

This closed the hearing.

CRYSTAL WEDDING RECEPTION

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL L. POWERS RECEIVED IN NEWTON CLUBHOUSE.

The crystal wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Powers was held Wednesday evening in the Newton clubhouse. Every corner of the supper room was filled with flowers, and each table bore an enormous pyramid of rhododendrons. In the assembly room the floral effects were more pleasing still. The four corners were hidden by young fir trees, and below each of the many electric globes on the walls hung a huge bouquet of cut flowers. The stage was one forest of hydrangeas, vast and odorous.

Just before the stage Mr. and Mrs. Powers received. Mrs. Powers wore a trained skirt of pale yellow silk, with corsage and trimmings of pink mousseline de soie, and diamond ornaments. She carried a bouquet of pink roses bound together with pink ribbons; and in his buttonhole Mr. Powers wore a pink rose.

Fully 250 guests offered their congratulations from 8 till 11 o'clock, society people coming from all the Newtons and Boston and different cities over the state.

The ushers were Messrs. William J. Follett, James B. Jones, Jacob B. Jones, James B. Fuller, William H. Coolidge and James W. French. Each wore a boutonniere of white pinks.

After the reception, from 8 to 11, there was dancing through the later and earlier hours.

A partial list of the invited guests follows:

Two Canoists Drowned.

Robert E. Phillips of Cambridge and Arthur E. Mead of West Acton were drowned Monday evening in the Charles river, by the upsetting of a canoe at Riverside, near the Weston line.

The bodies have been recovered.

They were the Eastern representatives of the large western grain firms. Mr. Phillips was manager for Messrs. Nye, Jenks & Co., of Minneapolis, and Mr. Mead, for Messrs. Lassic, Timberlake & Co., both with offices in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Mr. Phillips was an expert canoeist and an excellent swimmer. Mr. Mead was not a swimmer, and was known to be rather timid on the water, but went on the invitation of Mr. Phillips to enjoy the canoeing.

Mr. Henry Skinner, who was supposed to have accompanied Mr. Phillips and Mr. Mead, did not go.

Robert E. Phillips was well known in the grain business and had a host of friends. He was only 25 years old. He was a member of the chamber of commerce, belonged to several accident companies, was insured in the United States Life Insurance Company of New York, and was a member of the Old Powder House Club of West Somerville.

A gentleman, under forty years of age, whose hair was rapidly becoming thin and gray, began the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and in six months his hair was restored to its natural color, and even more than its former growth and richness.

THE ALLEN SCHOOL REUNION.

MANY FORMER PUPILS ASSEMBLED TO HONOR THE SCHOOL.

The first reunion of the West Newton English and Classical school was held at the Woodland Park Hotel, Wednesday afternoon and evening. Nearly a thousand former pupils assembled, representing many states and territories, and the reunion was a great success, and all present hoped only the first of many to be held in the future.

It was held on the spacious grounds of the Woodland Park Hotel. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight there was a succession of interesting events, first a reception given by the teachers to the alumni in a great tent erected on the lawn, and next a renewal of acquaintanceship, many coming together for the first time since the close of their school life, after a long vista of years. Speech-making and literary ceremonies followed. Seats were arranged in the large tent, where the reception was held earlier, and from a raised platform, the stories of school life were detailed to the interested auditors, the oration was delivered and the valedictory pronounced.

The exercises opened with prayer by Rev. Francis Tiffany of Cambridge, after which the chairman of the executive committee, Mr. Eugene Fay of Brookline, introduced the president of the day, Mr. John H. Ricketson of Pittsburgh, Pa., who gave many interesting reminiscences of the days in '54 and '55 and paid a high tribute to Prof. George and Wm. F. Allen, and Rev. Cyrus Pierce, all former teachers, who have passed away.

Lieut. Gov. Wolcott brought the greeting of the commonwealth. He said that it gave him great pleasure to be present, and to bring the greetings and congratulations of the commonwealth to the alumni and faculty of the West Newton English and Classical school.

The day will never dawn, continued the speaker, when the state will cease to do honor to the educational institutions within its limits.

It is because this school has produced types of high character and citizenship that you meet here today to do honor to it and its teachers. Men and women come back here to the scenes of the alma mater with honors won, with characters formed, and gladly pay tribute to the school and its influences.

To the younger alumni one great value of this occasion will be in hope and encouragement for the future. The success achieved by older pupils will be a lesson which will furnish an impetus for high emulation.

In closing, let me express the hope that 50,100 years from now this honored school will be as vigorous as now, that it may be always presided over by an Allen, and continue to give us good types of citizenship, both men and women.

Mayor Fenno made some interesting remarks, welcoming the guests to the city, and speaking of the great pride Newton took in the school.

Mr. E. B. Haskell made a short and pointed address, giving what he had learned of the excellence of the school from pupils in his own family, and his acquaintance with the Messrs. Allen, and the way they had won their great success as teachers by stimulating the desire to know and developing the regulating the power to think.

Miss Esther B. Tiffany read a short poem, written for the occasion.

Mr. Nathaniel T. Allen gave a warm welcome to his former pupils, and was given a most enthusiastic meeting.

Miss Mary A. Green, L. L. B., followed Principal Allen, with many amusing reminiscences and comments on the old school days and closed by saying: My experience at the Allen school had taught me that there was nothing unnatural in a woman doing the work she was best fitted for.

And this is the lesson I learned in the Allen school: That character is the chief thing; that all instruction and discipline are but a means to the advancement of character.

James T. Allen, the associate principal, closed the regular speech making, and in his happy address he said:

On this happy occasion, with our sun at noonday, or past the meridian, how grateful the privileges of reverting to the morning of our existence, and of renewing the blessed memories of our youth!

The silver locks, the speckled noses, the bald heads by which I am surrounded, suggest indeed a dream, and I rub my eyes, adjust my spectacles and scratch my head to test the reality and prove myself truly awake.

He referred to the old school building, as the place where sat the West graduates of the first Normal school in the world. This was the first kindergarten, and he also spoke of the great reforms who had given instruction there. "Conservative of what is good, receptive of all reforms, this I think has been the character of your alma mater."

The report of the committee on the alumni organization was presented by Hon. Joseph E. Fiske of Wellesley Hills. By-laws were adopted and these officers elected: President, John H. Ricketson of Pittsburgh, Pa.; secretary, Miss Florence H. King of West Newton; treasurer, Mr. Edward Burrage of West Newton. Vice-presidents were chosen, representing the classes from 1854 to 1892.

Mr. Eugene Fay and Miss Ellen E. Pratt were selected from the class of '54.

During the afternoon and evening a fine musical program was furnished by the American Watch Company band of Waltham.

A collation was served after the literary exercises, and from 6 to 9:30 o'clock a promenade concert was enjoyed.

Dancing concluded the program, the assembly hall of the hotel being utilized for the devotees of Terpsichore from 9:30 until midnight.

The ball room scene was one of great beauty. There were many handsome gowns, tasteful floral decorations, and a large and brilliant company.

The nip of a poisonous snake is but a slight remove from being more dangerous than the poison of Scrofula in the blood. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purifies the vital fluid, expels all poisonous substances, and supplies the elements of life, health and strength.

Rich, Red Blood.

As naturally results from taking Hood's Sarsaparilla as personal cleanliness results from free use of soap and water. This great purifier thoroughly expels scrofula, salt rheum and all other impurities and builds up every organ of the body. Now is the time to take it.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy, yet efficient action. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

SENSATION AT DORCHESTER, MASS.

Narrow escape of an employee of Walter Baker's chocolate works. He relates it as follows: For several years I have been troubled with weak lungs and had bleeding spells. They kept increasing until the spring of 1890 with severe pain through my chest and lungs and I was rapidly running down in flesh and strength. With my lung trouble I had a severe liver and kidney trouble that added to my suffering. In January 1892 I was reduced so very low that I was worried about myself and hearing from reliable and authentic sources that Rodolf's New Medical Discovery and Rodolf's Cream Emulsion were performing some miraculous cures of consumption, cancerous and scrofulous humors and kidney and liver troubles I resolved to try them in my case. I commenced their use in January last. By their use my appetite improved rapidly I gained in flesh and strength, my kidney and liver trouble disappeared, I have now gained fifteen pounds and am able to work at my trade every day; that of making chocolate at Walter Baker's chocolate works at Dorchester, Mass., and I have not had a bleeding spell since I began the use of Rodolf's New Medical Discovery and Rodolf's Cream Emulsion and I can truly say that this is the only remedy that soothed and healed my lungs and restored my liver and kidneys to a healthy state. I have now taken five bottles each of Rodolf's New Medical Discovery and Rodolf's Cream Emulsion and I can conscientiously recommend them to all persons who have any lung difficulty, kidney or liver trouble or any blood disease.

My mother who has been sick several years of consumption has commenced the use of this great remedy and is rapidly improving by its use.

I will answer any inquiries in person or by letter by enclosing stamp.

N. H. S. vs Berkley.

The Newton High school baseball team took a very extensive trip Tuesday the 13th to New London, Connecticut, where they were royally entertained by the boys from the Berkley school.

The boys arrived about 1 o'clock and were immediately taken to dinner. The game took place at 3 o'clock with an attendance of over a thousand; it was an excellent game from start to finish the only drawback being a wet field making it almost impossible for Ryan to do much efficient twirling.

The score was 14 to 13 in favor of the home team. The game was the best that had been played there.

N. H. S... 2 3 0 3 1 0 2 12-13

After the game the boys attended a banquet given to them by the girls of a neighboring school. After the banquet the boys danced until eight o'clock. The boys left at 8:20 after having spent the pleasantest trip of the season, and the Berkley school will long remain in the memory of this year's ball team.

N. H. S. 3, ALLEN'S 2.

N. H. S. again succeeded in defeating the Allen's school in an eleven inning game by a score of 3 to 2.

Allen's school has a very fine team and it is a great honor to defeat them.

Newton High played a very loose game in the first six innings, and then they braced up and played a better game.

It was at the end of the eleventh that Ryan came to the bat with two men on bases; after two strikes and three balls had been called, he lined the ball for a two base hit winning the game. He pitched a great game showing a great deal more headwork than Russell. He was well supported by Brown.

Russell struck out 10 men, Ryan 13. N. H. S. got 6 hits, Allen's 5.

FIRE APPARATUS HEARING.

The hearing before the Board of Aldermen on Monday evening demonstrated very conclusively that the position we took in our last issue was a correct one. In fact, the argument as well as the evidence was conclusive against the policy of incorporating signal boxes of different make and pattern in connection with our fire alarm system. The following propositions were substantiated:

- 1st. That the Gamewell system has been in use in Newton for twenty years and has worked with perfect satisfaction.
- 2nd. That the Chief of the Fire Department is opposed to the change recommended by the Committee.
- 3rd. That the insurance companies are opposed to the principle of placing signal boxes of different makes and devices on the same circuit.
- 4th. That the boxes offered by the competing company have not been in use a sufficient length of time to warrant their use in our system.
- 5th. That the price charged by the two companies is exactly the same and the city will gain nothing in dollars and cents by making the change.

All of these propositions were practically conceded by the representatives of the Municipal company. They claim, however, that their boxes should be used in connection with those of the Gamewell company, although admitting that they were made under patents which they claim were entirely different from those under which the Gamewell boxes are made, and were of entirely different device. Even if we are to assume that the boxes of the Municipal company are as good as those of the Gamewell, the very fact that they admit that they are made under different patents and of a different device is argument enough that they ought not to be placed upon the same circuit with the boxes now used by the city.

The exhibitions given by the representatives of the two companies were very conflicting, but they clearly demonstrated that these rival boxes do not work in harmony with each other, and for that reason ought not to be incorporated in the same system. It is no argument against the box of the Municipal company that it will not work in harmony with that of the Gamewell, nor is it an argument against the Gamewell box that it will not work in harmony with that of the Municipal. Any system of automatic fire alarm in order to work correctly and harmoniously should be made by one company having in view the construction of an entire, perfect working system. It is not reasonable to suppose that different companies can manufacture the different pieces which go to make up an entire system, neither one having a right to use the patents or the machinery of the other, and that these different parts will fit in so as to make a system as perfect and harmonious as though they were made by one company having in view the purpose for which it is intended.

There were a large number of citizens present and the consensus of opinion appeared to be that there was but one course open to the Board of Aldermen, and that was to protect its present fire alarm system by purchasing additional apparatus of the same kind as is now in use.

So far as we can learn this is the sentiment throughout the city and the aldermen will undoubtedly not only be controlled by the argument which has been made in favor of this course of action, but will also be influenced by public opinion of citizens who they represent. We do not want any hazardous experiments made in our fire department. We cannot afford to have our property destroyed for the sake of booming the goods of any corporation. The interest and welfare of the city is of more importance than that of any private corporation. We have no desire to favor or promote the interests of the Gamewell company as against that of any other, but we do believe that the city government should take a course of action that is conservative and safe, since they are to be held responsible for the results that are to follow.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The City Council has at last got to the matter of grade crossings, though it is so near the summer vacation that probably little will be done before fall on this very important matter.

There is a rumor that the money appropriated by the state has been exhausted, so that there is none of that money available, which would have a very important bearing on the case, and the first duty of the committee will be to discover the truth of this. There has always been this danger, as the GRAPHIC has many times pointed out to the City Council, and delays are always dangerous. The Legislature may appropriate more money, and it may not, but if the appropriation is exhausted, there will be nothing to do but to wait and see.

There seems but little hope that the tracks will be moved as proposed by the Langford plan, but the next best thing will be to have the grade crossings abolished in the present location, and there seems to be a certainty that the raising of the tracks is the only plan on which the city and the railroad can agree. There has been a good deal of preliminary talk, and the question has been discussed all that would seem to be necessary, so that the committee ought to be able to do something without much delay, or at least find out what can be done.

Connected with the grade crossing problem is the widening of Washington street, which is a matter of great importance to the city and an improvement that ought to come in the near future. The City Council has an excellent chance now to get down to business, and to push things a little before the summer vacation.

The promptness of the jury in the Borden case in returning a verdict of not guilty showed how weak was the evidence against Miss Lizzie Borden, and the public sentiment has all along acquitted the prisoner. The prosecution evidently went on the theory that is expressed by the question "if she did not do it, who did," but the defence did not attempt to answer any conundrums, and contented itself with proving that Miss Borden did not do it, and they succeeded beyond any reasonable doubt. As Governor Robinson said, to charge that the prisoner committed such a horrible crime was to charge that she is either a maniac or a fiend, instead of being a respectable, church-going, Christian woman, whose whole life has had nothing in common with crime. The Fall River police should evidently give up reading sensational detective stories and try to develop some common sense. In one way the trial has been of benefit to Miss Borden, as now malicious tongues will be silenced, and no one can justly entertain any suspicion of guilt, which is all she gains by these long months of bitter trouble and anxiety.

The sewer ordinance was passed to be enrolled, Monday night, with the amendment that 50 per cent. of the cost should be placed on the city, which seems a fair enough arrangement. The assessment will be 15 cents a front foot, with 5-12 mills per square foot of area, back to 180 feet.

GRADUATION
MEMENTOS

Parian Statuary.

By steamer "Pavonia" we have landed English Parian, adding to our Parian Department, busts and statuettes of the following Poets, Musical Composers and Statesmen:

Longfellow, Sumner, Holmes, Lincoln, Grant, Cleveland, Andrew, Gladstone, Cobden, Bright, Mendelssohn, Emerson, Dickens, Handel, Shakespeare,
Goethe, Wagner, Haydn, Mozart,
Schiller, Phillips, (and others).

Costing from $3 to $25 each.

Also mythical subjects in the following:

Clytie, Flora, Lesbia, Ariadne, Aurora, Etc.

Parian is practically unglazed China and can be washed always to look as new.

This composition was declared by Mr. Gibson, R. A., the eminent sculptor, to be decidedly the best material next to marble.

We invite attention also to our stock of ROGERS GROUPS. Having been appointed to represent the manufacturer of Rogers Statuary in Boston, we invite those seeking complimentary gift pieces to the above department.

The new subjects are "Columbus," "Faust," "The Cows," "First Ride," "Othello," "Shylock," Etc.

In the Glass Department will be seen new designs in Gilded Vienna Glass, as well as Domestic Cut Glass.

On the main floor will be seen new Jardinieres and Piazza Seats, from Burmantoft, Minton and Canton China.

There will be no exemption for corner lots, and the front foot charge is so small that it will not more than counterbalance the extra value of such lots. This will save any amount of trouble which experience proved would arise from the old ordinance. The new ordinance has also been carefully worked out in all details, so that there will be no trouble in enforcing it, wherein it is much superior to the old ordinance, which was roughly drawn, and would have proved very unsatisfactory in its workings. The new ordinance had six votes in its favor in the aldermen, and twelve in the common council, and seems to be as just and equitable as could have been constructed.

The exhibition of signal boxes made by representatives of the Municipal Company Monday evening before the board of aldermen, was not managed in a way calculated to secure the confidence of the audience. The apparatus was laid flat upon a table and a skeleton movement, that is, nothing but the clock-works of a signal box, fastened to a board, without any case whatever, was used in nearly all the illustrations given of the workings of the signal boxes. No one in the audience could see the workings of the apparatus or just how they were manipulated. It is certain that nothing like the conditions which control the workings of an established system of Fire Alarm Telegraph were illustrated in the exhibition of the Municipal Company, and if to illustrate an accidental condition, possible in the regular working system, it was essential to use a skeleton movement which could be manipulated at will to accomplish almost any result, then that accidental condition must be very remote indeed.

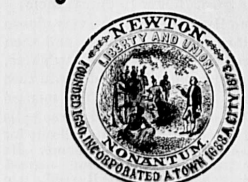

We believe that Mr. Stover of the Gamewell Company was entirely justified in claiming that most anything could be done with apparatus so arranged, and so easily juggled with.

The exhibition made by the Gamewell Company before the committee two or three weeks ago was very differently managed, the boxes were in precisely the condition in which they would be placed on the streets in actual use, and the exhibitor had no better chance for operating them than he would have found in operating any signal box in our system now in use. It is difficult to see how any one could get a fair or reasonable, clear idea of what might or might not be done with signal boxes in actual use, by such an exhibition as was given by the Municipal Company on Monday evening, but we do think that some of the questions of the aldermen, and particularly His Honor the Mayor fully demonstrated the superiority of the Gamewell boxes, and the danger of putting other apparatus in the same circuits with them.

The Newton Boulevard question did not come up last Monday in the City Council, as expected, the details not having been completed. It is said that the syndicate asked for this delay, and it is expected to come up at the next meeting. The highway committee are said to be camping out on the proposed site, but at any rate they have had to spend most of their spare time there.

The ordinance committee are now at work upon a building ordinance, which has been completed and is being submitted to practical builders, to get their opinion. The building ordinances of other cities have been examined and the best points of each taken, so that it is likely to be a model ordinance.

PROPOSALS FOR COAL

City Hall, West Newton, Mass., June 22, 1893.
The Joint Standing Committee on Fuel and Street Lights invite proposals for furnishing the City of Newton with 2,000 tons, more or less, of furnace and stove coal, to be delivered into the bins at the Almshouse, City Hall, Clinton Guard Armory, Police Station, Public Library, the several school houses, steamers, hose, and look and ladder houses. About 600 tons will be required on the south side of the city, and the remainder on the north side; bids will be received for delivery on either the north or south side of the city, or the whole. The coal must be of the best quality hard White Ash, Lehigh, or any other hard coal satisfactory to the committee. The coal must be properly screened and free from slate. The committee reserve the right to reject any and all bids. Proposals to be addressed to the committee on Fuel and Street Lights, City Hall, West Newton, will be received until Saturday, June 24, 1893, at 12 o'clock, M. ALBERT H. ROFFE, Chairman.

—Mr. Raymond Spinney left this week for Boothbay, Me., where he makes a short stay.

—Special Officer Redmond has been doing night duty, relieving Officer Clay, who is getting a needed rest.

—Mr. H. L. Cook and family have gone to White Cove, N. S., for a few weeks' stay.

—Frank McGraw of Cambridge hired a team of A. F. Harington last Friday and failed to return. He was arrested in Boston yesterday for numerous similar thefts.

—Miss Hilda Lee Drew and Miss Edith Ames of Somerville are the guests of Mrs. Geo. H. Shapley.

—Mr. Edwin Stanton George officiated as best man at the wedding ceremony of Mr. Arthur Cyril Twist of El Truro, Cal., and Miss Constance Amy Wiggins of London, Eng., at the Calvary church, New York city on Friday evening last.

—Mr. Frederick Amidon leaves next week, to assume his usual summer duties as clerk of the Pawnee House, at Cottage City.

At the regular sleep of Norumbega tribe, 74, L. O. R. M. held on Tuesday, the following chiefs were elected to serve for the ensuing term: Prophet, G. B. Cook; Sachem, A. E. Billings, Senior Sagamore, G. B. Davis, Junior Sagamore, L. F. Barney.

—Mrs. W. F. Chapman attended the very interesting commencement exercises of Colorado College in Colorado Springs, June 7th, and also President Slocum's reception in the afternoon. Five gentlemen were diplomaed, one of whom is a Japanese, soon to return to his own country. President and Mrs. Slocum were both looking very well, happy and cordial.

—A union Old Fellows' memorial service was held in the Universalist church, Sunday afternoon. These organizations were represented: Newton lodge, 92, Woburn lodge 156, Home lodge 102, Garden City encampment 62, Highland Rebekah lodge 82 and Tennyson Rebekah lodge 119, L. O. O. F. The order of exercises was as follows: Singing, Universalist church quartet; prayer, Bro. A. L. Hale, P. G. Home lodge; response, quartet; address, Bro. Gorham D. Gilman, Newton lodge; address, Bro. Ira A. Priest, pastor Universalist church; singing, quartet; sermon, W. F. Dussault, grand chaplain, pastor of Universalist church, Malden; singing, quartet and congregation. There was a large attendance at the services, the auditorium being completely filled. The pulpit and choir gallery were very effectively decorated for the occasion.

—Interesting exercises were held in the Universalist church last Sunday morning. Four children were christened, and flowers were distributed to the children at the close of the exercises. The church was tastefully decorated with wild and hot-house flowers. The order of exercises follows: Hymn, choir; song, school; Scripture readings; Duett, Marion Fisher and Grace Brown; prayer, Rev. Mr. Priest; song, Winthrop Andrews; recitation, Carrie Curtis; song, Geo. Curtis; recitation, 4 girls; song, school; recitation, Ernest Olmes; song, Mary Clark and school; recitation, Jessie Gluck; recitation, Ethel Noyes; song, school; recitation, Ada Powers; song, Alice Barlow; recitation, Chester Griswold; song, school; song, Dudley Fitch and school.

—The Newton Clubhouse was the scene of a most charming tea, Wednesday afternoon, given by Mrs. Shapley from 2 to 5. Mrs. Shapley received in the ladies parlor. In the dining room a most delightful lunch was served. The table was decorated with smilax, ferns and American beauty roses from Mrs. Shapley's garden. The sweetest feature of all was the dainty hand painted menus by Mrs. Shapley and the unique little dagger pins in gold and enamel. Each lady was presented with a charming bunch of American beauty roses. Miss Alice Denning of Lowell, Miss Hilda Lee Drew, the charming young reader who has been most warmly received in Newton society this season, and Miss Edith Ames of Somerville assisted Mrs. Shapley at the tea in a most graceful manner. Mrs. Shapley looked charming in a rich gown of white silk and yellow velvet.

Cornstarch For Chills.

The unusual cold weather of the winter has made chills quite a common complaint. A woman who has suffered from the most annoying torture which this particular infliction entails reports that she has found relief from a new remedy, or at least from something which is not one of the usual remedies.

"After trying hot salt and water, witch hazel, cold cream and the rest of the list," says this woman, "the idea came to me that to bury my feet in the creamy coolness of cornstarch might assuage the intolerable burning. I tried it, with instant success. Don't use a little from a powder puff. Take a bowl or dish and plunge the foot in quite to the instep and keep it thus buried for some minutes. Then dust off most of the cornstarch, and the stocking and shoe can be resumed with comfort."

This simple, inexpensive suggestion ought to be circulated. Car drivers and others whose occupation forces them to stand almost continuously are likely to be the greatest sufferers in cold weather from frost bitten feet and following chills. —Her Point of View in New York Times.

A Quaint Wedding Gift.

A watch the kaiser gave as a wedding present to his sister, Princess Margaret of Prussia, on her marriage with Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse has a curious history. It originally belonged to Queen Louise of Prussia, the mother of Kaiser William I. The watch was looted by French soldiers after one of the victories which practically placed Berlin as a conquered city in the hands of Napoleon's troops. Being taken to Strasburg, it was a year or two later won as a prize in a barracks lottery by the cook of the officers' mess.

This man gave the watch to his sister, who subsequently obtained a domestic position in the palace of Potsdam, where Queen Louise, noticing the watch in the woman's possession, recognized it as her own and obtained repossession of it in exchange for a generous sum of money. The late Empress Augusta intrusted the watch to the present emperor, with an expression of her wish that it might always remain the property of a Prussian princess. —Manchester Times.

Know All About It.

"The world is full of people who think they know it all," said John A. Starr, "and in no subject is there so much superfluous knowledge rolling around as that which relates to food adulteration and substitution. What little money I have has been made out of sugar, and I profess to know something about that indispensable and very popular article. But I learned something the other day which neither I nor any one else ever knew before. I was eating breakfast with a chance acquaintance I had picked up on the cars, and he called for some crushed sugar, objecting to white lump because, as he assured me confidentially, it was all made from glucose, which was nothing else but animal refuse."

"I explained to him that he was quite right in his ideas excepting in two respects, one of which was that white lump was not made from glucose and the other that glucose was a product of corn and not of animal refuse. He seemed rather to resent the information at first, and as he proceeded to destroy the flavor of his coffee by the use of some very dark sugar which was little more or less than glucose itself he told me that he had the information from an authentic source, and that he could not be persuaded to ruin his internal organs at the request of the first stranger he happened to meet." —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

TO THE BELOVED.

Oh, no more subtly silence strays
Amongst the winds, between the voices, Mingling alike with pensive lays
And with the music that rejoices,
Than thou art present in my days.

My silence, life returns to thee
In all the pauses of her breath;
Hush back to rest the melody
That out of thee awaketh,
And then wake ever, wake for me.

Full, full is life in hidden places,
For thou art silence unto me,
Full, full is thought in endless spaces,
Full is my life, a silent sea
Lies round all shores with long embraces.

Thou art like silence all unweaved,
Though wild words part my soul from thee,
Thou art like silence unperplexed,
A secret and a mystery
Between one footfall and the next.

Most dear pause in a mellow lay,
Thou art inwoven with every air;
With thee the wildest tempests play,
And snatches of thee everywhere
Make little heavens throughout a day.

Darkness and solitude shine for me,
For life's fair outward part are rife
The silver noises; let them be,
It is the very soul of life
Listens for thee, listens for thee.

Oh, pause between the sobs of care!
Oh, thought within all thought that is,
Trance between laughter and unaware!
Thou art the form of melodies,
And thou the ecstasy of prayers.
—Alice Meynell in London Athenaeum.

ROMANCE OF THE WAR

The battle at last was finished. The victory was lost and won. And while the defeated army had fallen back to take shelter in the woods and mountain passes the victorious host had encamped upon the field of action. A thick misty haze hung over the landscape, through which the setting sun shone like a great copper shield burnished and ready for combat.

Since early morn the battle had been in progress, and the carnage was frightful. Even the sturdiest of the surgeons had more than once turned pale as they worked over their improvised operating tables, and all had felt a sensation of faintness that they did not care to own.

In one corner of the field when the fight had been the hottest, in a little grove of half a dozen trees at the angle of a stone wall, knelt the colonel of a New York regiment beside the prostrate form of his own lieutenant, a young man of English birth and a great favorite among his comrades. His breath came slowly and painfully, and when he strove to speak the lifeblood welled up in his throat so as to almost choke all utterance.

"Creston, my boy," said the colonel in the low voice which he always used when in the presence of suffering—for the colonel was as kind and as gentle as a woman to the sick—"is there anything more that I can do for you—any word or message that you want to send? For you know?"

Creston's lips parted with a faint and almost imperceptible motion, and the colonel bending low caught the words, "Lift—me—up."

Raising the dying man to a half sitting position, the colonel held him in his own strong arms and gently wiped the red froth from his lips.

"Colonel!" the words were weak and low—"my vest—open—the—pocket—inside!"

The exertion was so great that he could say no more. The colonel, opening the vest, drew from an inner pocket a miniature, the portrait of a young and beautiful girl, so beautiful that even then the colonel could not help gazing upon the likeness with interest and admiration.

"And this?" he questioned as he held it up to the eyes of his dying comrade. The pale face of the sufferer grew strangely bright when he looked upon the bit of painted ivory before him.

"In England," he whispered, "she lives—Denmond in Devonshire—you'll remember—take her this, yourself—no one else. Find her in Denmond, Amelia Burton. Tell her—I didn't forget!" A torrent of crimson lifeblood gushed from his lips, and all was over. The colonel arose, folded a blanket and placed it beneath the head of the corpse. Then the night winds gathered and whispered among the trees and brushed with their dark pinions the bright, cold drops that stood on the pale forehead of Herbert Creston.

Already the sun was casting long shadows over the landscape around the pretty English village of Denmond in Devonshire, for Denmond was pretty and everybody said so—that is, everybody who had ever been there said so. And as for those unfortunate beings who had not been there, they were so very much in the minority that no one ever cared a straw what they said or thought.

The day had been hot and sultry, and with the advent of the cooling breezes of evening every one who could possibly get out of doors did so, for the air was delicious now after the overpowering heat of the day.

Along the dusty highway a man, well dressed and evidently a stranger in the country through which he was passing, was walking slowly, evidently absorbed in thought. He was about 40, of a bronzed complexion and dark hair, now slightly tinged with gray. On the whole he was far from handsome, nor did the scar of a saber wound across his forehead add to his attractions.

Just now he paused before a cottage that stood somewhat back from the public road, almost buried in flowers, like a modest and retiring cottage that it was. Sounds of happy laughter came from an arbor, conceded by the surrounding hedge. Colonel Nathaniel Pember paused but a moment, however, before he opened the gate.

"Can you tell me," he asked one of the party of young girls that met his view as he entered, "if you know of any one residing in this neighborhood by the name of—of Amelia Burton?"

"Yes, indeed," answered one of the young ladies, with a meaning smile, "but you'll have to hurry, though, for there will be no such person here after to-night."

"She—she is not sick—not dying, is she?" questioned the colonel hastily.

"Oh, not at all," answered the young lady, with a pleasant laugh, "only she's going to be married to Lord Littell to-night."

"Married?" said the colonel, half to himself; then aloud: "Can you tell me where she lives? I must see her upon business—something very important."

"It's not very far from here. The house in the park that you see on the left belongs to her father. But you must hurry. It's after 6:30, and you've scarce an hour."

Colonel Pember turned and walked hastily along the road. "Married—married—then I am too late. Perhaps not. I don't understand it. I can't." And with every step he took came the refrain, "Married, married, married."

The next day Denmond was all excitement. The daughter of the Hon. Crofton Burton had refused at the last moment to marry Lord Lorloose Littell. And then, too, the appearance of this suspicious looking American. That must not be overlooked. Surely there was something in this, "if those as knew would tell." But the Hon. Burton, M. P., would tell nothing, and as Lord Littell had left for town that morning he could tell nothing, and Miss Burton, she had declared that she would tell nothing. So there the matter rested, and like every other sensation was almost forgotten 10 days after.

Almost, I say, for Colonel Pember had taken lodgings at the Pot and Kettle, and scarcely a day passed but he made his way to The Oaks, the residence of Mr. Burton, who seemed to have a great fancy for his company.

Nor was it long in becoming common talk that the colonel had returned to Miss Burton on the eve of her intended wedding a blood stained miniature, the token of a schoolgirl love that she had given to Herbert Creston, the village ne'er do well, and that as she saw the picture, stained with his lifeblood, the old love had returned, and she had refused to marry any one else.

So passed a year, and again summer visited the little village, sprinkling the lawns with yellow dandelions and the hedges with all manner of sweetness. From the many farmyards came the sounds of cattle and of fowls upon the clear and silent air, mingled with the distant dashing of brooks. The trees, resplendent in their "garments of green," cast grateful shadows for the noonday wanderer. And then the garden! Roses everywhere. The air was one mass of perfume, delightful and overpowering, the first sweet gift of summer.

During this time Miss Burton had not been seen by the village folk, save on one or two rare occasions, and those who had viewed her reported that she was looking pale and sickly, and that she scarcely ever spoke. Now, however, at the approach of summer she had thrown off her gloomy aspect, laid aside the "inky cloak" that she had insisted upon wearing and had even gone so far as to ride out into the country, and always with the colonel as a companion.

One night they walked together in the gardens that almost entirely surrounded The Oaks. There was no other light than that of the stars. As Amelia paused the colonel placed his arm about her and held her hand.

"You have my answer?" he questioned softly.

She raised her face slowly. Their lips met.

"It is 'yes?'" he asked.

And she answered "Yes."

Far away in the wilderness of Virginia the night winds gathered and whispered and murmured and muttered, and with their dark pinions brushed the bright cold drops of dew that clung to the blades of grass above the unmarked grave of Herbert Creston.—Exchange.

An Apt Comparison.

"Miss Budd's heart is like a volume in a circulating library."

"How is that?"

"Not to be kept longer than two weeks."

Nahant Steamers.

Steamers for Bass Point and Nahant resume their trips Sunday, June 11th, running from Lincoln wharf, adjoining East Boston North Ferry.

Bass Point became very popular last year, particularly among the respectable class of people, and it is the determination of the officers of the town of Nahant that this shall not be allowed to deteriorate by admitting the hoodlum element. Hence the recent rumors of enforced blue laws. It simply means the kitchen bar room must go.

The citizens in general are not averse to people coming there, but on the other hand anxious to have them, and the more respectable class that come the better they like it. They draw the line at hoodlums and no one blames them.

The fish dinners, for which Bass Point has become celebrated, are unlike anything served on the coast, and to many people are forcible reminders of the once famous Tafts. The greater portion of the fish are taken fresh from the waters of the bay near by, and the clams so tender as to almost "melt in one's mouth" come from their native haunts in sight of the Point.

General directions in painting are to see that no paint is put over a moist or even damp surface. To have thin coats of paint applied instead of thick. Chilton Paint should be thinned with the best raw linseed oil. Many people think there is little or no difference in linseed oil. The Chilton Paint Co. in buying oil obtain only the best brands from people who have a reputation of buying the best and cleanest flaxseed, and allowing their oil to settle for months before placing it on the market. How much better this oil than the oil commonly met with, and yet the Chilton Co. would not be satisfied to use this oil without settling it for themselves. In 1893 the Chilton Paint Co. will use in some of their paints linseed oil which they purchased and tanked in 1891. Very little such oil, if any, can be found in the United States, and the public gets the benefit of it, but so does the Chilton Co. also, for it adds to their reputation. It is extremely improbable that a gallon of paint will leave their factory the present year made from linseed oil crushed later than 1892.

A Newton Artist.

Newton's talented young artist, Emery L. Williams, for the past two months has been in Malden engaged in painting the friezes of a house picturesquely situated on the outskirts of the Falls. Mr. Williams made his designs with one exception from subjects in the neighboring Falls. The parlor of the house is ornamented with a frieze of oak boughs beautifully and uniquely arranged, the leaves painted in harmonious autumn shades varying from mahogany reds to pale yellows toned with browns, acorns and airy oak-galls are mingled with the leaves, the whole making an exquisite decoration.

In the hall is a very Japanese arrangement of pitch pine boughs with cones and needles. The music room being small the artist was able to carry out most successfully his original ideas in a landscape frieze, the four sides of the room having each a picture representing one of the seasons. Spring is treated with hilly fields clothed in tender greens mingled with the yellows of the old fallen oak leaves, sloping off towards the distant sky. A grassy road winds from the foreground on the right off out of sight over the hills to the left, the trunks of a few bare white birches and some sapling maples in red bloom with three dark pines suggested against the far away sky make up the salient features of a very pretty picture.

Summer is represented by a daisy field stretching off towards a warm, hazy sky. A road bordered by a few apple trees and a picturesque fence leads to a farm house showing over the hill in the background. A field of purple asters, or frost flowers, is the chief subject of the autumn frieze, but one's attention is attracted to the delicate sky beyond and gleaming through beautiful groups of rocks and trees, the colors of the foliage first suggesting the brilliancy of later fall. The winter frieze of course has snow-covered earth and bare trees, its beauty consisting principally in the disposition of the slopes, trees, etc., and in the glowering sunset tints of the sky.

Advocating the maize for our national flower it was decided to have in the dining room golden corn partially sheathed in husks, with now and then a red ear, appearing as though bountifully pouring down from some inexhaustible supply. This frieze shows a most delicate treatment of color, and a very skillful arrangement of the bunches of corn and spaces between. In none of the friezes is there any repetition of design. Each branch of oak and pine and each cluster of corn is unlike any other. The friezes are all much admired for their beauty, appropriateness and originality, and every one who sees them, (among the number several artists and art critics) prophesies a great future for the young artist.

TRAINED NURSES.

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT THE NEWTON COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The Training school for nurses at the Cottage Hospital held its first formal graduation exercises at the Hospital, Wednesday afternoon. There was a generous attendance of trustees and physicians and their wives and other friends of the institution, and the graduating class, numbering eight young ladies, were the recipients of many congratulations. They wore blue and white striped cotton dresses, and the nurses spotless aprons and caps, which made a very attractive uniform, taken with the bright and intelligent faces of the wearers.

President J. R. Leeson presided at the exercises which began at 4 o'clock, and Rev. Dr. Shinn made the opening prayer.

Music was furnished by Master Grafton Abbott, the gifted soloist of the Grace church choir, Mr. H. B. Day presiding at the organ.

Dr. F. L. Thayer, chairman of the medical committee, made the address to the graduates in which he called attention to the new auspices under which the meeting was held, the school having reached a position entitling it to the consideration of all its friends, and worthy of being specially recognized. The occasion marked the completion of the 5th year of the school, which started with only three pupils, and now has twenty-one, with a list of twenty graduates, many of whom hold positions of trust and responsibility. The high percentage of the class, and the increased advantages the hospital offers were noted, and the future prospects of the school, when the new Home is completed, were touched upon. The need of more recreation for the nurses was stated. The benefit derived from the private nursing engaged in by the pupils were stated, and the great advantages of a hospital where the patients are received, which give the pupils a broad education in the science of nursing. The nurses have opportunity to become acquainted with the two schools of medicine, enabling them to adapt themselves to the measures peculiar to each. The success of the training school depends almost entirely upon the superintendent, to whom they must look for guidance and support, and in Miss McDowell and the other matrons this school has been most fortunate.

The obligations of the public were touched upon, and the many ways in which a family should second the efforts of the nurse, see that she has proper rest, that she is made to feel the duties of the household; that she is not treated in the light of an upper servant to whom exceptionally large wages are paid, but the family should feel that she is something more. A good nurse is well educated, respectable and lady-like, and her interest in the patient is second only to that of the family. The duties of the medical profession toward the nurses were stated.

In closing, he addressed himself to the graduates, and congratulated them on the happy termination of their labors, and greeting them as members of an honored profession, the duties of which the school, their allegiance to it, when assailed by ignorance or misconception, and the fact that upon each one, in a measure, depended the reputation of the school, was shown. They were advised in regard to their future duties, and urged not to spoil a good nurse and make a poor physician by attempting to prescribe for this or that disease. A nurse has responsibility enough in her own special province.

The value of keeping a note book in which are recorded all their cases, was dwelt upon, as it would be a great help to them in their work, and they were shown the importance of being loyal to the physician in charge, and when once enlisted in a case with him, to press on unflinchingly. Above all else, he said, be true to yourselves and realize that your womanly instinct will be your best guide and protector.

The steps which have led to the results which we emphasize today, have been long, tedious, and at times, embarrassing, but that steadfast adherence to right methods, and the absolute devotion to the high cause which alone could inspire such labor, and which has characterized all the efforts of every matron who has preceded Miss McDowell, has produced the proud result which we today, without reserve or reticence, commend to your warm and cordial appreciation.

Ten days ago, on one of the customary visits which the President of this Hospital has the privilege of making here, Miss McDowell, during the course of conversation, expressed her regret that we could not commence the series of graduating exercises which has been informally discussed by the members of the Executive Committee, during this term. Your president, without giving the matter more than a passing thought, joined in this expression of regret. Reflection indicated that there might even yet be time to inaugurate our graduating exercises now, a general communication to the high cause which alone could inspire such labor, and which has characterized all the efforts of every matron who has preceded Miss McDowell, has produced the proud result which we today, without reserve or reticence, commend to your warm and cordial appreciation.

On a subsequent day, your President found, seated around the table of our board room, the four indefatigable medical members of the executive committee, on one of the hottest days of this season, earnestly going over the examination papers which the graduating class have had to conquer. The bare suggestion of one of the committee to subject your President to the ordeal, was enough to throw that member of this organization into a tremor, the reason for which will be readily appreciated by any lady or gentleman now present, who will glance at the papers which have been mastered by the graduating class. It would be a desirable thing for all who have worked for and are interested in this institution, to know how thoroughly and admirably our training school is doing its work, under the intelligent direction of the matron, and of that constant service which the medical members seem never tired of giving to every department of this Hospital. The more one witnesses that devotion, the more one must admire the high principle and the generous impulse which inspires the medical profession of this city to give so much time, thought and care to the direction of all the technical affairs of the Hospital.

With such noble service from those who teach it, it is no marvel that our pupils should be inspired by a similar spirit, and a like devotion to a profession, which, with that of the medical profession itself, may justly be characterized as the noblest which man renders to his fellow-men. Can we wonder, with the trying experiences of a nurse's life, the ordinary duties which, day after day, with the most exacting precision, have to be performed, we should have exemplified in such workers, that almost divine enthusiasm which has been and will be the inspiration of the highest form of human action, and which, by the quality of its work, contributes to our every day world, that silver lining which is best appreciated when seen in those critical periods of existence, in the midst of which the nurse is constantly called upon to labor.

It is well to be justly proud of the position which this training school has acquired for itself, the surest indication of wisdom and care in the selection of our pupils, of thoroughness and skill in their training, and also of that responsive spirit which they have never failed to show. It is indeed, time that you and all our friends who have supported us most generously, should be made acquainted with some of the work which has been done, and which contributes not only to the comfort and care of those who are sent to this Hospital for treatment, but which sheds its helpful light upon the home, and, otherwise, would never realize the need of such an institution as this.

When the splendid gift which our friends, Mr. Converse and Mr. Pratt, have decided to bestow upon us, shall be completed, we can increase the number of the training classes, and we shall then be able to multiply many fold, that element of helpfulness to those of whom we may be visited by affliction in your homes, for which the trained and efficient nurse has, under the conditions of the higher civilization of our day, come to be a necessity.

When the "gulf" which marks the treatment of the medical practitioner of the last century from the methods now practiced by those gentlemen who assist in this work, the contrast is even greater, as between the exact, unflinching and stimulating methods of the nurse of our day, with any system in the more and less of the sick, which was known to the nurses of former generations.

Thankful, indeed, should we be that we have been provided with the facilities for the preparation of a corps of workers who are now indispensable in those supreme crises of life, through which all of us, at one time or another, must pass. Our gratitude to you and all those who have placed the means in our power for the continuance and enlargement of the work, which began with the small things of life, and which, with the same help and the same kind sustenance in the future, will constantly increase its sphere of usefulness, and its share in the mitigation of suffering, is doubtless shared by every recipient of the good offices of this Hospital and all its auxiliaries. Long may the work go on and prosper, as the need of it is more and more felt by us all.

Miss McDowell, the matron and head of the school, then bestowed the badges, which were pretty gold pins, in the form of a cross. Rev. Dr. Shinn read a poem written for the occasion by Miss Alice C. Jennings, entitled "In His Name, Go Heal the Sick," and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Baker, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital, New York. Afterwards a reception was held and supper was served to the guests.

The graduates were as follows: Misses Mary McDonald, Jennie Edith Hayes, Lucy Isabella DesBrisay, Isabella Drury, Helga Maria Hansson, Eleanor Edna Hyatt, Grace Douglas Seely, Lucy Anne Hunter.

CHARITIES AND CORRECTION.

THE FIRST NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTION WILL BE HELD IN NEWTON, OCTOBER 24, 25 AND 26.

In October, 1892, a Conference of Associated Charities and kindred societies in New England was held in Lynn, Mass., at the invitation of the local society.

The attendance was so large, and the meeting so helpful, that it was voted to meet yearly, and to enlarge the scope of the conference, taking the name of the New England Conference of Charities and Correction.

The executive committee then appointed cordially invites all to attend the conference to be held in this city beginning Tuesday afternoon, October 24, and closing Thursday, October 26.

The conference aims to be a gathering of people interested in all kinds of charitable and reformatory work, public and private. They will come together to learn from and teach each other about new and improved methods, to exchange opinions, to measure the results they have attained by those attained by others, to give to each other the ripest fruits of their experience.

The invitation to the conference is as inclusive as possible. Directors, managers, or officers of private charitable societies or institutions, members of state boards, judges and court officers, persons connected in any way with any state, city, town, or county institution for charitable or correctional purposes, and citizens taking an intelligent interest in the dealings of others with the distressed, the defective, or criminal, will all be equally welcome.

The program is already being made up in detail, and the chairmen will welcome information and suggestions from any one concerning their respective sessions. The conference will assemble Tuesday, October 24, at 2 p. m. in Channing church, within three minutes' walk of the Newton station, and will hold six sessions, closing Thursday morning, October 26.

The subjects to be considered are as follows: General Reports from the Six States. Chairman, Prof. John J. McCook, Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. Charity Organization. Chairman, Rev. J. M. Pullman, D. D., Chairman of the Associated Charities, Lynn, Mass. The Feeble-minded. Chairman, Geo. H. Knight, M. D., superintendent of the Connecticut school for the Feeble-minded, Lakeville, Conn. Public Relief and Almshouse. Chairman, James H. Lewis, Agent of the Overseers of the Poor, Springfield, Mass. Destitute, Neglected and Morally Exposed Children. Chairman, Charles W. Birtwell, General Secretary of the Boston Children's Aid Society, Boston, Mass.

The Prevention and Punishment of Crime. Chairman, Joseph G. Thorp, Jr., President of the Massachusetts Prison Association, Cambridge, Mass. Names of speakers and special points to be discussed will be given in a circular in the fall.

The citizens of Newton and Watertown will give a reception to the delegates at some time during the conference, that they may have opportunity of making acquaintance with each other.

The local committee are as follows: Chairman, Hon. G. D. Gilman, Newton.

Secretary and temporary treasurer, Mrs. Mary R. Martin, Newtonville.

Of Watertown, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Richards, Hiram McGladin, John Baker, Henry Chase, Mrs. M. R. Coffin, W. G. Comstock, Mrs. C. D. Crawford, Fred E. Crawford, O. W. Dimick, P. J. Dunphy, Mrs. W. Foley, C. H. Gregg, Mrs. J. R. Harrison, Mrs. S. P. Marsh, Mrs. L. B. Mose, David Tripp.

Of Newton, Wm. A. Lamb, Rev. D. Green, Mrs. Charles A. Drew, J. Howard Nichols.

Of Newton Centre, Rev. Edwin H. Hughes.

Of West Newton, Mrs. Albert Metcalf, Mrs. Chas. D. Davis, Mrs. Geo. T. Hill.

Of Newtonville, Mrs. Geo. T. Kimball, Miss Margaret C. Worcester.

Of Auburndale, Mrs. James Braman, Mrs. Geo. M. Fiske.

Of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. J. Herbert Sawyer.

Of Newton Highlands, Seward W. Jones.

ECHO BRIDGE PARK.

NEW PLEASURE GROUND FOR NEWTON AND SURROUNDING TOWNS.

The citizens of Newton and surrounding towns have now a pleasure resort, the need of which has long been felt. The beautiful grove in the vicinity of Echo bridge, which divides Newton Upper Falls and Needham, has been leased to a public spirited gentleman, and under the supervision of Mr. John R. Hall, the well known architect of Boston, hundreds of workmen have within the last two months transformed the grounds into a seeming fairy land.

Echo bridge was built by the city of Boston many years ago as a means of conveying the large water pipes from Lake Cochituate, and is considered one of the finest structures in masonry in the country. It is also of wide special fame on account of its grand echo, which attracts hundreds of people to the spot.

The architect has built two large bridges over the Charles river. These lead to a broad staircase, extending up the cliff 30 feet, with broad landings, to the winding pathways, shaded by stately elms, oaks and pines, direct to the centre of the park, situated on an oblong shaped hill.

A large dancing pavilion has been erected in the gothic style of architecture, 40x100 feet, open on all sides, with a high pitched roof. The pavilion is inclosed, with seats extending all around. The floor is of maple.

Adjoining the pavilion and extending down the slope, long rows of seats have been erected, facing the music stand. At the foot of the slope and facing the pavilion Mr. Hall has erected a two-story octagonal music stand, 20 feet in diameter. The band will be placed in the second story, which commands a view of the entire grounds.

The lower story will be used as a refreshment stand, the shutters opening in a manner to form a roof all around the building. The whole is finished with a high polished roof, with flag staff at top. Distributed over the grounds are some 300 seats, similar to those on Boston Common. Accommodations have been made to seat 25,000 people.

The entrance to the park is from the Newton side. Located near the entrance is an old fashioned mansion of the colonial style, and this building will be used for the sale of refreshments, conducted on temperance principles.

The grounds are well supplied with swings, merry-go-rounds, etc., with lavatories for both ladies and gentlemen. These beautiful grounds were thrown open to the public on the 17th of June. For picturesque scenery the spot cannot be surpassed. Fertile covered rocks, the falls, unobscured groves, precipitous banks and bridges reflected in the deep, still waters, all form one of the most charming pictures that can be imagined, and a more restful or attractive spot for ladies and children of Newton to pass a pleasant afternoon could not be conceived. The proprietors of Ely's Cream Balm do not claim it to be a cure-all, but a remedy for catarrh, colds in the head and hay fever. It is not a liquid or a snuff, is easily applied into the nostrils. It gives relief at once. See ad.

A Justice of the Peace Says. Hon. John Nealey, justice of the peace and member of the House of Representatives from Meredith, N. H., was for twelve years a terrible sufferer with rheumatism. He says: I cannot obtain any medicine which does me so much good as your Sulphur Bitters, and I think it is the best medicine made.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure is manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by all druggists, price 75c, per bottle.

Could not Keep Shop without them. I consider your Sulphur Bitters a remarkable purifier. I know of several people, whose cases were considered hopeless, that have been entirely cured by your medicine. The sale of Sulphur Bitters is so large here that I could not keep shop without them. E. S. Yates, Pharmacist, 99 Essex street, Lawrence, Mass.

I had catarrh of the head and throat for five years. I used Ely's Cream Balm, and from the first application I was relieved. The sense of smell, which had been lost, was restored after using one bottle. I have found the Balm the only satisfactory remedy for catarrh, and it has effected a cure in my case.—H. L. Meyer, Waverly, N. Y.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

A Bright Lad,

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, confidential statement to us:

"When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor said that I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors thought that even if I did not die, I would never be able to walk, because I was so weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke under my arm. I hurt my finger and gathered and threw out pieces of bone. If I hurt myself so as to break the skin, it was sure to become a running sore. I had to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has made me well and strong." T. D. M., Norcutt, Kans.

—Through the efforts of Mrs. Boyner and other friends, a neat headstone has been placed at the grave of the late Robert Addison, formerly coachman for Mr. Theodore Nickerson, and whose death resulted from being thrown by a horse he was riding some weeks ago.

—A strawberry festival was given in Associates Hall Wednesday evening by the society of the Church of the Sacred Heart. There was a large number present and the proceeds will go to the church debt society.

—A seven-year-old daughter of Chas. A. Fish had a fall Saturday while at play which came very near resulting fatally, but the child is now out of danger. She fell, receiving a severe blow just above the region of the heart. Dr. May attended.

—Thomas R. Frost, in company with his brother, has just concluded the purchase of the Newhall grocery store and livery stable business in Roxbury. Mr. Frost's brother will conduct the business during the summer, the former taking hold with him in the fall.

—A swarm of honey bees, which have been thriving in one of the pillars to Dr. R. P. Loring's house on Crescent avenue, had to be smothered out Wednesday to allow the men employed in repairing and painting the house to continue their work.

—Rev. Henry J. Patrick of West Newton preached at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, in exchange with the pastor. In the evening occurred the quarterly meeting of the temperance union, and Rev. E. H. Hughes of the Methodist church conducted the service, his address tending to show the practical side of temperance work.

—There are letters at the postoffice addressed as follows: Mrs. Joseph W. Cutler, John P. Desmond, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, (John H.), L. Gallagher (2), Mrs. Mary Hatfield, Duncan Johnson, Miss Louis Merriam, Mrs. Moriarty, Mr. C. E. Rosecrans, Mr. J. Smith, (Walker St.), Miss E. W. Woodman.

—Dr. Joseph Yelljo, Takasugi of Japan will deliver an address at the Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday. Dr. Takasugi is a graduate of DePaul and Boston Universities and speaks interestingly of his native land.

—James C. Walworth of the class of '91, Newton High school, has taken a first mathematical prize, Sophomore year, at Yale.

—Mr. Edward Brattle Oliver, Parker street, died yesterday morning after a long illness. The deceased was of many noble qualities and was an accomplished musician, although totally blind. He was nearly 71 years old.

—On Sunday, the 18th inst., Rev. T. J. Holmes, pastor of the First (Congregational) church, offered his resignation of the pastoral office, to take effect Sept. 30th next. At that date Mr. Holmes will have completed ten years of service here. During his ministry the church has had a constant growth, and Mr. Holmes has secured the sincere friendship of his own people and of the community generally. The resignation was read at the morning service coming as a great surprise to the majority and a good deal of regret is felt. Newton Centre churches seem especially unfortunate just at this time, the Baptist and Unitarian societies having already been left without pastors by the resignation of Rev. L. C. Barnes to go to Pittsburg, Pa., and of Rev. Alexander T. Bowser because of failing health.

—The following is sent in by a correspondent: "A petition signed by some of the best citizens of Newton Centre, has been sent to the mayor and aldermen, asking for a hearing in regard to the conduct of Officer Wm. H. Condrin, in arresting H. F. Cobb, as referred to in the issue of June 16th; it is thought by those who know about the affair that the officer had no right to arrest him. The boy arrested did not break out of the station, but finding that he was not locked in, went home, and was not arrested again until Monday night about ten o'clock. The officer had a warrant for his arrest in the morning. Now did the officer do his duty? If he did, why did he not arrest the boys who were with him at the time, and committing the same offence?"

—Rev. Mr. Holmes preached Sunday evening at the Methodist church.

—Mrs. A. S. Colbrook has returned to her home in Rochester, N. Y.

—The Proctor Academy at Andover, N. H., is quite prosperous under the care of Professor J. F. Morton, recently of Newton Centre.

—Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Newton on the birth of a boy.

—Master Carroll Benton Huntress, a relative of the late Hon. Thomas Benton, has returned to his home in Keene, N. H.

—Mr. Thorn of New York and Mr. Daley of Indiana are playing one hundred games of checkers in Newton Centre, perhaps for the championship of America. They have now played about sixty games and results will be given next week.

—Mrs. Bowman, who lives in Cousen's block and is rather an elderly woman, received a severe scalp wound a fortnight ago from a board which blew off the roof of the near part of Cousen's block while she was in the yard below. It took twelve stitches to close the wound, and Mr. Bowman has deemed it of sufficient importance to institute a writ against Mr. Horace Cousen for damages in the sum of $500.

—Contractor T. D. Sullivan of Newton Highlands, who is at work with his men on the old S. V. A. Hunter house on Crystal street, lost a pocketbook containing $35 last Tuesday afternoon. He left his coat in a shed near at hand while at work, and late in the afternoon upon looking for his pocketbook, which he left in the coat, found it gone. The coat lay only a few feet from the wall of the building, which was visited frequently during the day. Officer Fletcher was at once notified and is investigating. On Wednesday morning the empty pocketbook was found under a cherry tree near by in which men had been picking cherries, but none of whom were around there the afternoon previously.

—Tomorrow comes that much looked forward to game of ball between N. H. S. and the Newtons. A great deal of friendly rivalry exists between these companion teams, and much interest and excitement will be manifested in this first game. The second taking place July 4. N. H. S. has been by far the most practiced and have been late in the afternoon upon looking for his pocketbook, which he left in the coat, found it gone. —Mr. George Wallace and family leave here this week for Pt. Allerton, where they remain during the hot weather.

—Miss Alice Jones is spending her vacation in Maine.

—Mr. James Anderson and daughter have returned from California.

—Mr. G. H. Savage of Charlestown was in town this week visiting her brother, Mr. A. A. Savage.

—H. F. Page, Will Austin and Harry Wiggin are enjoying an outing at South Hampton, Ct.

—Charles Atwood is enjoying a vacation trip in Vermont.

—Miss Abbie Fiske of the Adams school will pass a portion of the summer vacation at her home in Greenfield.

—Mr. Sanford G. Galloway and his boy, aged four years, enjoyed a trip recently on a bicycle to Nantasket, the little fellow riding in a clever device arranged under the handle bar.

—Mr. Herbert C. Needham of Lowell street leaves Saturday for a two weeks trip at the World's Fair.

—Miss Eleanor Forbes of Lowell street leaves soon for a two weeks vacation at her home in Maine.

—Mr. Ezra Sampson and son, Edwin, left Thursday for their usual summer outing at North Falmouth.

—Mr. N. T. Bryant and family of Walker street left this week for their summer home at North Falmouth.

—Miss Sadie Pemberton of Washington street leaves July 1 for a few week vacation at her home in Haverhill, Mass.

—Mr. E. H. Pierce and family will spend the summer at Katahdin Iron Works, Me.

—Mr. Wallace Knowles Butler has gone to his home at Wood's Hill for the summer season.

—Miss Emma Stevens of Portland, Maine, is visiting Mrs. Bosson of Highland avenue.

—The closing session of the Universalist Sunday school was held last Sunday previous to the vacation of the months of July and August.

—Rev. Mr. Dutton of the Congregational church entertained a large company of the young people at his home on Washington Park last Saturday afternoon.

—The closing business meeting of the Universalist Y. P. S. C. E., held Wednesday evening at the home of the Misses Ross, Walnut street.

—The residents of Otis street will continue their custom of publicly celebrating the glorious Fourth of July. This year the usual fireworks display will be dispensed with, and the affair will be confined to an evening promenade concert and illumination of the street and contingent grounds.

—Miss Blanche Palmer, who was a guest of Mrs. Nellie E. D. Brown this week, has recently graduated with honor from the Conservatory of Music, Boston, and has already had a flattering offer of a position in the South. Miss Palmer is a young lady of fine musical ability and of very agreeable personal qualities.

—It has been a great pleasure to friends of Mrs. Rufus A. White to see her again in Newtonville this week. While her husband's position as pastor of the Universalist church, Englewood, Chicago, is an enviable one, and his people a most cordial in their appreciation of their pastor, New England still has for Rev. R. A. White and family very strong attractions, and their old parishioners welcome them with delight. They will summer at historic Plymouth, having rented a cottage on the bluffs, which they had in former years, and returning to Chicago in September.

—Mr. W. L. Chaloner and party have returned from their annual outing in the New Hampshire hills, where they enjoyed sketching and trouting as much as ever, and the guidance of that old mountaineer, Jack Davis, who is such a lover of the woods, and so delightful an attendant. Mr. Samuel Frizzell of Park Square, Boston, Mr. William Hartwell of Hyde Park, Mr. Samuel Singer of the Highlands, and Mr. Pitt of the Beacon Co., were of the number. The two latter have fine musical talent and enlivened the evening with the camp fire with song and banjo, and pleasant reminiscence.

—Mayor Fenn's speech to the graduating class on Tuesday morning was a felicitous one and all the more appreciated since it is five years since the Mayor of Newton has graced similar occasions with his presence. Evidently Mayor Fenn means to do his duty in every department of the city's interest, as far as able. After the class, a large one of ninety-nine, had received their diplomas from the Mayor's hands, the floral tributes tendered by admiring friends, made the platform a bower of beauty and fragrance, and the "spree" which followed added to the physical comfort of the fair maidens and gay youths who had borne the trying ordeal of the morning so well.

—An express wagon, owned by Dr. Whitcomb, was run down by a heavy cart on Mill street yesterday morning and was overturned as a result of the collision. Two men, the driver and a friend, were thrown out but not seriously injured. The horse cleared the wreck, and with a broken shaft ran through Cabot, Washington park, Walnut and Bowers streets, nearly colliding with one of Hill's hacks in the latter thoroughfare. William McPherson, assistant baggage master at the station, headed the horse off and succeeded in stopping him, not without considerable of a tussle, however. The animal was badly cut about the legs from contact with the broken shaft.

—Mr. William Hollings and family have gone to Chicago to visit the Columbian Exposition.

—Mr. Arthur A. Glines and family have gone to Onset for the summer.

—Mr. W. P. Upham and family have gone to Salem for a short stay.

—Mr. Thomas Emerson has erected a summer residence opposite the Mount Main House, North Conway.

—C. E. Howard will pass his vacation at Watch Hill, R. I.

—Mr. C. C. Clapp of Binghamton, N. Y., is in town this week for a short stay.

—Miss Hunt of Providence is the guest of Miss Minnie Hunt, Grove Hill avenue.

—The monthly meeting of the Newton Co-operative Bank will be held Tuesday evening, July 4, from 7 to 9 o'clock, when money will be offered for sale and dues received.

—Messrs. Jack and Andy Highlands, Harvard's crack pitchers, were in town this week as the guests of Miss Alice Woodman.

—There was a little episode not on the program at the High school graduation exercises Tuesday, that of the action of a student who tore up his diploma. It was a case of disappointment because the faculty's award indicated the completion only of three year's work, the student in question not having fulfilled the requirements of the four year's course.

—The lamp post knocked over last winter by a heavy lumber team near Linwood avenue in that locality, familiarly known as Page's hollow, has not yet been replaced, and citizens are anxious to ascertain the cause for such a long delay. It is a dark spot and a little illumination would be greatly appreciated.

—Children's Sunday was observed at the Methodist church last Sunday by the christening of children in the morning, and an extremely interesting Sunday school concert in the evening. The church was elaborately decorated with a profusion of beautiful flowers, ferns and chains of garlands suspended from the gas jets. The scholars marched up the aisles in couples, dressed in white and carrying flowers. The singing by the school was bright and spirited. The recitations by the children were an interesting feature. Remarks were made by the pastor and Rev. Edgar Davidson. At the conclusion a potted plant was given to each member of the school.

—WEST NEWTON

—Mr. S. Warren Davis and family leave for their summer home in Rowe, Mass., this week.

—Mrs. John Mead and grandson leave for Chicago this week, Saturday.

—Mrs. T. A. Fleu and family left for South Bristol, Me., Friday of last week. Mr. Fleu will take a trip to Chicago the present week.

—Miss Hattie Newhall of Smith College will spend her vacation at Niagara, Chicago and other places West.

—The Misses Allen, accompanied by Miss Emma T. Nickerson, leave for Chicago this week.

—Miss M. J. Rogers and sister, Mrs. King, will spend the remainder of the summer in Ashfield, Mass.

—Mr. E. A. Kingman and family have removed from this place to Weston and have taken an estate there near Cherry Brook station.

—Mr. Frank Wyman is building a new residence on Prince street.

—Mrs. A. E. Trowbridge and daughter have returned from Worcester, where they have been visiting friends.

—Mr. George Garrison and family will summer this season at Dobb's Ferry, on the Hudson.

—Mr. Metcalf and family of Chicago, are the guests of Mr. Albert Metcalf, Highland street.

—Edward A. Elder is home from Annapolis Academy and will pass a portion of the vacation period here.

—Mr. Peter Thacher has sold his residence on Winthrop street to Dr. Chandler, and removed with his family to Cambridge.

—Mr. John Greenwood and family have gone to North Falmouth for the summer season.

—Mr. F. D. Childs and family of Putnam street will pass the summer at Marblehead.

—Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Train are receiving congratulations of their friends on the birth of a daughter.

—A recently announced engagement, that has given much pleasure to the friends of the young people, is that of Miss Mary Fyfe, of the Harvard Annex, daughter of Commodore Joseph Fyfe, U. S. N., and Mr. Marcus L. Miller, U. S. N.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Mr. A. T. Barker, J. M. Dick, C. W. Elfrstrand, Patrick Mooney, Frank Murphy, Arthur R. Turner.

—A gospel temperance meeting will be held in Good Templars Hall, Sunday, July 2nd, at 4 o'clock. A good audience listened last Sunday to an interesting address by Mr. McElwain of Boston.

—The ushering in of a new month will witness a departure in the method of issuing warrants for offences within the jurisdiction of the local court. The clerk of the court will have power to act as the judge will be relieved of, at least, part of that work.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Felton left here Saturday for Chicago.

—Mr. J. P. Gray of Lowell has taken one of Mr. V. E. Carpenter's houses on Putnam street.

—Mr. Fred Barker, who has been visiting here, sails tomorrow for Liverpool.

—Mr. R. G. Elkins and Miss Elkins have returned from a trip to Niagara Falls.

—Buy your fireworks at Wright's Pharmacy, next door to postoffice. Great variety; Boston prices.

—At the Congregational church the service of communion next Sunday will be held at 6 p. m. instead of 3.

—Mr. George E. Peters and family have gone to Chicago.

—Rev. L. J. O'Toole sailed for Europe this week.

—George Manderson, employed by W. H. Pettigrew, builder, fell from a staging on a new house on Prince street, Tuesday, a distance of 16 feet. He was badly bruised about the head and sustained besides internal injuries.

—Sidney Hiltz is spending a few weeks in New Hampshire.

—The new drunk law goes into effect July 1. It is a return to the old regime and the penalty is a fine ranging from $1 to $15, as the court may determine. The arresting officer must hereafter present the case to the court and show cause for the arrest.

—Martin Lafite assumes his duties as court officer, July 1.

—At the Neighborhood tournament yesterday, Fred Hovey took the lead with two victories to his credit, and Hobart lost another match. Hovey beat Wrenn, 6-3, 6-3; Chase beat Hobart 7-5, 7-5; Wrenn beat Larned 7-5, 6-4, 6-4; Hovey beat Chase 7-5, 6-2.

—The exercises of graduation week at the Pierce school were of a very interesting character. The diplomas were awarded yesterday by Mrs. Abbie Davis of the school board and an address to the pupils and parents was given by Rev. H. Usher Monroe. Other features were declamations, music and essays. A paper on Mythology by Edith Blanchard and another entitled, "The Month of June," by J. Herbert Scott were particularly bright and entertaining. The class verse was from Robert Browning's "Rabbi Ben Ezra" as follows:

"Grow old along with me!
The best is yet to be,
The last of life, for which the first was made:
Our times are in His hand,
Who says that Youth shall show him,
Youth shows but half; trust God: see all, nor be afraid!"

The only drawback was the cramped accommodations. The time is not far distant when provision must be made to meet the exigencies which a large and growing school demands.

YOU'D BETTER CHERISH HIM.

There are husbands who are pretty.
There are husbands who are witty.
There are husbands who in public are as smiling as the moon.
There are husbands who are healthy.
There are husbands who are wealthy.
But the real angelic husband—well, he's never yet been born!

So far strength of love are noted,
Who are really so devoted That when their wives are absent they are Lonesome and forlorn.
And while now and then you'll find one Who's a fairly good and kind one,
Yet the real angelic husband—oh, he's never yet been born!

So the woman who is mated
To the man who may be rated
As pretty fair should cherish him forever and A day.
For the real angelic creature,
Perfect, quite, in every feature,
He has never been discovered, and he won't be,
So they say.

A LUCKY RUSSIAN.

In the heart of the Ural mountains, which divide Siberia from Russia, stand the largest sheet iron works in the universe. Owned and managed by the Russian government, they constitute an entire city and are fortified like a fort against the rest of the world.

Russian sheet iron, as every one knows, is the strongest and best produced by any nation, and the process of its manufacture is jealously guarded by the authorities. One who enters the service of the company never again sees the outside world. He gives up everything—freedom, family, friends, all for the sum of a few pitiful rubles a month delivered where he chooses. He is there in the works, but he might as well be in his grave. Not a word can be obtained concerning him, and should he live 20 years after entering the service or die the next day not even his family would be the wiser, unless the stoppage of the monthly stipend revealed the fate of the man. Once in awhile one tries to escape; not often, however, for they are always caught and always shot—as a warning to others—for the attempted treachery.

It was a crisp October night in the little village of Obvinsk, about 200 miles from the great iron works. The weather was sharp, the trees and vegetation turned to a reddish brown—all but the lichens and mosses, which seemed to crouch into the very bowlders in their effort to shield themselves from the keen wind, sweeping knifelike from the snow covered Ural.

Petroff Norvitski entered his poor hut as his wife Kartina placed their scant supper of dry bread and potatoes on the little fir table, on which flickered and flared a bit of candlestick stuck in a gourd for candlestick.

"I am tired through, wife," said he, "and will go to bed, but cheer up before I go; sunshine is always back of the clouds. True, the crops have failed and I can get no work, but the Blessed Virgin will surely see us through the winter."

And with a tender kiss to wife and babies Petroff sought the rest he so much needed. He shut his eyes, but not to sleep, and only to turn over and over in his fevered brain the probability of seeing his family starve and freeze. He was brighter, more hopeful, when he rose next morning, but any one could have seen that his cheerfulness was mostly assumed. Eating his breakfast—one potato again—Petroff kissed the babies more tenderly than usual, and evading his wife's questions as to where he was going he bade her keep up her heart and once more left the house.

But once out of sight of her eyes he flung himself down by the roadside, and, strong man as he was, he bowed his head in his hands and sobbed like a child.

But Petroff was a sturdy fellow, and after a few moments given to uncontrollable grief he wiped away his tears and strode down the highway. From time to time he begged a bit of bread from a passing serf, and when nightfall settled over the valley crawled into a thicket and sunk into a heavy sleep. The sun was peeping bold and brassy over the Ural mountains before he awoke and stiff and sore began again his tramp toward the iron works. It had crossed the meridian, the shadows were lengthening, and still not a morsel of food had passed his lips this day, every one of whom he had begged a bite needing it for their own uses.

Suddenly to the right a gunshot sounded, and a ptarmigan fell within reach.

"A providence for me!" cried Petroff, joyously seizing and thrusting it under his jacket and looking about him to make sure that the sportsman had missed the effect of his shot. As soon as he dared he stopped, made a fire and cooked the bird, and though he ate it without bread or salt it gave him strength to keep his way. Sleeping in the night air had stiffened and made his bones ache, so he had decided that he would not again try the thicket if he could help it, and as night had come on dark and murky he began to look about him for a place of shelter. He was then, though he did not know it, passing the estate of the celebrated Comte Romanoff.

Looming through the darkness stood the great turreted castle with its battlemented walls and close by the highway a barn, into which Petroff slipped through an open window and stretched himself on the sweet smelling hay, his troubles for the time forgotten in slumber.

It was pitch dark and close on to midnight when the sound of voices roused him—suppressed voices talking in cautious tones, which at once awakened his suspicions. He lay still and listened.

"But this isn't the stable," a voice at the door murmured complainingly.

"No, devil take it," replied another, "I took the wrong turn; the stables are back of the castle. Come on. Get three of the best horses and bring them to the gate by the lodge, a tidy addition, you know, to the ransom we will get for the capture of Romanoff. It is 12 o'clock now. We must be at the rendezvous by 8. Hurry; we have no time to lose here."

Norvitski lay still till the sound of their footsteps died in the distance. Then he arose and dropped from the window by which he had entered, hurried to the castle and rattled the knocker vigorously. A servant responded and inquired what was wanted.

"Your master," said Petroff. "I must see him at once."

"Return tomorrow," said the man. "The comte's abed, fatigued by hunting."

"I must see him now, I tell you," Petroff persisted. "It is life or death! Go, as I bid you."

Guessing from Norvitski's manner that something serious did demand his master's attention, the servant obeyed, and Petroff five minutes later was entering the room where the comte, in dressing gown and slippers, sat upon the edge of his bed sleepily rubbing his eyes and considerably exasperated at his interrupted nap.

"What do you want, fellow?" cried he angrily as Petroff entered. "What mean you by disturbing me at this unseemly hour?"

"To secure your safety, sir, perhaps," Petroff answered boldly, and in a few words told his story. The comte, when Petroff finished, was no longer yawning, but angry and alert.

"Well," said he, "if that isn't impudence! Once, some years ago, the Koski pass brigands caught me and made me pay a round price for freedom, but who would have dreamed of their venturing to the castle to try the game again? This time, if I know myself, we'll turn the tables!"

And the comte jerked the bell. The same man that had answered Petroff's knock and awakened the comte answered the summons and was told the details.

"There's no use rousing the house, master," said he, "unless you order it. We three can manage them. They can get in only by the scullery windows, and we'll have them when they enter the house."

A plan arranged, they noiselessly started below stairs, the comte carrying a lantern over which he had thrown a cloak to hide its rays. Taking their stand in cautious silence, they feverishly awaited events. As the castle clock struck 1, as if it had been a signal, a file was heard swiftly and nearly noiselessly cutting the iron grating. In a short time a section of grating was out, and a wolf-like tread was heard in the darkness, followed quickly by another. As the muffled feet drew near the door leading above the brigands found themselves suddenly covered with light and the yawning muzzles of three cavalry pistols. Resistance was useless. Three men were more than a match for two. They helplessly suffered themselves to be bound, disarmed and thrown like a bundle of fagots in the corner to await the arrival of the officers the next morning.

"Norvitski, my friend," said the comte, "you have saved my life possibly and are a rich man besides. Twenty thousand rubles reward has been offered for the capture of these men, dead or alive, two of the most desperate brigands and wretches that ever cursed Russia. Twenty thousand rubles reward, of which you, Norvitski, shall have every kopeck. Why, man, what are you crying about?"

"For joy, my lord," Petroff responded and breathlessly told his sad story.

"I could not see them starve, my wife and babies, good comte," he cried. "I was going to the iron works, but now, thanks to the Blessed Virgin, I can return to my home, to Kartina, to the children, whom I never expected to see again."

"Exactly," said the comte, "and in one of my finest sledges too."

The astonishment of the villagers when this splendid equipage with furs, footmen, outriders and jingling bells drew up to Norvitski's humble hut, and Norvitski himself, assisted by a footman, got out—well, I leave you to imagine it, as well as Kartina's joy, who did not dream where her husband had gone.

The brigands were promptly exiled to Siberia, the reward paid in full, and today if a happy man exists in Russia Petroff Norvitski is that one.—From the Russian.

Cave Dwellers in Brooklyn.

It is true enough that one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives, and it is likely that some residents of the Brooklyn heights are unaware of the cave dwellers who eat and sleep within 50 feet of their back windows. In cutting down the hill front to lay out Furman street a precipitous face of gravel was left, and instead of making an easy slope from the crest of the heights to the water's edge the gravel was kept in place by a heavy retaining wall. This wall has been pierced in several places, however, so that it has become the front of a row of underground houses, about 30 feet into the hill, the lawns and gardens of the rich people overhead constituting their roofs. In these caves there are saloons, shops, storerooms and tenements. They are dark and rather damp, as they have no light or air except on the street side.—New York Sun.

An Improvement in Glass Globes.

It is well known that opaque globes absorb a very large amount of the light of are lamps, and whatever present style of globe if used a dark shadow is cast directly below the lamp. To avoid these difficulties a new style of globe has been brought out in France made of transparent glass with circular depressions, having such faces as to form lenses (similar to the well known light-house lenses), the curvatures of which are so calculated that they refract and reflect so as to diffuse the light. Such globes may be made of pressed glass and although more expensive they diffuse light much more economically than absorbing opal or ground glass globes.—New York World.

A Foolish Proceeding.

"A man tried to commit suicide the other day by swallowing a paper of tacks."

"How foolish! The object of suicide is dissolution. I should think the tacks would have fastened him together more firmly."—Harper's Bazar.

The Nizam's Pleasure Boat.

There has just been completed by Messrs. Messum, the well known boat builders of Richmond, to the order of the Nizam of Hyderabad, a pleasure boat peculiar in shape and for its size exceedingly costly in construction. Two boats of the size of a large skiff have been joined side by side by a deck, upon the extremities of which rise a number of finely carved pillars supporting a pagoda shaped roof. The whole of the woodwork is of teak, a wood which is not warped by heat. As an instance of the great expenditure of labor upon the boat, which is only 28 feet long by 14 feet wide, it may be stated that the tiles of the roof are composed of some 3,000 small pieces of teak, most of which have had to be specially cut.

There are no windows, but all four sides of the barge will be hung with pure silk of the richest quality, while the deck will be cushioned in the same costly way to a height of some feet. The barge will be propelled by two feathered paddles placed between the bows and sterns of the two supporting boats and turned by handles after the manner of a small canoe. The barge is intended for use on a lake near to which the nizam has a summer palace. It is now moored in the river opposite to Buelchell House at Richmond.—London Times.

No More "Lagniappe" in New Orleans.

"Lagniappe" will be no more honored in the breach than in the observance among tradesmen of New Orleans in future. This is the name of the gratuity which the creoles were wont to give to customers, the recipients being chiefly children and colored people. It took the form usually of confectionery, pastry or nuts. The practice is a relic of the old Spanish domination in Louisiana. The word "lagniappe" is a transformation of the Spanish phrase "la nappa," which means a gratuity, a sweetener, to make a purchaser pleased with his bargain.

This custom it seems has never obtained outside of the second and third districts of the city, and "lagniappe" was so prescriptively grounded that it came to be regarded as a right to which the people were legally entitled. In an age of sharp and sordid competition, however, the tradesmen find the gratuity too much of a tax on their profits. A few days ago the Retail Grocers' association of the second and third districts adopted a resolution doing away with the picturesque usage.—New York Post.

She Saved the License.

One should not be too confident and precipitate in affairs of the heart. James McCarthy of Norfolk has learned this bitter lesson. Friday he purchased of the town clerk a license to marry a certain lovely widow on whom his favors fell.

With the parchment in his vest pocket he presented himself before the widow and for the first time asked her to be his cherished bride, and in the certainty of her answer he showed her the precious license. The proposal was so sudden and the swain so sure that the widow was nettled and refused him with considerable emphasis.

Mr. McCarthy was dazed for a moment, and then realizing his discomfiture he dashed the license to the floor, danced a breakdown on it and left the house. The next day, says the local chronicler, the economical widow took the license back to the town clerk and requested him to hold it until the right man wanted her.—Buffalo Courier.

Curiosities From Key West.

Dr. Einar Lounberg has returned from his trip to Key West for the purpose of scientific research among marine animals. He describes the sea there as enormously rich in fish and the sponging grounds as the best in the world. He captured and brought with him 50 different kinds of fish, three of which had never before been seen along the Florida coast. He found many strange mollusks, crustaceans, actinians and worms, and the rest of the land species—were very abundant on the keys on account of the calcareous soil. On Key West he found a snake that exists nowhere else, also the great black scorpion, imported probably from the West India islands. An animal of semi-lizard form about an inch, which he is not able to classify before it is dissected, is probably a new discovery.—Orlando (Fla.) Record.

A Class Boy.

The class of '92 which was graduated from Yale last June has a class boy. He was born Saturday, April 22, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand A. Houston. The parents of the class boy are both pursuing postgraduate courses in the philosophical department of the university. It was only last fall that women were admitted to Yale. This is the first child ever born to the university whose parents are both members of it. The mother was prior to her marriage Miss Helen Dawson and was graduated from Smith college in the class of '89. She spent several years studying in Germany and returning to this country married Mr. Houston shortly after he graduated last June.

Fear Cold in Hunger.

During the cold and snowy weather of last winter foxes about the North Beach life saving station on the Maryland coast were driven to desperation with hunger. In their starving condition they seemed to lose the fear of men and actually approached the life saving station in broad daylight and attempted to steal chickens and even small pigs.—Washington Post.

Death of Hiram Barker.

Mr. Hiram Barker, who has for so many years been engaged in the starch manufactory business in the Watertown district, died on Tuesday, at his home on Parsons street, Brighton. The deceased was born in West Newton in 1812, where he received his education in the public schools, but for nearly three score years he has lived in Brighton. For a number of years he was associated with the late Granville Fuller in the lumber business, and for the past thirty years Mr. Barker has been engaged in the manufacture of starch, with an office on Commercial street, Boston.

Mr. Barker was one of the founders of the National Market Bank of Brighton, and up to the time of his death was the only surviving member of the original board of directors. He was a member of the Congregational church, and he and Mrs. Barker were the only surviving original members. He was a large contributor to charitable objects and was highly respected by all. He leaves a widow, two sons, Messrs. Hiram E. and E. L. Barker, and a daughter, Mrs. Chas. S. Ensign. The funeral services will be held at his late residence this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Newton Cemetery.

The Newton Cemetery was never more attractive than at present. The cool and damp weather of the past two weeks has helped both the trees and lawns to present their most beautiful appearance, and the flower beds are now in their most becoming summer dress. A new bed has been laid out near the superintendent's house, and filled wholly with different varieties of Palms and variegated foliage, which is worth going a long way to see. There is nothing to equal it in this vicinity. Every owner of a lawn can gain valuable hints by seeing the evidence of skillful landscape gardening which has been done on the cemetery grounds.

The 4th of July Racket.

To the Editor of the Graphic:

It gave great pleasure to many hundreds of your readers to have you call the attention of the city government to the need of reform in the celebration of "the Glorious Fourth."

To say nothing of the discomfort occasioned ordinary people by the din that begins at midnight, it is a bit of inexpressible cruelty to the scores and scores of sick people who are tortured beyond expression by this banging of firearms and tooting of horns.

Other neighborhoods have stopped it until 5 p. m. It is absurd to have it at all, but if there must be any racket let it be put off until daylight. A CITIZEN.

NEWTON SCHOOL BOARD.

THE FINAL MEETING OF THE YEAR—KINDERGARTEN MOVEMENT RAPIDLY GROWING.

The final meeting of the school board was held Wednesday evening, the mayor presiding and Messrs. Hollis, Drew, Hale and Boyden being absent.

RESIGNATIONS AND APPOINTMENTS.

After the roll had been called by the secretary, Mrs. Martin presented the resignation of Ida Collins, teacher of drawing, which was accepted, and an order presented appointing Nathaniel L. Berry, supervisor of drawing, at a salary of $1600.

Mr. Ward asked for some information regarding the qualifications of the gentleman mentioned for the position. Mrs. Martin said he was at present inspector of drawing in the Lynn schools and was very highly recommended, being considered the best director of drawing in the state.

The order was adopted. The resignation of Ada P. Zeigler of the Davis school was accepted.

HEAD KINDERGARTENER.

Miss Fannie L. Curtis was appointed to a position as head kindergartener with a salary of $750.

Mr. Ober presented the resignation of Kate A. Glynn, which was accepted, and an order adopted, confirming the appointment of Josephine S. Taylor as assistant in the Williams school, at $620 per annum.

Susie C. Aiken was appointed to teach the kindergarten department at the Williams school.

NEW H. S. MASTER.

Mr. Bond presented an order appointing Frank Rollins master at the High school, with a salary of $2000.

Mr. Bond added that Mr. Rollins came very highly recommended, but Mr. Ward wished to learn something more definite in regard to qualifications for the position, and the salary mentioned.

The mayor called upon Supt. Aldrich, who called the attention of the board first to a previous order passed by the board authorizing the employment of an additional master at the High school, also a later one authorizing the superintendent to relieve Mr. Chandler by diverting some of the work into other channels. He had since been trying to find a competent man and had such he believed in Mr. Rollins. The latter came from New Britain, Conn., where he has been for five or six years. He was about to be offered a higher position when selected, but Newton was fortunate in being able to secure him.

Mr. Mason asked if the gentleman was not to receive an offer in the nature of a promotion.

Supt. Aldrich replied that a position in the State Normal school would have been offered him if Newton had not decided to take him.

Mr. Ward understood there was no rule in regard to the salary paid to masters, Supt. Aldrich replying that the custom was to base the salary upon the experience and ability of the teacher.

The appointment of Mr. Rollins was thus confirmed.

The appointment of Mary S. Bruce as assistant in the High school at a salary of $1000 was confirmed.

Mr. Smith presented the resignation of Margaret E. Atkins, first assistant in the Hyde school, and an order was passed appointing Teresa Glasheen to the vacancy.

The resignation of Edith K. Joyce was received and Mabel A. Langley appointed as an unassigned teacher, salary $500.

An order was passed allowing Annie C. Merritt, first assistant in the Clifton school, leave of absence, her intention being to study in Germany.

Delia E. Noyes, resigned from the Mason school, and to the vacancy Anna C. Brush was appointed with a salary of $620.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

Supt. Aldrich presented his report. Four kindergarten schools have been opened, and in September seven or eight more will probably be opened. The conduct of these schools is not an easy matter, and it is difficult to find teachers for this department; the expense is also considerable. With the present population about fifteen kindergarten schools could be profitably employed.

Two plans were presented for the management of the schools at the present time.

The first is to employ an experienced lady teacher for each school. To do this will entail some difficulty in selecting competent teachers which are hard to procure, and a good salary is also requisite.

The other plan is to employ one head kindergartener whose duty will be to conduct one of the schools and have a general supervision and oversight of all. The most desirable plan seemed to be that mentioned first, which would be much less difficult and expensive to find one good kindergartener of ability and experience than to procure fifteen. The plan in contemplation was to have the kindergartens conducted both morning and afternoon. If the plan was approved by the board he had intended to recommend the appointment of a head kindergartener to commence work in September, but his wishes had been anticipated by the board in an order passed, for which he was very thankful.

Mr. Hornbrooke reported, recommending the adoption of various text books, the report being received.

Mr. Bond reported for the finance committee, and an order was then passed appropriating the sum of $14,943.75 for expenses of the current month.

ESTABLISHING KINDERGARTENS.

Mr. Hornbrooke presented an order authorizing the committee of Ward Seven and the superintendent to establish a kindergarten at the Underwood school in September, 1893. Passed.

Mrs. Davis presented a similar order establishing a kindergarten at the Jackson school, West Newton, in September. Passed.

Mr. Brackett presented a petition from the Newton Social Science Club, asking the use of a school room in the Jackson school house during the summer vacation, in which to conduct a kindergarten department connected with their vacation school.

An order was passed allowing the Social Science Club free use of a room in the Jackson school during July and August, for the conduct of a free kindergarten.

Mr. Smith presented an order that the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Highlands Congregational church be allowed the free use of the Oak Hill school house for Sunday school purposes. He said Oak Hill residents were favorable to the petition.

Mr. Bond moved its reference to the Ward Five committee with full powers. Mr. Hornbrooke personally had no objection to allowing the use of the property and especially for such a purpose, but there were serious doubts if it was a wise policy for the board to pursue, or if the use of the public school houses could be disposed of in this manner. He thought it would be a very unwise precedent to establish.

Mr. Ober said he should hesitate before voting on such an order if it was in any other locality, and thought it unwise to establish precedents.

Mr. Smith thought under the circumstances it was a wise thing to do. The school house was in a country district where no other building was available.

Mr. Bond supported his motion to refer by saying he considered it a critical matter and that the Ward Five committee could best gather the information needed.

Mr. Mason favored its reference, but thought the city council might claim some rights in the premises.

The mayor relieved him on that point by saying those matters properly were in the hands of the public property committee.

The order was then referred to the Ward Five committee with full powers.

PENNY SAVINGS IN SCHOOL.

Mrs. Martin presented an order that the Penny Savings System be given permission to set stamps to school teachers who desired to help in promoting a system of saving among the children.

Mrs. Martin made a very earnest plea showing how successful and beneficial the system had been to children in schools, which had interested themselves in this manner. One instance was shown of a Boston school situated in one of the poorest districts, where 77 scholars in a period of seven weeks saved $58. Of this sum $35 was deposited in a Newton savings bank, the remainder being used for clothing.

The order passed unanimously and the board adjourned.

Pension Abuses.

And now we have "baldness" taking its side by "corns," as a reason for granting a pension! It is proved that pensions have been accorded for both these infirmities; yet, we have been asked seriously to specify abuses as existing under our pension laws. And with such facts as these made public, and the thousands of more plausible frauds that are doubtless as yet undetected, those who suggest reform in the pension department of the government are charged with being unfeeling to the soldier! The truth is, as the Washington correspondent of the Herald showed some time ago, that fortunes of millions have been built up by pension agents out of this imposition on the government, and cowardice in the one party and the temptation to deplete the national treasury and create a political capital on the part of the other have made it possible that this wrong should continue and increase for years in the past. If President Cleveland brings us to the point when this is no longer possible, he will render a service by which he will be remembered not least as a public benefactor.—Boston Herald.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the system when entering it through the mucous membrane. Should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by all druggists, price 75c per bottle.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in grand opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Bass of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

If afflicted with scalp diseases, hair falling out, or with itching humors, use Ely's Hair Renewer.

How does the new paint-work look in your house? Dull, lustreless, thin and "threadbare?" Well! don't blame the painter, unless you authorized him to get the Chilton Paints and he failed to do so—which he evidently did, if the work looks like that. The expense was heavy enough, was it? Ah! but you would have spent less and had more satisfaction had the Chilton Paints been used. Half the quantity you consumed would have done it twice as well. Let this experience teach you better next time. Reliable dealers keep Chilton Paints, and everybody who tries them once uses them always. They do their own advertising when once introduced. They are in all shades, well ground, made with pure linseed oil and turpentine driers and last, but not least, if you buy a gallon, you get a gallon, and not a teaspoonful less. "Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston."

A FRIEND

Speaks through the Boothbay (Me.) Register. Of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are in need of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills. They will do good."
